Jan 15, 1859, 3 - Public Improvements - HBC sold land... they would have held that spot sacred. Sacred do I say - they have even approached the ground where the dead have been laid to rest. That sacred spot has not been respected as it ought to have been. The bodies of the dead have been removed by the hands of the stranger to another piece of ground which is by far too small - the reserve included. It is inside the town, and surrounded by the living equally with the others. Then why, the people ask, is the churchyard too small why have the dead been disturbed from their graves; why stand houses where public gardens out to have been; why is View st blocked up by a public building? And many other questions will be asked by the people of Victoria...

RNV/Apr 30, 1859 - It is seldom we are called upon, in this Island, to notice the solemnity of a sailor's funeral processions, by the burial of John Jeffries [Jeffrys], Paymaster of HMS Pylades. With all the pomp and circumstance of war, the coffin was brought to the HBC wharf, accompanied by several barges fully manned, where it was met by the Marines, who had marched from Esquimalt. It was then conveyed on a gun carriage, to the church, from thence, after the impressive burial service was read, consigned to the grave. The Pall, 'the Union Jack' was borne by 4 officers in full uniform; the train attendant was the tars of 'Old England' and the Capts of Pylades and Tribune. The usual naval salute on such occasions was fired when the coffin was lowered. Buried at Victoria.

BkHx/Barbarously murdered on the road to Craig Flower, c Jun 1, 1859, Johnson Cochrane, one of the police. A colored man is suspected whom the deceased was in search of, for having stolen some pigs. Yesterday he was arrested some 7 miles from this town, towards Saanitch. His name is Joseph Lewis, alias Portuguese Joe, n/o Cape de Verde Is. 100 pound reward offered. A subscription is being taken up for the widow and children. He was a good officer, and his family were entirely dependent on him for support. Jun 13 - A half-breed, Jollibeau, who resides with his father on the farm of the late Dr Kennedy, was very closely interrogated by Justice Pemberton, to learn if he had any connection with Joe Lewis, the party in prison. It appeared that he had been engaged in the early part of the year, with 2 colored men, in shooting game for the market. A double-barreled gun with one rifle, and 1 smooth bore, together with a revolver and fowling-piece were produced in court; he swore that they had not been out of his possession on the supposed day of the murder, and also that he had very little knowledge of the accused. His sister, who seemed to know very little of the rules of court, and gave the Judge considerable trouble, failed to connect, in any way, the parties, but distinctly swore that she had never seen Lewis. Jollibeau was set at liberty. As yet there is no evidence to implicate any party. Jun 16 - Joseph Lewis, charged with being concerned in the murder was acquitted; Francoise Presse was arraigned on the charge of being concerned in the murder.

Jul 13, 1859 - A novel case was presented in court by the appearance of something wrapped up in a blanket gliding into court, which on being unwrapped turned out to be the celebrated white klotchman. She appeared to be about 17, with fair blue eyes, and perfectly white flaxen hair. One of a party of 5 was placed at the bar who had made a contract to take her to San Francisco to exhibit as a lusus naturae. The accused pled a contract between himself and the girl's father, and that the complainant had brought the suit when he was about embarking with the 'fair one' on the Forwood, because he would not give him more money. He concluded by a pitiable appeal to the Judge to ask the girl if she did not like him. The Judge dismissed the case.

Feb 25, 1860 - Some Indians digging under a bank near the old Indian encampment, at the foot of Store st, exhumed a dead body which had evidently been there for several weeks. The coroner's jury, however, brought in a verdict that it was the body of an Indian slave who had died from natural causes 2 months since, and had been buried by his owner.

Drowned Aug 15, 1860 about 4 miles from Boston Bar, while on his way to that place with a canoe load of beef which he had just slaughtered, Mr L F Bodkin. Bodkin had considerable money on his person when he drowned. He was born in US, aged about 35, and expected to leave for home in a short time. Bodkin was one of the party who struck the rich deposit of gold on Island Bar, late in the fall of 1858, and after toiling all winter, started in Mar 1859, for his far distant home, with a large amount of gold dust. He embarked in a whale-boat at Fort Hope, and when opposite Harrison River, the craft struck a snag, and the occupants were precipitated into the water. They were all saved, however; but Bodkin's money (some $2,000), which was in his coat pocket, was lost. He immediately borrowed a few dollars from some friend and retraced his steps to the scene of his former labours, where, after 1 ½ years of patient industry, he had succeeded in amassing some $4,000, and just as he was on the point of again visiting his friends in the East, another disaster occurs, and he is hurried into eternity.

Oct 18, 1860 - The condition of the old graveyard, at the crnr Broad/Government sts, is truly disgraceful. The Indians have carried away many of the pickets surrounding the graves, and used them for firewood; hogs are daily engaged in rooting up the ground that covers the remains of those who were once as full of life and health as any of us; and the footstep of the unthinking pedestrian fall carelessly upon the last homes of early pioneers, whose resting places should be as hallowed ground. Will not some person in authority look to this matter? It is a disgrace to the colony that a graveyard should be allowed to remain in such condition, while we have officials whose duty it certainly is to look after them and see that they are kept in repair.

Oct 23, 1860 - Some time since a gentleman of Victoria, VI, died. The widow and friends wished to procure a daguerreotype of his loved features before the body was consigned to the tomb. Payment was declined by the widow, on the ground that while the operator was taking the picture he used and destroyed 3 handkerchiefs, one sheet, and a bottle each cologne and brandy. The artist sues for the amount, alleging that the sheet and handkerchiefs were necessary, and that owing to the advanced state of decomposition of the body, the cologne and brandy were absolutely required to keep him from fainting while taking the picture. The case will be tried shortly before Judge Cameron.

Dec 13, 1860 - Capt Barrett Lennard arrived yesterday, from a trip around the Island, in his pleasure yacht, bringing the sad intelligence of the capsizing of the Peruvian brig Florencia, and the loss of four lives. The lost are: J P de Echiandeia, captain of the vessel; Lazario de Lamais, supercargo and owner; Dr T B Baillie, one of our oldest and most esteemed residents; and the cook of the vessel, name unknown.

Capt Lennard informs us that Nov 25 he saw Florencia at anchor off Escalante Pt, near Nootka Sound, which harbor he had just left in his yacht, with the intention of proceeding southward. He tried to make the vessel with his yacht, but was unable to do so, owing to headwinds and a strong tide. Next morning, the brig was seen coming in, under a fore-topsail and staysail; and having boarded her, Capt Lennard learned that she had been thrown upon her beam-ends during a heavy gale on Nov 12th, and, as before stated, 4 lives were lost. The 2nd mate was in charge of the vessel, and had only 4 men left to assist him in navigating, and they were almost perished for want of fire and food. For 2 weeks they had lived by distilling salt water, all their casks having been washed overboard at the time of her going on her beam-ends. Capt Lennard relieved their necessities as far as lay in his power, by sending bread and other articles aboard. The next day, the crew, with the assistance of Indians, went to work at the pumps, and soon succeeded in pumping the vessel dry. When the yacht left the crew were well supplied with fish, and had picked up a barrel of beef, but had neither bread nor flour.

A letter from the 2nd mate states that the vessel encountered the gale 50 miles S of Cape Flattery, during which she was thrown on her beam-ends. She remained in that condition for about 2 ½ hours, when she righted, and it was discovered that the 4 lives were lost, and her spars and the greater portion of her rigging carried away. The vessel was then completely waterlogged, and drifted probably as far N as Woody Pt, above Nootka Sound, and finally, as stated by Capt Lennard, reached the Sound without further damage.

The 1st mate had left Florenzia several days before she arrived at Nootka, with the intention of sending his shipwrecked companions relief from an Indian village; but had not returned up to the time of Capt Lennard sailing.

The vessel remains at the Sound, with the hull entirely uninjured, and there is no doubt if assistance be sent down immediately, she can be easily brought to this port.

Dr Baillie (who was on his way to Callao, Peru) leaves a wife, several children, and a large circle of friends to mourn his loss; and upon reception of the sad news the St Andrew's Soc flag and colours of the various engine companies were placed at half-mast in respect of his memory. Capt de Echiandeia and Senor de Lamais, had many acquaintances during their short stay here, and were highly respected by all.

Dr Thomas Begbie Baillie was aged 56, and was n/o

Lanarkshire, Sct, and was the only surviving s/o General Baillie.

Florenzia left the sawmill at Utsalady, WT loaded with lumber, she was nearly new, and was considered a staunch vessel.

Capt Lennard informs us that the Indians report 2 other vessels as having been lost - one to the E and another to the W of Port San Juan. One of these vessels, the natives said, had no crew on board, when she came on shore, and of the other they could give no particulars.

Died suddenly at Presidio, CA, Jun 17, 1861, George F Alley, a cannoneers, aged c

30, n/o Mass. The deceased it will be remembered was one of the passengers by brig Consort which was wrecked at San Josef hbr last Dec. The sufferings of the passengers and crew of that ill-fated vessel, and their subsequent rescue from starvation by HM gunboat Forward, are circumstances still fresh on the minds of most of our readers. Mr Alley was a csn/o H Lee Alley, purser of steamboat Flying Dutchman, now running on Fraser R.

Aug 7, 1861 - The chain gang were at work at the old graveyard digging up the human bones. They will be taken to the Church Reserve Cemetery.

Aug 9 - Chain gang are still busily engaged at the graveyard exhuming human remains and boxing those without coffins, preparatory to interment elsewhere. Several coffins have been taken out entire, and the bones within were undisturbed; but in the majority of cases the coffins are found to have decayed, and the bones are shovelled up in a confused mass and placed in rough boxes. Occasionally bits of trinkets, silk handkerchiefs, ribbons, portions of shrouds and other articles, are found with the bones. About 2/3 of the bones will be recovered; the balance will be scattered beneath the surface of the earth. We shall be glad when the work is completed, and a suitable resting place has been found for the remains of our early pioneers, where they may in future lie undisturbed by the ruthless hand of desecration or the snouts of hungry porkers.

Aug 10 - Chain gang exhumed the remains of a human body from the middle of Johnson st, opposite the graveyard. The skeleton was only 5 or 6" below the surface, and had from appearances once been coffined. Who pays for the services of the gang and 3 policemen at the old graveyard - the owner of the lot or the public purse?

Bldg/Aug 10, 1861 - The large building at the crnr Fort st and Government, demolished the other day, was built in 1848 as the Company's Mess House and the Gubernatorial residence. Gov Blanchard resided within its 4 walls for a time, and when succeeded by Gov Douglas, he gave up the residence to his successor. The cow stables on Fort st have also been levelled with the ground. The work of destruction among the old shanties is going rapidly forward, and in a brief space of time we expect to see substantial frame and brick buildings rising in their places. We grieve to part with the landmarks, but the march of improvement must not be checked on that account.

Sep 3, 1861, 2 - A Mysterious Female - Editor, British Colonist - For the past 2 or 3 nights, at a very late hour, a solitary female armed with a heavy cowhide, has been seen perambulating certain of the streets of this town, evidently in search of some person upon whom to use the said cowhide. Several gentlemen report having encountered the lady on Sun night, and that on seeing the manner in which she was armed and equipped, they fled for dear life - referring no doubt to face a southern Confederacy masked battery and cannon to a woman with a cowhide, remembering that 'hell hath no fury like a woman (s)corned.'

Title/Sep 12, 1861 - Body of Paul Joachim d'Urtubie de Garro, n/o Toulouse, Fra, aged 41, one of the victims by the explosion of the steamer Cariboo, Aug 3, was found by Indians floating in the water near the mouth of the harbor and towed to HBC wharf. The body was easily recognized by the clothing. At the close of the inquest, the remains were taken in charge by French residents and buried from the Roman Catholic chapel. Mons P Mene, Fr Vice Consul for this port, was present at the funeral ceremonies. Deceased was related to one of the oldest families of Fra - his father being the Count de Garro - and had served in the army. By the last steamer, a letter from his parents, entreating him to return home and enclosing a sum of money sufficient to take him thither, reached this city. Deceased had met with a continuous train of ill fortune since his residence on this coast, and was on his way to Cariboo when the dreadful calamity by which he and other worthy citizens perished, occurred.

BkHx/At sunset on Sep 19, 1861, a mulatto named John Lewis Defochette, residing on the Lagoon, Esquimalt harbor, had a difficulty with a Hydah Indian concerning some money alleged to be due the latter for labor performed, and during the dispute picked up a loaded shotgun, and placing it against the Indian's breast, shot him dead. Yesterday Defochette came to the station house, and said he had shot the Indian in self-defence, while the latter was about to stab him. He was taken into custody, and Coroner Dickson, accompanied by Chief of Police Smith and officer Blake, proceeded with the prisoner to the scene of the killing, and an inquest was held over the body, when it was established by Indian testimony that a wilful murder had been committed, and the jury returned a verdict to that effect. It is alleged that after killing the Indian, the accused cut a slit in the side of his own shirt with a knife, and on arriving at the barracks he pretended that it had been done by his victim before he fired. On his return to town in a canoe, in charge of Officer Blake, the prisoner endeavored to upset the canoe at the HBC wharf, but was prevented from carrying his design fully into execution by the exhibition of a six-shooter. He was locked up, and will be sent to the Assizes for trial.

An old man named Pierre Jolibois, while driving a lumber-laden wagon along the Saanich rd Oct 6, 1851, when near Dr Tolmie's red gate, Cloverdale farm, fell from his seat to the ground, and was crushed by the wheels of the vehicle, which passed over his breast. He was extricated by some naval officers, who chanced to be passing, and taken to the Royal hospital, where every attention was shown him; but his injuries were of so severe a nature as to cause his death within 20 minutes after being conveyed thither. Deceased was a French Canadian, aged c 60. He was formerly in the employ of HBC, and leaves a family. Dr Dickson will hold an inquest. One witness testified that he was driving a wagon on the Saanich rd when deceased approached and asked to be allowed to ride. The horses were unruly, and while deceased was about to get into the vehicle he slipped and fell beneath the wheels and received fatal injuries.

Col de Courcey commanded a Turkish regiment during the Crimean war...has been commissioned by Gen Dennison, Col of 60th OH Reg.

Oct 24, 1861 - Most of our readers will remember Rowe, who disappeared from the Royal Hotel, Victoria, VI last spring, and after a long search was traced to N Saanich, where he had built a cabin, and declared himself Czar of all the Russia's. Every little while, last summer, complaint was brought to town from Saanich by citizens, who declared that Rowe was in the habit of threatening them with death whenever they approached his cabin. These complaints continued until about 2 mo ago, when the unfortunate man again disappeared suddenly from his home, and has not since been seen. It is supposed that he had wandered away during one of his crazy fits, and the neighbors gave themselves no concern about him until a week ago, when a Saanich Indian told a res/o the Dist that Rowe was murdered by Cowichan Indians for his money, and that the body had been interred near his cabin. The only articles missing from the cabin are 2 guns and a number of blankets. Yesterday a man arrived in town from Saanich and stated the circumstances to the Chief of Police, by whom an investigation will probably be instituted today. Rowe has friends here who should look after his effects; Oct 31 - Supt Smith was unsuccessful in finding any clue to the whereabouts of Rowe...Rowe had built a commodious shanty...which was well furnished with the usual luxuries of a backwoods life.

RNV/Oct 29, 1861 - Lt-Comm Charles R Robson, commanding HM gunboat

Forward, whilst riding in the neighborhood of Esquimalt in company with Mr Skinner Jr, was thrown with great violence from his horse, receiving very serious, if not fatal, injuries. He was immediately conveyed to the Royal Hosp and promptly attended to by Dr Forbes, RN. Yesterday morning he was conscious, but owing to the spine being injured, he is completely paralyzed and unable to move. The accident was caused by a sheep running between the legs of the horse which he was riding. Mr Skinner was also thrown from his horse at the same time, but luckily was not hurt. Mr Robson's injuries were caused by his horse rolling over him. It is stated that the command of Forward devolves upon Hon H D Lascelles, Lt on board Topaze; Nov 6 - We regret to have to announce the death of this popular officer, who expired Nov 5 at Naval Hosp, Esquimalt. Flags throughout the town were lowered to half-mast during the whole of yesterday. Funeral will take place at Victoria burial ground. Funeral of Comm Robson, late of HM gunboat Forward will take place Nov 7 from HBC wharf, where the body will be landed from Esquimalt. Naval procession will leave HBC wharf, pass along Wharf st into Yates, up Yates into Government, along Government into Fort, up Fort to Douglas, and thence to the cemetery. Friends of deceased not belonging to the service are requested to form in procession in the rear of the naval procession....on arriving abreast of HBC wharf, the officers, sailors and Marines with body of deceased were landed. The naval procession was immediately formed to do the last honors to the gallant officer. First were a company of marines; next the band of HMS Topaze, then the body of Comm Robson in a coffin resting on a gun carriage drawn by sailors. It was covered by the flag of his country, surmounted with his cocked hat and sword. Following the coffin were the mourners, among whom were T J Skinner, Esq and his 3 sons; G T Gordon, Esq and 2 sons; and Archdeacon Wright. Then came Forward's ship's company. After them came Capts Richards and Spencer, officer of Forward, Hecate and Topaze and His Excellency Gov Douglas. Then followed a long procession of citizens, who desired to testify their high respect for the deceased. Funeral moved on slowly, while the band played 'Dead March' till it reached Christ's Church. Some 500 or 600 persons accompanied the procession besides those who had formed regularly into line. In all there could not have been less than 1500 persons who attended the funeral, making it the largest that ever occurred here. The usual salute was fired by the Marines over the grave of deceased, thus closing his connection forever with the service of which he was an ornament. Deceased had distinguished himself in the service several times by his gallant conduct. Once he volunteered into Dauntless in the WI when no one else would, owing to her officers and crew suffering severely from yellow fever. He also volunteered to bring an American vessel from the coast of Africa to Philadelphia which had lost her officers by yellow fever. In the last Russian war he was in the Baltic fleet before Sweaborg, and is highly spoken of for his gallant conduct. We have few other particulars of his history except the services which he has rendered to this Colony. His rescue of the crew of the American brig Consort on the west coast of this Island, nearly a year ago, for which our American residents sent a memorial to Pres Buchanan, and his bombardment of the Indians at Cape Mudge, are the principal acts in which he distinguished himself here.

Dec 20, 1861 - We were pained to learn that Hon John Work, MLC and Chief Factor of HBC, was at the point of death. Mr Work has been unwell for several weeks; but the complaint with which he is afflicted had not taken a serious turn until within the past 10 days. Dec 23, About 1,000 lbs of apples, grown on the orchard of the late Hon John Work, will be exported to BC on the next trip of the Otter. This will be the first exportation of VI apples ever made.

Died at Hillside, Victoria, VI, Dec 22, 1861, Hon John Work, Member of Legislative Council and Chief Factor HBC, aged 70. Funeral from the Fort yard. Remains will be followed to the grave by the attaches of HBC and by numerous friends of deceased.

The late Hon John Work entered the employ of HBC in 1814, and served on the east of the Rocky Mtns till 1822, when he came to the west side, and in the course of a few years established at Colville a very productive farm - the first attempt at agriculture in British or American possessions west of the Rocky Mtns, and an achievement of no small importance in those early days, when the fur traders had to be mainly dependent upon themselves for the cultivation of grain and the production of other supplies necessary for their own subsistence and the support of outlying posts. He was subsequently for several years in charge of trapping parties, hunting amongst the hostile Blackfeet, in the great plains east of Colville, or in quest of beaver amidst the reeds and swamps on the Bay of San Francisco and on the lower Sacramento.

From 1835 to 1849 Mr Work was in charge of HBC's business at Ft Simpson, on the NW coast of BC. In the latter year he was stationed at this place as one of the managers of the Company's affairs west of the Rocky Mtns, and soon after was appointed MLC of VI, a position he retained till the day of his death.

Until the formation of this Colony, Mr Work had always expressed a fond intention of spending the evening of his days in his native land, the N of Ire; but the prospect of a civilized home on this island, under British institutions, induced him to settle here, where he acquired considerable property and became one of the earliest and most enterprising farmers in Victoria Dist.

His many virtues are so well known that it is needless to dwell upon them at length. In all the relations of life Mr Work's career has been most exemplary; and we have it from one of his earliest and most intimate friends (and to whom we are indebted for most of the above biographical particulars) that throughout his life Mr Work invariably won the respect and esteem of all in every station of life with whom he became connected. His familiar form will henceforth be missed by the many friends and well-wishers with whom, in health, he was wont to exchange greetings in the streets of Victoria.

By children he was especially beloved. Nothing pleased him more than to gather his numerous children and grandchildren about him; and thus surrounded by those in whose society it was his chief delight to live, he passed away. His end was serene and hopeful, a fitting close to a life of benevolence, integrity; and usefulness.

Jan 1, 1862 - Was It A Ghost? What is supposed to have been a 'woman in white' was observed to flit across Langley Alley, near the Boomerang Inn, about half-past 8 o'clock last evening. Three gentlemen assure us that they saw the figure - which they took to be that of a female of medium height, habited entirely in white - cross the alleyway twice within a few moments, and that though followed closely, it was almost instantly lost to view in the dim light near the carpenter shop. One of the beholders - whose teeth chattered violently whilst telling the tale - positively asserted that the same figure passed him at 11 o'clock on Mon night near the same spot, and that he saw the face, which was that of a not overly good-looking young woman.

Her hair was black and hung loosely over her shoulders. She glided rather than walked along and seemed to fade suddenly away when near Watson's machine shop. He says, that although greatly alarmed, he yesterday said nothing about what he had seen, for fear of being laughed at, and would not mention it now if he had not witnessed the same object in the presence of witnesses last evening. We hardly know what to make of this story or the apparition, but incline to the opinion that some wag in the vicinity has thrown a sheet over his head and perambulated the alley for the purpose of working on the fears of weak-minded persons. We advise the Police to keep a vigilant eye on the 'haunted' section tonight.

Mar 14, 1862 - That Large Spar... Our readers may remember the long spar which was presented to the Industrial Exhibition Comm last fall by Capt Stamp, and which it was intended to send to the World's Fair on the bark True Briton. That vessel it was found, however, was not long enough to accommodate the spar, and it has therefore remained at Esquimalt ever since. Lately, Mr Pidwell, Sec of the Comm, proposed that it should be erected on Beacon Hill, next Queen's Birthday, where, besides being the highest pole on record, it might ultimately serve to support a system of signals for vessels as far distant as Cape Flattery. The suggestion to erect the pole on Beacon Hill we learn has been adopted, and HM sailors at Esquimalt will dress and raise it on the day proposed. [Later, this pole 'escaped' and floated away - no record seen of its 'capture'.]

Jun 18, 1862 - In the consequence of the vile character of the liquor which is dispensed in the Cariboo diggings at 50 cents a thimbleful, the miners have introduced an old but very safe method to test the quality retailed from the different bars. A party will walk into a saloon and ask for drinks, whereupon the barkeeper takes a small swallow of each kind of liquor asked for. The party then seat themselves and solemnly remain for the space of 5 minutes watching the effects of the dram, when, if no signs of approaching dissolution be manifested by the barkeeper, the whole crowd confidently advance and imbibe. A friend writes us that in consequence of this treatment Cariboo barkeepers resemble the same clerks of an apothecary's shop immediately after testing the strength of croton oil [?].

Sep 12, a Cyprian known as Johanna Maguire, started from Williams Creek with $3,000 in dust in her possession, for the purpose of bailing out her 'man,' who was in prison at the Forks of Quesnelle. She reached Antler on the same day, and getting drunk there spoke of the object of her journey. The next morning she left Antler and reached an hotel 7 miles beyond. There she rested until afternoon, and again continued on in company with an unknown man. She was never afterwards seen alive; but four days subsequently, her corpse is reported to have been discovered in the bushes near the trail, with the throat cut from ear to ear, and the dust gone.

Oct 9, 1862 - The report of the murder of Johanna Maguire is confirmed by the arrival of Eliza Anderson. Her body was found 4 miles this side of Antler Creek with the throat cut from ear to ear.

Oct 13, 1862 - Johanna Maguire, the Cariboo Cyprian reported murdered and robbed, has returned to life. Her horse and $43,000 in gold dust were left somewhere in the forest, and will probably never be found.

WmHx/Jan 12, 1863 - Arrival of Robert Lowe. The long and anxiously expected vessel has at length arrived in Esquimalt harbor...left Gravesend Sep 18, 114 days. She brings 180 passengers of both sexes, among whom are many married ladies, come out to join their husbands. The weather was all that could be desired, and not a single spar, we believe, was disturbed or put out of place by the violence of the wind since the ship left Eng. During the voyage there were no deaths on board, and everyone enjoyed the trip amazingly.

The passengers we have met with, speak in the highest terms of commendation of Capt Congalton and his officers. The former was kind, courteous and attentive to the wishes of all on board, and the latter, like true British tars, ably and efficiently gave effect to their commander's wishes. Three interesting little cherubs were added to the community on board during the voyage, and we are happy to state that under the judicious care and kind treatment of the surgeon of the ship, Dr Ash, both mothers and infants are, in common with the rest of the passengers, in the enjoyment of excellent health. The ship did not touch at any port coming out, from the fact that the Capt considered he was amply provided to bring him here, and being enabled to distill an abundant daily supply of pure water for the use of the passengers and crew, it was not necessary to call on the way for either of these necessaries. We understand, however, that had the time of arrival been protracted a week longer the store of edibles would have been well nigh exhausted, a fact which tells much in favor of the captain's accuracy in calculation of the time in which he could make the passage from port to port. We are glad to notice among the arrivals several married men with their wives and families; these will be a valuable addition to our colonists, and we look to their taking up their residence and remaining among us. There are, also, we understand, several gentlemen of capital and enterprise, who intend going into mercantile and other pursuits, for which they have a good field to work upon here.

In addition to the general passengers there are 36 young females who have been sent out by the philanthropic Miss Rye; these girls are chiefly from Manchester, and must have conducted themselves at home with exemplary propriety, to be entitled to the assistance which their benefactress bestowed upon them. They will be welcomed by many families in Victoria, VI who have been in need for some time of respectable female servants; and we trust the poor friendless creatures will be placed in no other kind of establishments. On board ship they occupied a separate compartment, never being allowed to mingle with the other passengers, and for the fatherly solicitude and scrupulous care bestowed upon them by the Capt, that gentleman has entitled himself to the lasting gratitude of the girls, and the thanks of every feeling heart in the community. One of the passengers, a gentleman of high respectability and intelligence, gave us a touching account of the prudent arrangements of Capt Congalton on the passage, for the comfort and happiness of those girls, and his unceasing regard for their strict propriety and behaviour. Everything, in fact that a tender parent could do for his daughter's honor and welfare, was done by the

Capt for those committed to his humane and judicious oversight. In attending to the spiritual welfare, the Capt had the valued assistance of Rev W S Reece, who was always ready and willing to aid, council and advise when called on. It has been stated that the girls will be landed today, this we understand is an error, as it is not likely they will be landed until the committee here have matured their arrangements and decided when they shall be taken into the home provided for them. The house, however, is prepared and ready to receive them, and doubtless they will arrive there in the course of the present week. We hope the committee will make better arrangements for their landing than in the case of the Tynemouth, which excited so much dissatisfaction amongst the young people who came by her. There is not the slightest necessity for any parade about so simple a matter as the landing of a few passengers, and we cannot conceive anything more heartless or ill-considered than to have poor young strangers, we don't care of what sex, subjected to the rude gaze of a motley crowd of roughs, who, instead of running about idle, should be engaged with the shovel or the axe earning an honest living. We know right well the committee are composed of men of the most benevolent dispositions and actuated by the purest and best of motives; but they must not allow their zeal to run counter to the dictates of common sense and prudence, in carrying out their arrangements.

Ages of the single ladies range from 15 to 40, 19 seems to be the favorite age, there being a large majority in the last year of their teens. Analysis of trades and professions of the passengers: 14 gentlemen, 3 engineers, 5 merchants, 12 clerks, 1 gardener, 3 shipwrights, 2 bricklayers, 2 agents, 1 auctioneer, 3 carriers, 2 mechanics, 1 carpenter, 1 chemist, 1 fishmonger, 4 butchers, 2 millwrights, 3 bakers, 3 farmers, 1 innkeeper, 1 grocer, 2 factory overlookers, 1 pianoforte maker, 8 mariners, 3 miners, 3 joiners, 1 victualler, 1 printer, 1 hairdresser, 1 tanner, 1 builder, 1 waste dealer, 1 iron manufacturer, 2 general dealers, 1 surveyor, 1 cabinet maker, 1 laborer, 1 matron, 2 weavers, 1 operative, 1 chemist. Nativity is as follows: 157 English, 15 Scotch, 4 Irish, 2 Italians, 2 German, 1 Pole.

The Landing of The Passengers - The passengers were, with the exception of the single females, brought round to Victoria on steamer Emily Harris. A vast crowd assembled on Union and adjacent wharves to see them land, and some excitement was created by Capt Pike, who commanded the little vessel, steaming slowly down the harbor until he neared Rock Bay Bridge. This manoeuver created an impression that the boat would stop at the new wharf of Janion, Green &

Rhodes, and a rush accordingly took place. On her return, a scamper back to Brodrick's wharf occurred, and she finally came alongside. Just at the time when she was making fast, however, a diversion was created by a furious battle between 2 curs upon the wharf, which, proving the most attractive spectacle of the two, obtained by far the larger share of attention from the crowd for 10 minutes succeeding, by which time most of the passengers had succeeded in effecting a landing. The utmost disorder prevailed, and the newcomers must have been highly impressed with a deep sense of the efficient police regulations of the colony.

At about 3:30, Grappler steamed into the harbor, having on board the 38 single females with several others passengers, and Capt Congalton. Capt Moore's steamboat Flying Dutchman hoisted her burgee and ensign, on the approach of the gunboat with her precious freight, in token of welcome.

A footpath of boards extending from the Immigration barracks to the waterfront on James Bay had been laid down by the Immigration Committee, and now several ladies, amongst whom we noticed the mayoress and Mrs Cridge, came down to the bank to receive the girls as they landed. Shortly after Grappler let go her anchor, 2 boats were lowered, and 2 trips of each sufficed to bring the young women to terra firma.

Feb 27, 1863 - Mr Cameron, whose wife died some time ago, had completed the preparations for the removal of her remains, and was to start Feb 2, and come down here direct. A large number of residents on the creek were to follow the corpse in funeral procession as far as Antler. The deceased, as well as her surviving husband, were held in the highest esteem by all who knew them, and the greatest regret was felt by the friends of Mr Cameron for the loss he had sustained in the death of a loving and faithful wife. Mr/Mrs Cameron came originally from Canada, and had she lived there is every probability they would have returned there gain, with a fortune which would have kept them comfortable for life. Mar 9, 1863 - Mrs J A Cameron's Funeral - The remains of this deeply lamented lady were removed from the Royal Hotel on Wharf st, yesterday and followed to the grave at Christ

Church Cemetery by the largest and most respectable funeral cortege which we have ever witnessed in the city. In addition to the whole mining community at present in town, there was a vast number of our principal inhabitants who came unsolicited to pay respect to the memory of the deceased, as well as to manifest the sympathy which they felt for her respected husband under his terrible affliction. The funeral passed up Yates st, along Government st, and thence by Fort st to the cemetery, where Rev Mr Hall, Presbyterian minister to whose Communion both the deceased and her husband belonged, conducted the solemn services. In a touching and extremely appropriate address the Rev gentleman with great earnestness dwelt upon the faithfulness and womanly devotion of the deceased to her husband, how she left her happy home to follow his fortunes to the mountain ranges of an inhospitable country, the loss of her promising babe in Victoria, VI just one year since, and how nobly she risked her health and ease to contribute to the comfort and happiness of him she loved.

Mrs Cameron was a d/o Nathan Groves of Stormont, Cornwall Co, CW, and was quite a young woman. During her residence in Victoria, VI before going to Cariboo, she was highly respected, and wherever she went she endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact by her genial disposition and benevolence of spirit. During her long and severe confinement before her death not a murmur escaped her lips, and her sole thought was for him from whom she was so soon to be separated.

Deeply attached to her in life Mr Cameron has not forgotten the respect due to her remains, as with a heroism which is not often met with, he boldly faced the rigors of an almost arctic winter, and brought the corpse a distance of 600 miles, at an expense of nearly $2,000, to have it interred with the rites of Christian burial. Besides, so deeply rooted was his attachment to the deceased that he intends in the fall of the year to have her remains, with that of their child, exhumed and taken to Canada for interment in the family burying-ground. It was a singular coincidence that on yesterday just 12 months since, the child was interred in the same grave in which the remains of the mother has now been laid, and within an hour of the same time of day. Mrs Cameron was attended in her last illness by Dr Wilkinson, who left nothing untried which might tend to his patient's recover. Alas! Without effect.

The residents of Richfield turned out when Mr Cameron was leaving and followed in procession to the top of the mountain, where they took their leave. Funeral arrangements here were conducted by Richard Lewis, undertaker, very creditably. A Card - Mr Cameron desires to express his most grateful acknowledgments to Mr/Mrs Willcox, of the Royal Hotel, Wharf st, for the great kindness and sympathy which they have shown to him on his present visit, as well as on a former occasion when Mrs Cameron was alive and their only child was laboring under a fatal illness. To the many kind friends in Victoria from whom he has received so much attention and kindness, he begs to return his grateful thanks. In making this acknowledgment, he cannot conclude without tendering to the inhabitants of Richfield his sincere acknowledgment for their brotherly sympathy after the death of Mrs Cameron, and their voluntary support in turning out en masse to aid him in bringing the remains to the top of the mountain. Poem - I Will Not Forget Thee - Mar 10, 3 -

Mar 28, 1863 - Handsome Monument - A very handsome monument has been erected in the cemetery to the memory of the late John Carroll of Victoria, VI by his widow. The monument is 18' high, and is formed of Salt Spring I stone, the tablet being of white marble. The monument is in the Gothic style of architecture. The capitals of the pillars are decorated with ivy, oak and maple leaves; on each side is displayed a star, a cherub and a shield interlaced with which is a shamrock, the emblem of the land of deceased's birth. On the top of the monument is a cross, at the foot the representation of 2 angels kneeling. We are informed the cost will not be less than $3,000, the contractors are Messrs Robinson & Briggs. The designer and sculptor, however, is Mr Edward Richardson, s/o Mr Richardson the celebrated sculptor of London. The monument is really an ornament to this city, and is most carefully finished in every part, the talented young artist having been engaged in its execution during the last four months.

Apr 25, 1863 - The other evening a Caribooite walked into a chemist's shop in Victoria, accompanied by 2 friends, and asked for some bottles of scent. The chemist stared, but produced a dozen samples for selection. The miner examined one, and on learning what it was called, directed the chemist to open it; when this was done, he took a sniff, and turning to one of his friends poured the whole of the contents over his person. Another was called for and distributed in like manner over his other companion; and, having paid this tribute to friendship, he anointed himself with a third. This operation concluded, he inquired the cost of his purchases, threw down a $5 gold piece and stalked proudly out of the shop, disdaining to accept the change.

May 14, 1863, 3 - Cariboo Letter... The jumpers, in the absence of a Gold Commission, are causing much annoyance, the meanness of some of them is beyond comparison. One instance... In the Cameron claim was a share belonging to the late Mrs Cameron, which was taken up and worked in her name up to the time of her death. This share Mr Cameron naturally supposed he had a perfect right to retain after her decease, and was working it accordingly. While away on the sad mission of taking the remains of his late wife to Victoria for interment, this above-mentioned share was jumped, and by whom? By a man that he had fed, supported, and kept from wanting the common necessities of life for several weeks; afterwards giving him work so that he was able to earn some $300... I may also mention that Mr Cameron was the 1st to prospect far below the Barker claim, and it was mainly through his energy and perseverance that many are now at work... Signed A Miner

When the people were collected the coffins were laid out before them, and the old chief made a funeral oration, deprecating the iniquitous acts for which the offenders had been brought to justice. He also addressed himself fervently to the women, and made an allusion to the escape of the old woman Thask from punishment. The young men of his tribe are said to have felt sensibly the degradation entailed upon them by their kinsmen, and a feeling of regret was manifested that Thask had not been permitted to suffer with the other culprits.

RN/May 21, 1863, 3 - May 18, in mid-day and before the eyes of everyone, a boat's crew, belonging to HMS Chameleon, and numbering 13 men, took one of the ship's boats from alongside, and pulled out of the harbor. Chameleon fired upon them several times, but they paid no attention, and succeeded in getting clear off. After some consultation, 1st Lt, went after the deserters in a plunger, leaving orders for 2 boats to follow him in a stated time. He, himself, landed on the opposite shore, and after waiting until dusk, kindled a fire. This done, the Lt concealed himself in the bush. The ruse was successful. The deserters saw the fire and pulled towards it. When they came near enough to see that it was deserted, they seem to have suspected nothing, but landed at once, and proceeded to cook their suppers and make themselves as comfortable as possible. They passed a merry evening, and at length lay down to sleep. The other boats then advanced, in accordance with previously received orders, and being joined by the 1st Lt, captured the whole of the deserters with perfect ease. Sep 19, 1863 - From a settler in the Comax District who arrived in town on Thurs night, having left on Mon afternoon, we learn that there are 42 actual settlers in the Dist. The claims taken up number about 50. The settlers have all erected homesteads and are prepared for the coming winter. Two or three are engaged in erecting barns for the storage of their produce and protection of their stock. One settler named Bayley, owns 16 head of cattle. Mr Mitchell has 11, Mr Harmston 2 or 3, and Mr Robb is now in Victoria purchasing stock. Almost all possess a yoke of oxen, and one settler has a horse. There are no sheep at present, but there are a good many pigs and poultry attached to most of the homesteads. The crops this season have been very favorable and given the greatest satisfaction. Farmers from Aus and Eng asserted that they had never seen finer grain crops. Vegetables also grow profusely, onions will weigh as much as 14 oz. The want of communication is a serious drawback to the progress of the settlement. There are now about 60 tons of hay awaiting transit, and no means of conveying it to market. The settlers say they would prefer having a steamer visit them once a month to a small packet semi-weekly which could not carry stock. A prospecting party will start in about a fortnight to explore the hills about 12 miles to the southward of the bay. At the mouth of the Comax R a prospect of 2 cents to the pan can be obtained, but no one has proceeded any distance up, and it is thought by those who have had some mining experience, that copper or silvery may be found near the source.

Oct 26, 1863 - While passing on the W side of Government st, opposite St Nicholas Hotel our attention was arrested by an exhibition, familiar enough to Londoners and Parisians, but certainly a novelty in Vancouver Island. It consisted of a life-size figure in wax of a handsome female in evening dress. Curiosity led us into the establishment, which has been recently opened by Mons Riviere, Barber and Perruquier, from Paris and San Francisco. M Riviere showed us a 2nd similar figure, upon which he is displaying his decorative taste, and the lady, when completed, will be placed alongside her companion, the pair being made to take rotatory exercise by means of clockwork. The cost of these dames in Paris was about $800...a young Siwash led his fiancee into the shop, and modestly asked if she could not be 'fixed up' in the same way...

Dec 7, 1863, 3 - ...is this Island possessed of a Coat of Arms? If not...I venture to offer the following: The sun in the meridian, shining with all his brilliancy on a young and lovely mermaid rising from the sea, with a monster leech twined round her shoulders, with its head firmly fixed on her breast, with a lot of grasshoppers beautifully illuminated in every direction, while the Chinook words 'halo shame' could be artistically woven round the tail of the leech. The key to armorial hearing would be first, the Sun'day'; second, Mermaid rising out of the sea 'VI'; third the leech would represent the system of auction as carried on and brought to the light of day, while the grasshoppers, whose names are legion on the Island, would signify 'jumpers'...

Dec 7, 1863 - Nov 29, schooner Shark sailed into the harbor [Nanaimo]. She was seized by the gunboat Grappler, for having for some time past been in the habit of disposing of spirituous liquors to the Comox Indians. The trial came off on the following day before H Franklyn, JP, Major Biggs, Lieut Verney (Grappler) and Capt Hardinge, of Cameleon. Capt Hughes, of Shark, pleaded innocence. The first witness examined was a Comox woman named Jenny, who stated that she never purchased any rum from the tenass ship, but was in company with those who did. An Indian named Dick corroborated the statement of the woman. A man named Thomas Price also stated that he had occasion to visit the Comox Indians a short time ago; when within sight of the village saw a small schooner sailing away, and on his arrival found all or the greater portion of the Indians more or less intoxicated... magistrate then asked the prisoner if he had anything to say in his defence? He stated that he had previously taken spirituous liquors to a Mr Hart, at Comox, who resides within the limits of the Indian Reserve (which was just as much in contravention of the laws as though he had disposed of it to the Indians)...A man named J Jenkins was employed to take Shark to Comox, as there was a mail and freight for that place, from whence she will return to Nanaimo to be sold.

Feb 27, 1864...schooner Red Rover arrived yesterday from Comox. The master reports that the Indians appeared, from what he could gather from the settlers and his own experience, to be more peaceably disposed, assuring him that they were 'halo silux' (not hostile), making at the same time anxious enquiries as to whether a gunboat was likely to make her appearance. The whole rancherie are at present very busily engaged in building houses for a number of their tillicums expected from Cape Mudge.

Feb 29, 1864... gunboat Forward, Commander the Hon H Lascelles, with Supt Smith on board, returned yesterday from a visit to Comox District, having left Nanaimo in the morning, and made the run down in 8 hours.

While at Comox enquiries were made into the alleged complaints against the Euclataw Indians, but no definite charges were made against them by the settlers.

The chief of the tribe stated that they were willing to do what they were told by the authorities, and they were accordingly ordered to remove their camp to the proper site on Cape Mudge. The order was partly obeyed and a portion of those encamped moved off in their canoes, but the weather became too stormy to venture on the water, and the gunboat remained until it moderated, to see the order carried out.

The chief and many of the Indians declared that there would be no cause for complaint if the traffic in whiskey could be stopped. They asserted that spirits were freely supplied to them by a man at Qualicum called Bill Jones.

Mar 2, 1864, 2 - Communication w/coast settlements... From a letter received by a gentleman in town, from a settler at Comox, we have the following particulars of the disturbances which have occurred between the Euclataw and Comox Indians: During a big drink, Jim Seaweed (an Indian who is too well known in Victoria, it is said, to come here) stabbed his klootchman, Namoukoush, another well known Indian, killed the Euclataw chief's klootchman. Minimin is almost dead from wounds received. Blueskin and his tillicums fired at Tiercop in his house. The Comox Indians are frightened out of their senses. Mar 14, 1864, 3 - Particulars of Death of Donald Monro [see 1863]. Having received a letter from George Munro requesting further particulars concerning death of his brother... 'Sir, the following are the particulars given to me by Sim Shively, who was one of the party who found his body, and who, reading the article in your paper, requested me to give you the particulars: In Jun 1863, while returning from a prospecting tour, they stopped to cook dinner, and Shively, while sauntering along the river discovered a flag hanging to a pole on the bank, and on inspecting it he found body of the poor man under a tree, a short distance from the flag, and a short distance from him, his tin cup bottom upwards, with the following inscription scratched with a sail needle 'Donald Munro in the woods, lost Jun 1863, is from Inverness Town, Sct, born Jun, 1825. Shively says from the appearance of the body he must have been dead about 10 days. They rolled him up in his blankets and dug a grave and buried him, enclosing it with sticks around it, and put a cross to his head. They found no papers, only a shirt, new pants, sewing palm and needle; not an oz of food. Near where he lay the poor man had stripped the bark from a tree, as the last resort to sustain life. Shively says he thinks he must have been conscious to the last. His tin cup he placed on a small stick behind his head, close to the tree, and in a way to prevent the wx having any effect on the cup'... signed Sim Shively, per John Cook, Fashion Saloon. BkHx/Mar 15, 1864 - Yesterday afternoon, about 30 of the Pioneer Rifle Corps (colored) under the command of Capt Johnson, mustered on the lawn adjoining their Hall, on View St to receive a stand of Colors.

After being put through a few evolutions by their drill sergeant, which they performed with tolerable precision, Miss Pointer, daughter of Nathan Pointer, then stepped forward and made a very appropriate address, presenting Capt Johnson with a handsome Union Jack mounted on a staff, with a gilt spearhead, also a regimental flag bearing the initials 'VPRC', elegantly worked. Capt Johnson acknowledged the compliment paid to his corps, and after the Company had presented arms, the band playing 'God Save the Queen', they formed into line, and headed by their band, marched through the town. The men looked well in their uniform, and marched in very good order.

Apr 6, 1864 - sloop Louisa arrived on Mon night from Comox. From Mr Burrage we learn that everything was going on very satisfactorily at the settlement. The farmers were all very busy ploughing and getting in their seeds. The notorious Indian Jim Seaweed made a savage attack one day on a settler named Mitchell with stones. Mitchell was seriously hurt, but managed to give the reprobate a good pounding. Immediately after, while Mitchell was absent from home some of Jim's

tillicums broke open the door and stole a lot of blankets and clothing. Seaweed is a noted scamp and causes most of the disturbance up there. The authorities ought to see that he is weeded out.

Jun 28, 1864, 3 - Tynemouth Immigrants - Several of the young girls who came here by steamers Robert Lowe and Tynemouth were assisted out to this colony by Messrs W S Lindsay and William Stringer, of London, owners of the vessels. The arrangement was that they should pay a part of the passage money in Eng, and the remaining portion out here. It seems that several of these young women have failed to pay the balances due to the owners and Messrs Sifken Bros, acting as agents, brought suits against them in Summary Court yesterday to recover these amounts. One case against Charlotte Anne Bates (now Mrs Eaton) was brought forward, her attorney putting in several objections as to the legality of the claim... We can only express our regret that anything of the sort should have occurred, for if the owners of passenger ships find that there is any difficulty in recovering amounts due on assisted passages, it is more than probable that we shall see no more of the poorer class of immigrants coming here, unless they are sent by government; Jul 6, 3 - Suits against Misses Jane Atkinson, Fish and Lyons, for balance of passage money per steamer Robert Lowe,

Born at Victoria, VI, Jul 15, 1864, wife of H N Steele, son. Aug 3 - Messrs Steele and Laumeister arrived at mouth of Quesnelle on 27th, having left the Creek and having here received intimation of the birth of a son in Victoria, great rejoicings took place. Anvils were fired, one of which burst from an overcharge and scattered the fragments in various directions, fortunately injuring no one. Champagne flew round with profuse liberality amongst the people, whose numbers were increased by the addition of 30 or 40 passengers who were proceeding down by the steamer, and so gay a time was never before known in this rising little town.

Jul 20, 1864 - Licencing Court - William Lusch renewed his application, through Mr Copland, for a license for the recent building erected by him at great expense on the confines of the Park. Mr Harris was of the opinion that the applicant was entitled to a license. The rest of the Bench held that such a house was not wanted nor desirable, and the application was accordingly refused. [Editorial, 2 - decidedly sympathetic to Lusch]; Sep 2, 3 - Licencing Crt - granted...William Lusch, Park Hotel, near Beacon Hill; Sep 3, 3 - Application of William Lusch for a license of 'Park House' Beach Hill, was supported by Mr Drake, who produced a recommendation signed by nearly all the resident householders in the neighborhood in favor of the application. Mr Green, who represented A/A-G, said that he had no instructions to oppose, and the bench accordingly granted the license [A F Pemberton/A C Anderson, Esqs]; Sep 6, 3 - Mr/Mrs Lusch yesterday entertained a number of friends with profuse liberality at their elegant retreat near Beacon Hill, known as Park Hotel. A long table was arranged in the dining room, with all the delicacies of the season, to which full justice was done by the guests who received a hearty welcome from the host and hostess. Success to the establishment was pledged in bumpers of champagne, and if good wishes can contribute to the welfare of an undertaking, the Park Hotel is now on the high road to fortune. We must not omit to notice the splendid suite of apartments which this hotel can boast of, and if we mistake not, those who have entered into the bonds of Hymen will soon discover the advantages here presented to them for the uninterrupted enjoyment of the rosy hours of the honeymoon.

Drowned by falling from steamer Reliance, some distance above Harrison Rv, Feb 9, 1864, Charles Farwell. Inquest on body. Farwell was n/o NY, was about 27 and was a general favorite amongst those with whom he associated. His father resides in San Jose Valley, CA, and has been in communication with Capt Irving subsequent to the death of his son, Capt Irving having transmitted to him a gold ring and the amount of wages due to Charles at the time of his death. It may be gratifying to the bereaved relatives to know that although Charles Farwell came to a sudden and untimely end in a strange land and far from his own kindred yet nothing which relatives could have done was omitted by those here who were acquainted with him during life.

HMS Beaver brought up the funeral procession from Esquimalt to HBC's wharf, where the coffin was placed in the hearse, which, preceded by a detachment of marines with arms reversed, and the band of HMS Sutlej playing the Dead March in Saul, followed by Capt Pike and a large number of officers and crew of the ship, slowly made its way up Fort st to Christ Church. The rear of the procession was made up by a number of officers from Sutlej. The funeral cortege then retraced their steps, to Beaver preceded by the band playing a lively march and returned to Esquimalt. Buried at Victoria.

Died suddenly in Esquimalt, VI, Sep 11, 1864, George Crute, carpenter's mate, HMS Sutlej. It appeared that deceased who, although a large stout man, had been subject to fainting fits, went out with some comrades to walk, and calling in at Bland's had a glass of cider to drink. He shortly after complained of a pain, and went out, returning in a few minutes and asking for a drop of ginger brandy, which he thought would do him good. After drinking it, he leant over the counter a moment, and then went out, when he immediately fell down. His comrades picked him up, and were horrified to see that he was dying. A vehicle was procured and he was at once conveyed to Esquimalt, but the poor man died before he could be taken aboard his ship. [name not listed on Veterans cemetery plaque]

Died at Victoria, VI, Feb 4, 1865, Cecilia, wife of Dr J S Helmcken, Esq, and eldest d/o Sir James Douglas, KCB. We deeply regret to announce the death of Mrs Helmcken, wife of Honorable the Speaker of Legislative Assembly. Deceased lady suffered for some days from a severe attack of inflammation of the lungs and expired Feb 4, 1865. She was the eldest d/o Sir James Douglas, and leaves a large circle of relatives and friends in both colonies by whom her loss will be severely felt. Sincere sympathy of the entire community is with the bereaved husband and family who have thus suddenly been deprived of their dearest friend. On Sun next Christ Church will be hung with mourning, in memory of the late Mrs Helmcken, a mark of respect to the family of Sir James Douglas who have attended service there regularly since the erection of the building, as also to the worthy Rector, in whose family the had of death has made sad havoc. Funeral – The burial of this estimable and deeply lamented lady took place yesterday. From an early hour in the morning flags in all parts of the city were displayed at halfmast, and as the hour approached crowds of sympathizing friends, among whom were His Excellency the Governor, ML's, Officers of the Navy, &c, took their way to Christ Church. At 3 o'clock the mournful procession was observed approaching from Dr Helmcken's residence, and soon it reached the church, when the coffin was borne into the edifice, preceded by Rev A C Garrett, Archdeacon Gilson and Rev E Cridge, the last reading the appropriate service. Rev Archdeacon then occupied the desk and read the usual portions from the ritual, after which 'Dead March in Saul' was performed on the organ. The coffin was then again placed in the hearse and conveyed to the cemetery, followed by nearly 1,000 persons. Arrived at the grave the beautiful and touching burial service was read and the 'narrow house' soon hid all that was mortal of the lamented deceased from the sight of her disconsolate relatives and their sorrowing friends. The bodies of 2 infant children of the deceased, who had been buried in the garden adjoining Dr Helmcken's residence, were also interred at the same time, in accordance with a previous expressed wish of their mother. It may, perhaps mitigate the intensity of the grief of the bereaved husband to know that so deep and general sympathy is felt for him in his heavy affliction.

Died at Victoria, VI, Mar 23, 1865, Dominico Ambrosio, aged 30, n/o Portofino, Italy. Funeral from their late residence on Store st near Pandora. The 2 fishermen were found drowned near the entrance to the harbour. They had gone out on the previous morning in company with 2 other boats to fish at Esquimalt, and not being successful did not return with the others, who came back the same evening. Nothing further was heard from them by their companions till yesterday, when 2 Songish Indians who were coming into the harbour in a canoe discovered the boat floating half-filled with water, and on hearing it found the bodies of the unfortunate men, one with his head hanging in the water, his feet having caught in the net, and the other lying in the bottom of the boat. The Indians hastened into town and gave information to the friends of the deceased, and were at once sent back to bring in the bodies, which was done, information being at the same time sent to the Police. A fellow countryman of the drowned men, giving evidence at the inquest which was held, states that one of them was still warm when he stripped off the clothing – a rather strange circumstance. The boat was considerably damaged and the nets destroyed. Funeral attended by about 150 Italians and Greeks.

Died at hospital, Victoria, VI, Mar 29, 1865, Japo, a Kanaka, of dysentery. A vehicle was yesterday sent by the rector of Christ Church to the ferry to convey the remains to their place of interment. The van was kept waiting for a long time, while Reid, the ferryman, sent 2 men to the hospital for the coffin, but, as they were unable themselves to carry it, and could obtain no assistance, they returned without the corpse. Meanwhile the minister, sexton, and driver with his 2 horses, were kept waiting with submissive patience for something to be done. What eventually was done we did not learn.

Apr 1, 1865 - First death at Leech River – Thomas Harris, found by Mr Keast in a state of exhaustion lying on the snow. He begged for something to eat, declaring that he had tasted nothing for many hrs. The sufferer was unable to stand on his legs, and seemed to have been drinking. He was removed, and everything was done for the sufferer, but relief came too late, and the poor man died. In the absence of any government representative a meeting of miners was held, over which Mr Keast was asked to preside and the depositions of several parties were taken as in cases of a coroner's inquest. We believe instructions will be sent to have the corpse interred on the spot.

Apr 11, 1865 - An elopement - Romance is a rare commodity in Victoria, and anything approaching an elopement consequently becomes intensely refreshing. Idlers and town gossipers were busy last evening with the names of Mr H___n, a gay young Lothario, probably just out of his minority, and well known from his former connection with the 'all 'ot' business, and a certain buxom damsel of not more than 16 summers, whose bright eyes used to emit electric sparks from behind the bar of a hotel at the S end of Government st. According to the accepted version of the story, the flight took place from the hotel in question after nightfall, everything of course having been preconcerted by the young cavalier and a fast friend with whom she had been seen careering through the streets during the day; the maiden went out about dusk 'a-shopping' and the faithful swain being at hand, with special license in his pocket, the loving pair went before the parson and speedily were made one. They then quietly proceeded to a certain luscious retreat not 100 miles from Beacon Hill, where quarters had been secured, and were the honeymoon will be spent, provided the 'stern parent' does not interfere. That individual, meanwhile, was left to the care of the 'fast friend,' who undertook to put him off the scent, which he did by informing him sympathizing of the elopement, and then sending him off about dark to Saanich in quest of the runaways, where of course he won't find them.

Accidentally drowned near Esquimalt, VI, May 15, 1865, Joseph Robinson and William Nixon, both composers in 'Chronicle' office. [May 15, 3]...bodies not found.

Robinson was a younger b/o Sue Robinson, the well-known actress, and had appeared on the stage himself. He had been at Victoria for the last 4 or 5 years.

Died by drowning, Joseph Robinson, Victoria, VI, aged 24. Jun 27 -Victoria fire dept are requested to attend in citizen's dress, funeral of their late brother fireman, Joseph Robinson, from Deluge Engine House. Body of Joseph Robinson, one of the young printers who were drowned several weeks ago, was found floating in Esquimalt harbor by an Indian, who at once caused information to be conveyed to Sgt Blake. The body, which was not as much disfigured as would be supposed, was placed in a canoe and covered over with brush. Some friends of deceased went down to Esquimalt and recognized the body without any difficulty. Inquest. The body is at present on Government land, but will be brought up to the city.

Nixon has been in Victoria, VI since 1858, previous to which time he resided some years in CA. He was an excellent workman, but of rather dissipated habits, as was his companion.

Body of W A Nixon, compositor, who was lately drowned, was found Jun 28 close to the spot where the remains of his unfortunate companion, J B Robinson, were picked up a few days ago. Inquest at Ship Tavern, Esquimalt. Funeral from Tiger Engine House, of which he was a member. Body was discovered with his coat and hat off, and some suppose that Robinson may have fallen overboard, and that Nixon in making an effort to save him was drowned.

May 20, 1865, - US Consul offers a $50 reward for recovery of bodies of the 2 unfortunate printers, William A Nixon and Joseph Robinson, who were drowned at Esquimalt. Sum of $25 will be paid for the body of either.

The accused, who is an old woman of a strong gipsy cast, denied the imputation and urged upon the Court the serious character of her own ailments and grievances. Dr Powell stated that London was lying in a precarious condition and it was highly essential for his recovery that he should be kept quiet and undisturbed. Magistrate asked Mrs London if she had any friends who would engage to keep her out of the way for some days. Accused touchingly replied that she had no friend save her husband. Magistrate said she must be remanded for 1 day, and in the meantime she might make arrangements to be released. She was later ordered to find security to keep the peace towards her husband for 3 months, or in default to suffer 17 days' imprisonment.

Jun 13, 1865, 3 – Three men named respectively Taylor, Turner and Bannerman, left Victoria in a canoe for Nanaimo. When off Trial I the wind commenced to blow rather fresh, and they put in to land. Taylor refused to go any further; but the other 2 being determined to proceed on their journey, pushed off in the canoe and spread a blanket for a sail. They had only, however, got a short distance from the shore when the canoe upset, and the 2 men were left struggling in the water. Taylor was about to run for assistance when the men called upon him for God's sake not to leave, but to remain and endeavor to save them. No assistance, however, could be rendered, and the unfortunate men were drowned within hail of shore.

The last words that Bannerman shouted before he sank were, 'It was all Turner's fault.' Bannerman (a Scotchman) was about 30, and his companion (an American), 34. The whole of the party had been working lately for Mr Morris, on Craigflower rd. The casualty occurred about 8, the party having camped for some time on the shore. Taylor ran into town and acquainted the police with the above melancholy circumstance. It was then too late to look for the bodies, but a search will be instituted today. Body of Turner found Jul 6 in vicinity of Trial I.

Jul 27, 1865, 3 – The 'best paying claims' in Cariboo are the 'hurdy-gurdy' or dance houses, where the miners have a chance of indulging in that rarest of mining luxuries – a dance, with a real female for a partner. These institutions are in full blast on Williams Ck, and often take in as much as $200/night. The charge for a dance is $1 and the 'engagement cards' of the fair ones are as eagerly sought for and as rapidly filled up as at our balls in Victoria. FrHx/Mark Corbiniere, aged 30, eldest s/o Mr P Corbiniere, merchant of Victoria, VI, was most unfortunately drowned Aug 9, 1865 at Langford lake. About 50 of our Fr citizens went out to the lake to enjoy a picnic; the party partook of lunch, after which dancing was resumed, and while this was going on Mr Corbiniere left the company and went to the water edge where some boys were bathing. He then appears to have taken off his clothes, entered the water and swam to near the middle of the lake. Afterwards the boys noticed that he had not appeared, but do not seem to have been apprehensive of danger, and did not join the rest of the party for about ½ hour, when they related the circumstance to a few of the party. There was nothing in the shape of a boat or canoe on the lake, and although some friends went into the water they failed to detect the missing man. Shouts were raised, and fancying that they heard a reply further search was abandoned, and the seekers returned to the festivities. The missing man, however, did not appear, and the alarm then became general. On returning to the lake the party found the clothes still lying upon the bank, and it was evident to them that the unfortunate man had met with a watery grave. Information was at once conveyed to town, and several friends of the deceased left during the evening for the lake, taking with them a boat and grapples to endeavor to find the body; Aug 11, 3 – Search for Mr Corbiniere...; Aug 14, 3 – Mr Corbiniere's Body Found; Inquest – Aug 15, 3.

One of the murderers of the crew of schooner Thorndyke had been arrested by two native constables belonging to Comox, and lodged in jail at Nanaimo. Sparrowhawk went up as far as Cape Mudge, where her appearance seemed to cause considerable consternation among the Indians, and it is hoped that her visit will have the effect of preventing any further outbreak among the tribes in that vicinity. The authorities are certainly to be commended for the alacrity with which steps are taken now-a-days to quell disturbances occurring among the natives on the coast, and to bring wrongdoers to justice. Such a course will have the effect of impressing the Indians more than anything else that could be devised, with a salutary belief in the firmness and power of those who rule over them, will render the life of the white man more secure in his distant abode, and in the end be more humane to the untutored savage himself.

Killed at Cowichan, VI, Dec, 1865, an elderly man named William Cooper [by Charles Caldwell] . It appears that 2 men were engaged in removing goods from a canoe at Harris' when an altercation arose through one of them having split the canoe by dropping a bag of flour into it. The parties seem to have become incensed at one another and in a paroxysm of anger the man who caused the trifling accident was struck by the other on his face with a gun. They met with no ice of consequence until Langley was reached, where they concluded to abandon their canoe and betake themselves to terra firma...; Jan 16, 1866 - H Nind, Esq for many years a Stipendiary Magistrate of BC, resigned his commission and took his departure for Aus last week. Mr Nind was an upright and gentlemanly officer, and endeared himself to a large circle of friends, who will regret his departure.

Dec 28, 1865, 3 - It appears that on Xmas morning a Mr Warner, well known in this city, and a b-i-l of Mr Davis, the lighthouse keeper, started with his wife and a man of the name of Linton, a tailor, in a Whitehall boat for Race Rocks, intending to make a family party to commemorate the season. The boat was stocked with provisions, a portion of the usual supplies, which from some inadvertency had not been forwarded in due time. Upon passing Esquimalt, the sea being very rough, they pulled into the harbor and obtained the assistance of 2 men, Bill Saunders and Fred Simmons. They had nearly reached their destination when the boat was caught in a tide rip and capsized, precipitating the unfortunate occupants into the water. The loud cries for help immediately attracted attention at the lighthouse, and the residents were horror struck at the scene they were dammed to witness without the power to render the slightest aid. Warner rose twice to the surface, throwing up his arms, with agonizing appeals to his relations on the rock. The hopeless shrieks of the drowning resounded through the air, and yet there was no available means of rescue at hand to snatch the victims from a watery grave. At Race Rocks where human lives may be in peril at any hour of the day or night, complacent officialdom with an ostentatious affectation of retrenchment, decides there shall be no boat, not even a canoe, in the event of an emergency. Saunders in a fit of desperation, clambers on the boat, now bottom upwards, and clings to it, to use the words of an eye witness, 'like a bear,' and drifts seawards. For a few moments the waves float him within 20 yds of land, but, alas, no rope can be thrown to him and it transpires that the authorities have provided no life buoy as a provision against such a catastrophe. From a few minutes past 1:00 until 3:30 the boat with its hapless living freight remains in sight and then disappears. From all we can learn there would have been no loss of life if the keepers of the lighthouse had been granted a boat in response to their reiterated representations to the official authorities. The lifeboat originally used was withdrawn by the Surveyor-General for some reason and never replaced. The fate of Saunders is uncertain, but scarcely any hope is entertained that he can survive. The ubiquitous Costello, better known by his alias, of course turned up, having by some magical foresight come to the conclusion that something wrong had happened. He went out in his boat and upon arriving at the lighthouse gleaned the details of the affair and returned to town with Mrs Davis, who subsequently waited upon the Colonial Secretary with a report of the tragedy. It is only due to the public that some investigation should be instituted with reference to the gross negligence of those concerned in not providing for such a disastrous contingency.

This is the first death that has occurred since the ship came into harbor, and the 2nd since her commission, Jul 6, 1864, the 1st case of mortality having taken place at sea. This speaks well for the health of the crew. Remains will be conveyed to Victoria from Esquimalt on a gun carriage, and attended by a number of marines and seamen from the ship. Procession was met at the Albion Foundry, Store st, by the Volunteer Band, and the procession moved off to Christ Church. The usual volleys were fired over the grave of deceased by a party of marines, after which the procession headed by the band marched through town back to Esquimalt. Buried at Victoria.

Mar 28, 1866 - A few minutes before sailing of Del Norte, Sheriff Naylor took charge, under a writ of habeas corpus issued from Supreme Crt, of a little orphan girl, about 13, d/o late Richard Smith of Saanich. It appears that previous to the demise of Mrs Smith, some 3 or 4 years ago, she was visited by Mrs Harris and Mrs Cridge, and having a large family of young and helpless children she entrusted 2 of her little girls, in case of her death, to the guardianship of Mrs Harris. The children have been properly looked after ever since, and the position held by Mrs Harris as their guardian was recognized and confirmed by the father, who is now also dead. The elder girl was placed by Mrs Harris with a Mrs George, who upon leaving the colony transferred the child without the knowledge or authority of Mrs Harris, to Mrs Robertson of View st. The child was permitted to remain with Mrs Robertson until that lady had sold off her property and was about to leave for the States, when Mrs Harris interfered on the child's behalf, and as it appeared that the latter would be taken away from the colony, a writ was obtained by Messrs Pearkes & Green, and the child brought before Chief Justice Needham, who at once confirmed Mrs Harris' claim to her control, and directed that she be delivered up to her guardian. Apr 11, 3 - Legislative Council... Considerable discussion ensued...drew attention to fact that not a piece of consecrated ground had been set aside for interment in any of the districts outlying Victoria, which he looked upon as a serious evil. He had been made aware of this circumstance from enquiring into the estate of a man who recently died, leaving 7 orphan children unprovided for. The father, who was found dead on Saanich rd, left a few things behind him, which realized some $150, and undertakers and everybody grabbed at it. Seeing a charge made of $36 for conveying the body to the grave he felt inclined to disallow it, but was informed that there was no other burial ground except the Victoria cemetery to which the body could be conveyed, not even at Esquimalt, and he hoped that the attention of the Legislature would be drawn to this fact...Apr 12, 3 - A Card...Sir - Our attention has been drawn to your report of the debates in the Leg Council, from some remarks made concerning the estate of deceased Richard Smith, late of Saanich rd. From your published reports the Undertakers made a grab of $36 for conveying his remains to the grave. Now as we were the Undertakers in question, we have only to state that no such charge was made as that referred to by the Judge. Our bill for the whole funeral expenses was only $30 - viz: $10 for hearse w/2 horses, and the attendance of 2 men for going a distance of some 6 or 8 miles into the country and back to cemetery; for the coffin we only charged $20 , making in all, as above $30 - which is much below our usual charges for a funeral of that description...We would only add that if all our charges, and that of the public, were in keeping with the above, we very much fear that the professions of Undertaker and Judge would soon have to shoulder their blankets for Big Bend. Yours respectfully, Swigert & Teague; Apr 26 - In Probate Court Chief Justice appointed Mr/Mrs Thomas Harris to be the legal guardians of the orphan children of Henry Smith of Saanich, deceased. Administrator of the estate paid $195 into court..

Died at Victoria, VI, Apr 15, 1866, Henry Norton Tooby, aged 34, of Gloucester, Eng. CA papers please copy.

News/The community was shocked Apr 15, 1866 by the announcement that Henry Norton Tooby, lately associated with the press of Victoria, VI, had committed self-destruction by nearly severing his head from his body with a razor. Those who had sufficient taste for the morbid, and could revel in such sights as are unfolded to view in Madame Tussaud's chamber of horrors, were fully gratified on repairing to the premises of Thomas Cretney, Fort st, in a back chamber of whose house lay the unfortunate suicide weltering in blood, his throat cut to the spine. It appears that Mr Tooby, who has lately been out of employment, had given way to intemperance to excess and at the time he committed the fatal and fearful deed was suffering from delirium. He went to bed early Apr 14 in Mr Cretney's bed chamber and rose at midnight and left the house. Towards 3 he went down to the gaol and demanded a policeman, alleging that burglary had been committed. He was directed to the officer on the beat, but the next thing known of him was that he knocked for re-admission at Cretney's door, but without success, and he then roused the next door neighbour, Mr Whear, who opened the door for him. The unhappy man after gaining admission to Cretney's house then asked Mr Cretney for the loan of his shaving glass, which he took into a back room or scullery, and there seating himself on the floor, habited in a common blue shirt and trowsers, and his arm bared for the fatal stroke, took away his own life. Mr Cretney heard a groan and a thump, but nothing more. On looking into the chamber poor Tooby was a bleeding corpse. Mr Cretney at once gave information to the Police.

Inquest. Deceased was n/o Gloucester, Eng, aged c 34; and he leaves, we believe, a wife and 1, if not 2 children in Eng. From statements made by him, we believe that he has been in service of Coutts & Co, bankers, London, and was for some time engaged on the reporting staff of Daily Telegraph, chiefly as theatrical and literary critic, in which branch he was very proficient. Mr Tooby was possessed of an excellent memory, and a fund of anecdote, and his intimate acquaintance with the sayings and doings of the celebrated litterateurs who frequent the Savage Club made him a highly entertaining companion. His disposition was mild and amiable, and we do not think that he possessed an enemy in the place. The fearful passion which has added another to its long list of victims in this country was contracted, we have been told, through family cares, fostered no doubt of late by the depression caused by poverty. Inquest. The remains were placed in Mr Lewis' plumed hearse and conveyed to Christ Church, followed by a respectable procession of friends; Seebright Green and Mr Jacob being chief mourners, the body was then conveyed to the cemetery.

Found drowned at Victoria, VI, Apr 18, 1866, a little orphan half-breed boy, aged 8, adopted ch/o Mr Gerritsen, baker, of Humboldt st. Deceased was discovered drowned in a deep well in the rear of the premises. The boy had been missing the previous evening. Inquest - a young boy named Moses deposed that he had last seen deceased in company with 2 Indian boys and a little girl. One of the boys, who came from San Juan I, was playing horses with the deceased, and driving him in the vicinity of the well by holding the back of his coat. The jury having inspected the body and the well, which had a small opening at the top just sufficient to admit the body, at the suggestion of the magistrate returned an open verdict of 'found drowned', leaving it to the police to institute further inquiry with a view to ascertaining whether any foul play had been used. Jury coupled with the verdict a recommendation that police keep a watchful eye upon persons who transgressed the law by leaving their wells exposed. On the way to Beacon Hill there is a dangerous well left quite open, into which a little boy fell a short time ago and had a narrow escape of his life.

Jul 24, 1866, 3 - Horrible and Mysterious Murder... Honourable Allen Francis, American Consul, was in the act of crossing a vacant lot at rear of his Pandora st residence when he observed a man's hand raised above a clump of low fern bushes, near Johnson st. Believing the hand to be that of some person beckoning for assistance, Consul directed his steps towards it, and on reaching the spot was shocked to find the nude body of a man in the midst of the clump, with the face and head so shockingly bruised, mutilated and bloody, that recognition was almost impossible. Only articles on the man were a black woollen sock, and a Glengarry cap, that lay on the dead man's hip. Impressed with the idea that a horrible murder had been committed, Mr Francis gave the alarm to the neighbours, and information was conveyed to police officers, by whom the body was taken in charge. It was subsequently recognized as that of Edward Urin, a Cornishman, aged c 34, a carpenter by trade. One side of deceased's body was scratched as though it had been dragged for some distance to the place where it was found, and subsequently a pool of coagulated gore was discovered about 10' distant on a trail that leads diagonally across the lot from Pandora to Johnson st. It is believed that deceased, who was a man of very dissipated habits, and who, when last seen was drunk, had lain down in a place remote from that where the body was found, and that he was discovered asleep by some prowling Indians, who beat him to death with stones and sticks for the sake of securing his clothes and what few valuable were on his person. The body was quite warm when police reached the spot, and the impression prevails that the murder must have been committed between

4 and 6 yesterday morning. A half-breed, named Joseph Chapeneau, was taken into custody during the forenoon, and committed to jail on suspicion of having been concerned in the affair.

Inquest - Jul 25, 3 - Some more arrests of suspected parties have been made by police, and there is some ground for supposing that the actual perpetrators of the deed were not Indians. Jul 28, 3 - Indians have been arrested upon whom were recognized some of deceased's clothing and evidence is now thought to be complete. Jul 31, 1866, Murdered Man's Burial [Uren] - Letter to Editor - This morning, about 8 of the clock, my attention was directed to a something upon John, the teamster's wagon, in the shape of a coffin. Having nothing at present to do (more is the pity) I followed the dray and found it lead to the cemetery - the last deposit for the dead - but I was struck with the fact, that there was no clergyman, priest or minister, to perform those religious rights acknowledged, accepted and looked for by all Christian communities. I saw, airs, the barbarism - worse than that of Tyburn - of a murdered man's - not a murderer's - body thrown into a hole by THREE men. The Lord have mercy on his soul, I pray for him, for there was no Priest present to offer the prayers for the dead. But I stop not here - 8 days have passed since the man (Cornish) was murdered - six days (in the hot suns of Jul) since the inquest was held; why was the putrid corpse, with maggots pouring out of it, enough to contaminate all the fish in the harbour, allowed to remain unburied? ...Shall I go on, or wait for the answer of some of the canting, political humbugs. Aug 15, 1866 - Steamer Fideliter was searched yesterday by a policeman, attended by an anxious father, for a young Victoria girl who had clandestinely left her home, and, it was feared, was about to elope with a man to whose honor, it was stated, she had 'trusted not wisely but too well.' A close examination failed to discover the truant young lady, and steamer sailed at usual hour. Girl has not yet been found. Aug 16 - It was a married woman, not a maid, who disappeared...The husband of the woman is a gardener. She has 3 children - one of which she has left with her lord; the other 2 she has taken away. It is now believed that she is secreted in a house near town, and a certain locality is very closely watched.

Miner and His Attributes - the gold miner is rather an enigmatical character, pecuniarily speaking he is generous to a fault, his purse and cabin are alike open to friend and stranger, countryman and cosmopolite, but sad is the havoc made upon the finer attributes of the human soul by a few seasons in the mines. The man in the mines and the same man at home, with influence of a loving mother, wife or virtuous sisters around him - bear no analogy to each other. The young man on starting for the mines casts into his trunk, the broadcloth coat, linen shirt and kid glove, and into the same trunk, he deems it necessary to cast his code of ethics, to be resumed only with the fine clothing. Now I can see the congruity in change of apparel, but the mutation of character, why this? Why should a man on changing his location, slip his character, as a serpent casts his skin? ...

Dog Mania

'It is not good for man to be alone' and the dog mania here would create the impression that the miner thought the sage had reference to the canine species as his companion, for every man has 1 dog and some 3 or 4; the actual use of any of these brutes, I fail to see. The best fighting dog is the highest prized, and they all have to fight as much as they are able, little and big, young and old, halt and sound, all must fight; indeed so frequent are the poor brutes urged to fight, that when 2 meet they seem to look upon an encounter as inevitable, so they pitch in at once, and an unearthly yell from the 1st observer is the signal for all the animal creation to muster (biped and quadruped) and as long as the fight continues, the yells of the crowd would out rival the war cry of any tribe of savages. The infernal regions broke loose could not produce a greater tumult; such disgusting brutal amusement is a disgrace to any semi-civilized community.

Dog Cotillions

Each dog attends his master to the saloon in the evening, and when the quadrille is formed each couple is backed by one of the animals, and it is truly laughable to see the creatures following their masters through the intricate evolutions of the dance, but like 'Old Dog Tray' they are faithful and kind, and kicks cannot drive them away.

Hurdy Gurdy Damsels

there are 3 descriptions of above named 'ladies' here, they are unsophisticated maidens of Dutch extraction, from 'poor but honest parents' and morally speaking, they really are not what they are generally put down for. They are generally brought to America by some speculating, conscienceless scoundrel of a being commonly called a 'Boss Hurdy.' This man binds them in his service until he has received about 1,000 % of his outlay. The girl's receive a few lessons in the terpsichorean art, are put into a kind of uniform, generally consisting of a red waist, cotton print skirt, and half mourning headdress resembling somewhat (in shape) the topknot of a male turkey, this uniform gives them quite a grotesque appearance. Few of them speak English, but they soon pick up a few popular vulgarisms, and like so many parrots, they use them indiscriminately on all occasions; if you bid one of them good morning, your answer will likely be, 'itsh sphlaid out' or 'bet your life.' The hurdy style of dancing differs from all other schools. If you ever saw a ring of bells in motion, you have seen the exact positions these young ladies are put through during the dance, the more muscular the partner, the nearer the approximation of the ladies pedal extremities to the ceiling, and the gent who can hoist his gal the highest is considered the best dancer; the poor girls as a general thing earn their money very hardly. Hurdy Fiddler's

This class of musician (pardon the misnomer) have also a school of their own, in which melody and euphony have no part. Noise is the grand object. The one who can make the most noise on the fiddle, and shout his calls the loudest, is (amongst the hurdy artists) considered the most talented.

Sometimes to increase the power of the orchestra (which seldom consists of more than 2 violins - more properly fiddlers in this case) they sing and play, and in passing up Broadway Barkerville in the evening, you may hear them letting off steam as if their lungs were made of cast iron, and the notes forged with a sledge hammer. I should imagine the hurdy fiddler's life, rather disagreeably, but as they are men with no musical talents whatever, they have no alternative but the dance house on the hand cart.

Saloons and Proprietors

The 3 principal saloons here, would really be no disgrace to Montgomery st, San Francisco, they don't 'keep on hand' the best liquors and cigars, as is generally the case, but they serve it out to their customers. The proprietors are gentlemen, each of these saloons have a bevy of the terpsichorean damsels, and they have gay times every evening.

The dapper landlord of the Gazelle Saloon is quite the 'ne plus ultra' of his profession, courteous, funny, the leader of the fashion, and quite the lady's man; he is a little annoyed sometimes by a descendant of Ham following him a little too close in the hat line, but 'Tommy' is regarded as a jolly little fellow, and his dog 'Cox' is the champion of the creek.

Feminine

We have amongst us a sprinkling of daughters of Eve, but I am sorely afraid they have digressed a little further from the path of rectitude than their erring mother; however, let those who are impeccable cast the first stone. 'Scorn not the vilest, they once were pure;' cruel deception with a concatenation of unfortunate circumstances (and not innate depravity) having placed many of them in the depths, and it would be almost as hard for one of them to recover the lost track of virtue, 'as for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle.' Poor, unhappy woman!... I never look upon one of these women but I think of the poor mother who through suffering brought her into the world, watched, wept and smiled over the tiny bed for years; what a blessing that the loving mother is not prescient of her little fondling's future. Signed, C Sharp, Richfield, Williams Creek, Cariboo, BC.

Died at London, Eng, Jul 15, 1866, after a long illness, at the house of his aunt, Miss Malins, aged 34, George Hunter Cary, Esq, barrister-at-law, late A-G of VI. Mr Cary came to VI in 1859 under auspices of his friend, Sir Hugh Cairns, now Solicitor Gen under the Derby government, and filled office of A-G during administration of Sir James Douglas until 1863, when he obtained leave for the benefit of his health to proceed to Cariboo, Mr D B Ring holding interim appt. Mr Cary having returned to Victoria in the fall of that year he resumed his duties. An over-worked brain with a weak constitution, however, told upon his health, and visibly affected his keen intellect. His unfitness to act as legal adviser to the Crown became manifest, and he was induced to resign in 1864. Mr Cary continued to practice in Victoria until his friends became so alarmed at the rapid decay of his mental powers that he was persuaded to return to Eng, and accordingly left the Colony with Mrs Cary some months ago. In his profession, during his palmy days, late Mr Cary ranked high, and had his mental and physical energies not yielded to the strain, it is but doing his memory justice, to say that he would have advanced far beyond most men of his age in the honorable calling to which he belonged. Of an eccentric, and sometimes irritating temperament towards his opponents, his arguments were nevertheless invariably treated with respect, and although somewhat rash and impetuous in dealing with questions that came before him his views and opinions were always regarded as sound. Many of the Acts now forming the statutory law of this Colony were traced by his pen.

Cariboo/BkHx/Oct 12, 1866 - Mr Cox, accompanied by Chief Constable Fitzgerald, for the purpose of holding an inquest on the remains of the man found near Beaver Pass... the following particulars. Mr Cox proceeded to the spot, which is distant nearly ½ mile below Edwards' Ranch at a point where the wagon road intersects the old trail, and swore in a jury who examined the remains, which they found lying in a hole into which the body must have been thrown after the murder had been committed. Nothing remained but a mere skeleton, the clothes still undisturbed; on the back part of the skull was observed a bullet hole, but no corresponding perforation could be noticed on any other portion of it, thus showing conclusively that the shot must have come from behind; the teeth were perfect in both jaws, but the lower and upper back teeth appeared to be filled with gold. The clothes consisted of a black double breasted vest, blue serge pants, with drawers, a grey undershirt, and a heavy greyish brown overshirt, a small white neckerchief, a pair of heavy nailed Wellington boots (No 8's); a belt was lying by his side with a brass hook and eye; no hat could be found. The following articles were found in the pockets of his clothing, and taken charge of by Mr Fitzgerald: A silver hunting case watch, maker's name John Tobias, Liverpool; a silver pencil case, bearing on the seal initials C M B; a new tin drinking cup, with the name C M Blessing scratched on the bottom; a sheath knife was found at his feet, on the handle of which was carved the initials C M B; in one of the pockets there was a small clasp purse containing a few grains of fine gold wrapped up in a piece of tea paper. One of the pockets of his pants was turned inside out. Coroner's jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against some person or persons unknown. [Body has since been recognized as that of C M Blessing. A young man named Barry is in custody at Yale, on suspicion of being the murderer].

Oct 18, 3 - From W D Moses, barber, of this place [Cariboo], we gather the following particulars about the murdered man: It appears that when he was coming up here last spring he met Blessing at New Westminster, and becoming acquainted with him they travelled together as far as Quesnelmouth, which they reached May 28; here Moses had business that detained him for a few days, and Blessing feeling anxious to go on determined to start on the morning of May 30. On the evening previous to his departure they got into conversations with a man named James Barry, a perfect stranger to both, who said he was going up to Williams Ck next morning, and it was agreed that they should go together; they had several drinks at Brown & Gillis Saloon, in paying for which Blessing changed a $20 bank note, remarking to Moses that he had a few more left, and at the same time telling him that he did not like the looks of the stranger. He promised to meet Moses at Van Winkle, where he said he had some friends; since that night Moses has neither seen nor heard of the man. While travelling together he informed Moses that he had been mining on Lightning Ck in 1862, but had returned the same year to CA, and had lived in Calaveras Co ever since; that he was an American by birth, and belonged to some of the Eastern states; he also told him that his name was Charles Blessing, and observed at the same time that it was a very uncommon name and he (Moses) would be very apt to remember it if anything ever happened to him. Moses left Quesnelmouth and arrived at Van Winkle Jun 1, but could hear nothing of the man; about a week after he arrived on Williams Ck he met Barry and asked him what he had done with his 'chummy?' to which he replied that he left him on the road and had not seen him since. Moses thought no more about the matter until he saw the name of the murdered man in the Sentinel, when the circumstances above related flashed across his memory at once, and he hurried to the Magistrate and gave the information. This man Barry, on whom a very strong suspicion now rests as being the murderer, left the creek in great haste the day after news arrived of the discovery of the body. It is said he is well known as a bad character to the police of Victoria, where he kept a hurdy-gurdy dance house in Johnson street last winter. In the early part of the summer he was arrested here on a charge of stealing a pair of gumboots, but discharged for want of evidence. Oct 29 - James Barry committed for trial by Magistrate for murder of Blessing; Dec 31 - remains of Blessing, the murdered Caribooite, have been decently interred by the miners..

For 9 days the flag on the rocks was raised at half-mast, but it was not observed by passing vessels, and the man was without medical attendance during his illness. Davies was aged 35, and came to this country in 1860, in ship Grecian, having been appointed to the position by Liverpool Board of Trade. He leaves a wife and 2 children. Body was brought up on Sir James Douglas for interment. Funeral from res/o Mr J Costello, Humboldt st. Dec 18, 3...calls for adoption of a system of signals whereby the wants of lightkeepers may be made known in town. About 1 year ago 5 persons were drowned in full sight of the rocks, and although 2 of the occupants clung to the craft and floated to and fro with the current for several hours, they were lost because there was no boat with which to rescue them. This want was afterwards supplied by the govt; but it appears that a small boat that can be manned by 1 person is needed in case of an accident to be sent to town for succor, as not more than 1 of the keepers can be spared from the rocks at a time. There is also a fine fog-bell lying idle on the rocks, although it was deposited there several months ago, and might be rung in case of need.

Wreck/Jan 9, 1867, 3 - Card of Thanks - Before taking my departure from this Island, I feel it my bounden duty to express my gratitude to the people of Victoria generally, for the kind and generous treatment I have received at their hands since misfortune overtook me. To Capt William Spring, of San Juan hbr, I am especially indebted for his noble conduct towards myself and ship-wrecked crew of ill-fated steamer Transport, when we were in distress on the west coast of the island. Pecuniary compensation cannot repay such generous services, and I trust government may soon reward him for this and his many other kind acts to suffering mariners. To Capt Francis, of schooner Alert, and his officers, I feel peculiarly grateful for the kindness shown to myself and crew under the same circumstances, kindness which I can never sufficiently return. Such men do honor to the country that claims them. John A Sands, Master of late steamer Transport. Mar 11, 3 - schooner Alert arrived from the West Coast, bringing the engine and other machinery of the wrecked steamer Transport.

To Comox belongs the honor of producing the largest oysters yet discovered on the Pacific Coast. 35 sacks, consigned to Mr H E Levy, of Government st, were brought down day before yesterday. These fine oysters are 3 times the size of those obtained in any other locality on the shores of this Island, and were the bed situated as nr San Francisco as it is to Victoria, it would be worth an independent fortune to the proprietors. Even as it is, we see no reason why Comox oysters cannot be profitably shipped to CA.

Died at Victoria, VI, at Royal hosp, Jan 25, 1867, from effects of a gunshot wound, received at Comox, a short time since, Henry Harrop, n/o Eng, aged 29. Henry Harrop, the unfortunate young Englishman who was shot about a month ago by Holder, of firm of Hart & Holder, at Comox, with a revolver, died where he had lain for 3 wks under medical treatment. Deceased was a farmer at Comox. Facts of the case, as gleaned, at the time were these. Holder had been drinking hard, and on the day of the shooting flourished a revolver in his own barroom. He was advised to fire off the charges, and emptied the chambers of the cylinder with the exception of one, when he aimed the revolver at Harrop and fired - the ball passing through the latter's body and lodging in his spine. Holder is out on bail taken by Justice Franklyn at Nanaimo, and is said to be at Comox. The fatal termination of the shooting will necessitate his immediate arrest and trial for homicide. Inquest - Jan 29, 3 - Comox Shooting Case. Jan 29, 2 - Remains of unfortunate Henry Harrop, were decently interred through the humane offices of Surveyor-General Pearse, who was present at the interment. William Lyons, a shipmate of deceased, desires us to express his grateful acknowledgements to Mr Pearse for the kind attention exhibited by him towards his departed friend. Jan 29, 2 -

Letter to Editor, signed John Holder...; Feb 5, 3 - Enquiry - Charles Coulter deposed that he was taking care of Holder when the shot was fired, and that Holder had the horrors from excessive drinking. James Robb knew that Holder had the horrors a few days before the shooting, and had noticed that he was very kind to the man after he had been shot. Dr Davie was recalled and testified to the nature of the wound, which was such as to cause death. The doctor said that he came to this country with Holder, and considered him a most respectable man. Jury returned a verdict that deceased came to his death from a pistol shot fired by John Holder, and that the said John Holder, at the time of firing the fatal shot, was laboring under an attack of delirium tremens. Holder was immediately committed to prison to stand his trial upon a charge of manslaughter.

Died at Royal Hosp, Victoria, VI, Feb 2, 1867, John White, late of Sooke, in this Island, n/o Ire, aged 35. John White was one of the poor fellows who was shot by the Sticken Indians in 1862. He was brought down to the hospital by a gunboat; he had received 15 grains of shot in his back and head, most of which were extracted. By reference to our files of end of Sep, 1862, the reader will get the case, which caused much excitement at the time. Since his discharge he has been cultivating a little farm at Sooke, where he overworked himself. Cause of death was an abscess in the back of his head, the bone being diseased, it is supposed, from the effects of one of the shot, which baffled the physicians. He was 4 wks in hospital.

At the conclusion of the shooting, Wilson was arrested, and Leo, glad to escape with an unperforated skin came on to Victoria...Leo was accused of alienating the affections of Wilson's wife at Walla Walla; that the guilty pair fled to BC; and finally opened a saloon at Kootenay; that Wilson, enraged followed them and finally overtook them, where he perpetuated a savage assault upon Leo...The attempt to kill the man failed and Wilson was put under $200 bonds - whether to appear for trial for attempting to kill the man, or as a punishment for being so poor a shot, does not appear.

Mar 21, 1867 a naval officer belonging to HMS Malacca, formerly of Mutine, who had just left RN hospital, proceeded in company with a brother officer to Skinner's farm for rifle exercise, and while in the act of trying a charge, the rifle suddenly and unexpectedly went off. No notice was taken of the circumstance as there was nothing apparently within reach of harm. The fatal missile, however, after travelling a distance of 500 yds entered a shanty belonging to John Madden, shepherd of Puget Sound Co, and after penetrating a door and wooden partition struck a half-breed child 11m old, and piercing its side made its exit and passed through the fleshy part of its mother's breast, inflicting an ugly though not dangerous wound. Dr Bellamy, RN hospital physician, attended the sufferers, but the child survived only a few hours. Police authorities on hearing of the occurrence sent office Taylor to Esquimalt when the gentleman who fired the fatal shot immediately proceeded with the officer to the magistrate and was bound over to appear at the inquest. The unfortunate gentleman only heard of the sad result of the mishap after returning home and was naturally very much overcome. May 13, 1867 - Last summer, a party of 5 Dutch dancing girls, popularly known as 'hurdies,' while on their way to the Boise mines, where they had been engaged to 'trip the light fantastic' in a lager beer cellar, were captured by Blackfoot Indians and conveyed to their village. It appears, from the statement of a mountaineer that the lives of these wretched creatures have been spared by their captors, and that as the daughter of Herodias danced before her royal uncle and pleased him, so these poor captives danced before the Blackfeet, and not only pleased him but have so wrought upon his superstitious feelings that they are treated with a kindness and respect amounting almost to veneration. Carefully guarded and attentively waited upon, they spend their days in sewing and chatting, but as night approaches...the scraping of 'cat-gut' is heard and wearily they retrace their steps to perform the nightly toil of 'dancing for life.' Will these poor girls ever regain their liberty? Is a question which time along can answer.

Jun 11, 1867 - Blessing murderer...trial, Richfield...; Jul 15, 3...I attended the trial of Barry, which excited a great deal of interest. It is the opinion of many with whom I have talked, after hearing the evidence, that there never was a more cold-blooded murder, and that the sentence was a righteous one. Barry was perfectly self-possessed throughout the trial. He retained his cool manner when brought up for sentence. He did not budge a muscle, and walked in and out of Court calmly and coolly. When the irons were put on him again, Barry said in the most unconcerned manner, 'So help me, God, I did not commit the murder, and I'll die like a man.' Aug 19, 3 - Barry, murderer of a miner named Blessing was hanged Aug 9. Barry made no confession or remarks, but was much depressed in spirits. Jun 24, 1867, 2 - Esquimalt Rd Tragedy...editorial. The death of Mr Walton, who was shot through the arm by an unknown assassin, some 2 ½ mo ago, occurred at res/o Capt Walker, Jun 22. The unfortunate man never rallied after receiving the fatal bullet, but sank gradually, day after day, until death put an end to his intense sufferings. Deceased, who was greatly respected, was aged c 52, unmarried, and n/o NB. He was a man of some means, acquired by mining at Cariboo, some 4 yrs ago; and while on his way down with his 'swag' was pursued and fired upon by highwaymen, but succeeded in escaping uninjured by putting spurs to his horse. The injury from the effects of which the poor man died was received while walking along Esquimalt rd, in the dusk of evening. He had called at Col Foster's to make inquiries with reference to a farm he had purchased from the Col, and paid the money for, on the morning of the same day; and it is believed the assassin supposed his victim had the purchase money on his person when he fired. The shot was fired from behind a bush at the roadside, near Col Foster's residence. The ball shattered Mr Walton's right arm, but he was enabled to gain a place of safety by running, and the main object of the murderer was frustrated. It is to be regretted that not the slightest clue exists that will lead to the arrest of the assassin. Body exhumed, inquest...

News/June 25, 1867 - We are shocked beyond expression at the intelligence of the sudden death of Leonard McClure, late one of the Editors of the Colonist, and for 8 yrs connected with the press of this Colony, June 14, 1867. As a writer, Mr McClure had few equals. He was forcible and witty, and in keen, butting sarcasm was unapproached by any writer on the coast. He was a good debater, and was leader of the Opposition in the last Assembly that met on the Island prior to Union. After leaving Victoria, in Jan last, he went to San Francisco, CA where, by a strange coincidence, one of the assistant Editors of the times having died, he was installed in his place, and in a brief space of time his marked ability raised him to position of Editor-in-Chief of that journal, a position he occupied up to the time of his demise. 'Death loves a shining mark!' Mr McClure leaves behind a heart-broken widow, to whom we tender our heartfelt sympathy in her great affliction. Leonard McClure died of Bright's disease. He was n/o Belfast, Ire, and brought up to the printing business. Early in life he visited Aus, and was connected with several papers in the colonies. He was c 31, and had been recently married...; June 26, 3 - Last Days of L McClure...

July 2, 1867 - fire of Sun evening on Deadman's I destroyed the Indian graves and remains. The Island has been used as a burial place by the Songish or Flathead Indians for many years. The dead were placed in boxes or square coffins and left above the ground to decay. All the 'big' men of the tribe - the Hyas tyhees and their wives - were sent to the Island for their last sleep. Carved images, intended to represent departed chiefs, generally appeared at the side of the boxes. The favorite weapons, canoes, trinkets, and occasionally a few blankets, were deposited by the side of the corpse in the belief that the right of possession did not cease with death, and that the more the deceased was encumbered with this world's goods when he departed for the happy hunting grounds, the more acceptable he would prove to the Great Spirit. All the relics and mementoes were destroyed on Sunday. The torch of some sacrilegious incendiary fired the shrubbery that covered the island, and the fire-fiend set forth his tongues in every direction. The flames raged all Sun, destroying nearly every consumable object on the island....trees, shrubbery and the relics were consumed while ghastly skeletons, blackened by fire and smoke, yesterday lay exposed on the ground. The scoundrel who fired the heap, if discovered, should be well punished. Jul 4, 3 - Peter Scully and Sebastian Henry Hebbard suspected, Scully arrested and charged....Hebbard fled to US...It is a fact worthy of remark that when the country swarmed with rough characters in '59 and '62, not a man of them ever offered to outrage the feelings of natives by disturbing their dead; and it is truly lamentable that the less turbulent times should have witnessed an act of vandalism so horrible as the wilful destruction of a burying-ground. Aug 17, 1867, 3 - Many of our readers will recollect a lady, one of the old pioneers of this country, who left this ck [Williams] for the Eastern States about 2 yrs ago. We allude to Mrs Lowe. News/Died at Victoria, VI, Oct 14, 1867, Frederick F Davis, aged 55. Funeral from ft of Bastion st. Deceased was better known to public through columns of press as 'F F D'. He committed suicide in back room of Mr J G McKay's Saloon, Bastion st, by swallowing strychnine. He had made two unsuccessful attempts earlier upon his life. Mr Davis was aged c 55, n/o Wales. He was originally intended for the Church; but at an early day left home and went to US, where he passed many years as school teacher, lawyer and editor. In 1856 he came to CA, and in 1859, having experienced religion, he received a call from Pt Townsend, WT to take charge of a church there. In the same year he resigned his charge and came across to Victoria and for some time was allowed to practice in petty criminal cases in police court. Subsequently he wrote many able articles for the Press [Victoria 1861 to 1862] and upon demise of that journal became attached to Daily Chronicle. His health has been feeble for past 18m, and the poor old man, incapacitated for steady employment, subsisted upon the charity of those who had known him in other and better days. Latterly, he might have been seen dragging himself painfully through the streets by means of a stick, and wearing upon his emaciated countenance an expression which told but too forcibly that life had become to him a burden. Deceased gentleman was a ripe scholar and an able writer; and but for the 'besetting sin' to which he alludes in his letter, would have occupied a prominent position in society. Inquest and suicide letter [he had to get someone else to write the letter [John McKay], but put it in terms to wouldn't be understood until after the deed] - Oct 15, 3.

Another melancholy suicide occurred Oct 30, 1867 at Victoria, VI. Charles Young, n/o Beath, Ayrshire, Sct, lately from Aus, strangled himself at a house on Government st by buckling one end of a leathern strap about his neck, tying the other end to his bedstead post. The deed was deliberate, from the fact that the strap proved too short to effect the purpose and deceased tore a piece from his Baltic shirt and tying it to one end of the strap gave it the required length....Deceased once occupied a prominent position in Aus, where he married; but after a few years his wife left him and came to

CA, whither he followed, and after a long search discovered her one evening singing upon the stage in a Melodeon. The discovery so exasperated Young that he sprang upon the stage and attempted to kill her. The woman escaped badly injured, and Young subsequently came to Victoria, and remained for some time in employ of Wilson & Murray. Latterly he drank very freely, and only 3 days ago appeared in Court to prosecute a man who he charged with having stolen a case of brandy and a sack of flour from his cabin.

Died at Victoria, VI, Apr 21, 1868, Martha Ann Booth, d/o William Booth, n/o Santa Clara, CA, aged 19. On Apr 21, 1868, an Indian engaged in fishing, discovered the body of a respectably dressed young lady floating, face downwards, in the water at Cadboro Bay. Police were notified, and the body - which bore the appearance of having been but a short time immersed - was brought to town, where it was identified as that of Miss Martha Booth, 3rd d/o Mr G Booth, a highly respectable citizen, who resides on Esquimalt rd, near its intersection with Craigflower. Miss Booth left her father's house Apr 20, telling her mother she would go to town for a short time. She was seen on Government/Fort sts, and Mr Evans, of the Willows, says she passed his house in the afternoon, going towards Cadboro Bay. From Mr Booth's house to Cadboro Bay is a distance of 6 ½ miles. So far as is known, she was not seen again alive. Search was made for her by her friends, but without success. The poor girl must have walked the entire distance, and is believed to have thrown herself into the water from the rocks that lie to the right of the road, by which one gains the beach and where the water is deep. This opinion is strengthened by the fact that her clothing is neither disarranged nor torn, which would not be the case had her death resulted from violence. Her hat and veil are missing, but it is thought that they floated off with the tide. Deceased was about 18. Family are plunged in deep grief. Inquest; Apr 23, 3...; Apr 25, 3 - Suicide at Cadboro Bay... fragments of a letter... hoop skirt lay coiled just as it must have fallen to ground on being unbuckled...; Apr 29, 3 - Edgar Fawcett - was slightly acquainted with deceased [gave evidence at inquest]...

A cheque of deposit for $1200 on Bank of BC was found on body, a box of caps, an old Meerschaum pipe, eye glass and a few coins. Inquest...Apr 25, 3...was an Irishman by birth, and resided in a room on Fisgard st, near Store.

Subsequently upon resigning his position, he settled here, and soon became one of our most energetic and wealthy citizens, worthily filling upon more than one occasion positions of trust to which he was elevated by the suffrages of his fellow citizens. Immediate cause of demise was paralysis. Chief mourners were Capt Moriarty, RN and Hon W J Macdonald. Among followers we noticed Rear-Admiral Hastings, Flag-Lt Brookes and Capt Dawkins, RN, Sir James Douglas, and most of our prominent citizens and pioneers.

King's farm, Cedar Hill, Victoria Dist, BC, was scene Jan 7, 1869 of a frightful accident, which resulted in death of a Cariboo miner named Peter Maguire. Unfortunate man was shooting w/a double-barrelled gun. Weapon was capped with hammers resting upon caps - a too common and dangerous practice, and while Maguire was in act of climbing a fence to obtain a shot at a grouse, one of hammers came in contact with a board, and gun went off, whole charge entering his left temple and passing through his head. When raised he was still breathing and Dr Davie, Jr, was sent for, but pronounced case hopeless. Inquest...upon being shot he fell, and his dog began to worry King's sheep, and when King appeared ran back to spot where his master was lying weltering in his blood. King, following the dog, discovered Maguire and did all in his power to save him.

Jan 19, 1869, 3 - John Livermore, old, odd habitue of police court, and almost the last of the old '58 gang, was arrested for about 200th time, on charge of selling whiskey to natives... sent to chain gang for 3 months... justice is satisfied and so is John, for he has comfortable quarters secured him for remainder of winter. Jan 29 - John Livermore, known for many years here as 'Whiskey John' died Jan 28 at hospital of a dropsical complaint. Livermore was n/o US, aged about 50. He came to colony in 1858 from CA, having been a hotelkeeper at Placerville, where he is said to have had respectable connections. During the 10 years that he figured in this locality he must have served out 50 short terms of imprisonment for selling whiskey to Indians. Contemporaneous with John Butts and 'Liverpool Jack', Whiskey John excelled both as a salesman among Indians, and has probably poisoned more natives than any other man, living or dead, on this northern coast. As an instance of retributive justice, we may state that Livermore has fallen a victim to the very vice he encouraged in his fellow men - drunkenness. Death found him in a state of wretchedness. His end was miserable, and his departure here is not regretted.

Feb 27, 1869 a drowning case of man named Clark - a stout, able-bodied fellow, well known in the district, but we believe, following the pursuit of goldminer when at Cariboo - called at a settler's house to borrow a flour bag, remarking that he wished to 'put something into it.' The settler, little imagining the tragic purpose the bag was destined to serve, loaned it, and Clark, who appeared in good humour, walked away. Next morning, early, some person walking on Harris' wharf [Cowichan], observed a pair of boots sticking, soles up, out of the water. A closer examination revealed the boots formed part of the apparel of a man, the upper part of whose body was under water. A boat was procured and the remains brought ashore, when it was found that the head of the person was encased in identical flour bag, Clark had borrowed the evening before. Upon removing the bag, which was tied tightly about the neck of deceased, the remains were recognized as those of Clark. Between bottom of sack and dead man's head was found a large stone, which had served as a weight to sink the body head down. Inquest...

Feb 19, 1870, 3 - Some year or so ago the license was withdrawn from Park Hotel, kept by W Lush, on the ground that it was a disorderly house, and frequent applications for renewal have been denied by Magistrates. Lately the proprietor of Park Hotel started a van, which plied for hire under the management of John Goldworthy. A few days ago the horses attached to the van got 'skittish' and starting off broke a part of the gear. For this accident Goldworthy was discharged, and appeared in Police office as a complainant against his former employer, whom he accused of having sold him spirits without a license. Evidence of the complaining witness having been taken, Mr Bishop, who appeared for Lush, pleaded guilty, whereupon Lush was fined $250 - full extent of the law - and ordered Lush into custody until the fine was paid. The prisoner, shortly afterwards, satisfied justice and was discharged.

Lane, which arrived from Ft
Simpson was built by Joseph Spence - a rugged specimen of

Alone in the solitude of NW

worked 7 long months and when he had launched his little bark successfully he rigged her out with his own hands and with the Indian as his crew set sail for Victoria, accomplishing the distance of nearly 800 miles

Jun 19, 1870 - In most civilized communities people
bury the dead out of their sight. Here the dead are buried almost in the centre of the city and right under the nose of the living, impregnating the water we drink and infecting the air we breathe! Surely it is time for the city authorities to give this matter some attention, and put a stop to a practice so revolting and so fatal.

Died at the hospital, Victoria, VI, Jun 28, 1870, Mr Rippon, 60. He was n/o Yorkshire, Eng, and used to delight the hearts of the young ones with candies from his store on Yates street. The old candyman, is reported to have been the owner of some valuable real estate at San Francisco. The story goes that in 1857 he invested a small sum of money in an outside town lot and came to Fraser River in 1858. He settled down at his trade - candymaking - and occupied the old shop on Yates street, just above Broad, since 1861. Meanwhile San Francisco has grown, and what was an outside lot in 1857 is now located in the very heart of the city, and worth a sum sufficient to have rendered Rippon independent of all work. But he didn't appear to appreciate the good luck that had fallen to him and he stuck to his candy pots and pans until his growing infirmities incapacitated him from further work, that noble charity - when the Royal Hospital, Victoria, VI - opened its door to receive him.

ChHx/Bldg/Aug 7, 1870 - An Unlucky House - If ever the spirits of ghosts or goblins damned revisit this sublunary sphere, they will be found to infest the little iron house on Douglas st, near St John's Church. The house was made in Eng and arrived at Victoria per sailing ship in 1862. It was first erected on Langley st and in 1864 was removed to its present location. Whilst in process of removal the horses drawing the truck ran away and the house was scattered along the sts for the distance of a mile. After being put together it was inhabited by an Indian family, a member of which was robbed and murdered there one night by his relative. Shortly afterwards a white man hired and fitted up the premises, but he had lived there only a month before he was robbed of everything he possessed.

Since then it has remained unoccupied until yesterday am, a Chinaman passing by peered into one of the windows and discovered the decaying body of Ahe Chee hanging by its neck; pg 3 - A Shocking Case of Suicide...His countrymen say that he smoked and ate opium continually, abandoned work, and became miserably poor.

Dec 22, 1870 - Leon Morel was arraigned before Police court upon a charge of robbing Mr M Rowland. At the Mosquetaires Saloon, Rowland, it appears, was dozing near the stove in the back room and Morel sat near him with a large clasp-knife in his hand. Two or three strangers observed that Morel's actions were suspicious, and after awhile Mrs Rowland entered the room and took a lot of money out of her husband's pocket for safekeeping. Soon after it was observed that Rowland's pocket had been cut open and Morel was accused of having done it and marched off to jail. He protested, with tears in his eyes, his innocence. He was remanded, when Mr/Mrs Rowland will appear as witnesses; Dec 23, 3 - Leon Morelle, charged with an attempt to rob Mathias Rowland, was before Police Court, committed for trial at next assizes.

Marine/John Costello, better known by the sobriquet of
'Billy the Bug' died at Race
Rocks lighthouse, Jan 19, 1871
under very distressing circumstances. The poor man left Victoria in an open boat with supplies for the lighthouse, 12 miles distant. A gale sprang up shortly afterwards and he was driven past the rocks to the American side. During the blow he lost the sail, next the oars and finally the rudder. He was exposed to the fury of the storm
all Tues and Wed night and

early on Thurs morning managed, with a piece of board which he tore from the bottom of the boat, to reach the rock. He was in a terribly reduced state from exposure
and his wants were at once attended to by the
lightkeepers; but he sank rapidly and died shortly after reaching the rock. A boat sailed last evening to bring the remains to town for interment.
Costello was a kind-hearted man - his own worst enemy -
and was ever foremost in relieving distress while he neglected his own wants. He was n/o Ire and started in life
as a blacksmith and was once a diver. Arriving here in 1858, he took up boating, and in 1860 was carrying pilot Brodrick to a vessel outside this harbour when the boat was upset and Brodrick drowned. Billy, after clinging some hours to the bottom of the boat, reached shore. He leaves a wife and several children quite destitute.
Funeral from his residence, Bastion st. The Fire Dept has been solicited and citizens
generally are invited to attend.
There is a very general expression of sorrow at the sudden taking off of poor Billy. He was one of the kindest creatures in the world,
and was ever foremost in extending aid to poor and distressed persons, even when his own family were not overwell provided for. Many and many a man now in Victoria can bear willing testimony to the good deeds of the deceased. Flags of shipping and hotels were at half-mast. Funeral will be preceded by a band, members of which have volunteered to pay this last mark of respect.

Feb 24, 1871 - Death of the 'Marquis' - A tall, thin, dark-complexioned man, slightly stooped and thinly clad, who, winter or summer, always wore a pair of yellow joggings, very much the worse for wear, to which he appeared to cling with a tenacity that amounted almost to an affectionate regard. This poor man - whose real name was James Wooster, but who, from the evidence which he always gave of having been a gentleman, was generally known as the 'Marquis' - subsisted by sweeping out offices and barrooms and doing odd chores. He was considered by his employers to be a faithful honest creature, whose chief fault was a craving for strong drink, in satisfying which he had lost a responsible situation at a banker's in London and had sunk to the state of misery which he has occupied since. Yesterday morning he was missed from his usual haunts and upon enquiry being made he was found lying in a wretched hovel on Fort st, dying. A kind-hearted neighbour gave him some tea and went for a doctor, but upon his return the wretched 'Marquis' had breathed his last.

Of amusements on shore it was useless to think,
But plentiful were tomfoolery and drink.

In the Colonist paper a paragraph did appear
About the dullness of the fleet from them that met here.

Their resources were low and trade it was bad -
their community so small, which made things so sad.'

Father and son both landed at Victoria, in Sep 1862, and the following month they settled at Kelvinside, where deceased continued to reside with his affectionate son - the only surviving child of 7 - up to the time of his death. He was an honest man and has gone to his rest.

Died at Victoria, BC, Jul 2, 1871, Joseph Austen... the earthly career of 'Judge' Joseph Austen, the oldest and probably, most respected citizen of Victoria, was closed... N/o Halifax, NS, having been born at that now flourishing city when it was little more than a fishing village, in 1782. Early in life he embarked in commercial pursuits, and during the war of 1812-14 with US frequently sailed as supercargo of vessels that required all the skill and vigilance of those in charge to evade the privateers that then infested the Atlantic. Mr Austen was present at Ghent in 1814 when the treaty of peace was signed by the British and American Commission. He rode to Ghent in the same carriage with Henry Clay, Albert Gallatin and Mr Bayard, American Commissioner. Subsequently, in company with those gentlemen he rode through Russia in a drosky, parting with them at Cronstadt, where the 'Judge' rejoined his ship. While at St Petersburg the 'Judge' attended a State Ball given by the Czar of Russia and used to relate with much apparent pleasure the scenes and incidents that came under his observation on that occasion. Soon after the discovery of gold Mr Austen came to CA and engaged in the hardware business; but his entire property was swept away in a few minutes by a disastrous fire that occurred in 1851. In 1856 the 'Judge' joined a Vigilance Committee and assisted in ridding the city of a horde of ruffians who had made San Francisco their rendezvous. In the fall of the same year he was elected JP, whence came the title of 'Judge,' by which he was best known to the citizens of Victoria. In 1858 Austen landed at Victoria with Robert Austen, his nephew, and wisely invested a portion of his means in real estate. Mr Austen was universally beloved by all classes. He was hospitable and amiable, a trusty friend and a walking encyclopedia of historical events which occurred during his lifetime, and of many of which he was an eye-witness. At the particular request of Mr Austen before he died, the funeral was conducted without any religious service. Friends wore no insignia of mourning and no clergyman was present. A few of his friends gathered at residence of Mr W P Sayward, where the coffined remains were placed in the hearse and followed to the cemetery... Mr Austen was 1/2 of Honourable Joseph Howe, of Dominion Ministry, of whom he always spoke in terms of pride and affection.

Sep 21, 1872 - A Card - The Meddlesome Man - Editor Colonist - There is a certain man living on the Cariboo rd, 8 miles from Clinton, who is in the habit of interfering with other people's business while he allows his own affairs to go to rack and ruin. This man has already suffered a short term of imprisonment in consequence of his wicked disposition, and had he lain in gaol for 8 or 10 years, he would by that time have learned to do unto his neighbours as he would have his neighbors do unto him. Perhaps, too, he would have learned to subdue his brutal passions and to have adopted a higher moral code for his future guidance. Unfortunately, such not being the case, the neighborhood is again afflicted with his presence, and Ned Allen continues to meddle in the affairs of others as if he were the most virtuous man in the world.

I advise him to beware, and keep his 'spoon out of other's porridge' or he will hear again from FRITZ; Oct 20, 3 - Refutation.

Dec 9, 1874 - Mr S Dean, of Saanich, called upon us yesterday respecting the burial of late Mrs Johnson. He says that the body was prepared for the grave by Mrs Dean; that Mr Alexander made the coffin; that our informant and Mr Henderson (of Eckstien's Hotel) constructed a brick vault in the garden, where the body now lies; and that

Wilson Brown, JP, read the service over the remains. Mr Dean says all things were done 'decently and in order,' and that the body was placed in the vault to await the return of Mrs Brown from London, when a plot will be selected in the New Cemetery.

Dec 9, 1874, 3 - Letter to Editor, I have noticed some inquiries in your paper lately respecting the death of late Mrs Johnson at Alderley Park.

As there appears to be considerable talk about the affair, and a story is current that no one was with her when she was sick, and other suspicious insinuations are being circulated, I send you this communication to enlighten the dark, mysterious minds of those interested (post-mortem) friends. About 2 wks before Mrs Johnson's death, when returning from Victoria, I received a note from Wilson Brown, requesting me to call and stay with her while he went to take Mrs Allsop's children, that were staying with them, home to Victoria.

I went there at once, and attended to her wants until her death, when Mrs Michell and Mrs Dean assisted me to attend to her remains. On account of sickness I was unable to be with Mrs Michell and Mrs Dean at the funeral. Should any further information be wanted it can be obtained from Mrs J D Bryant, S Saanich.

May 7, 1875 - Vandal boys have broken down trees and uprooted plants in the old cemetery. Since the Provincial Secretary failed in his attempt to have the graves of strangers levelled off and the plot in which they lie converted into a lawn suitable for croquet, we had thought that the relics of poor humanity would be allowed to rest in peace. We are sorry, however, to note the fact that the vandalism is not confined to official circles and that bad boys, taking the cue from those old enough to know better, are only too eager to rob the cemetery of its chief beauty.

Jul 15, 1876 - Died at Olympia, WT, Jul 14, 1876, Capt Edwin A Starr. Aged 54, n/o NY; he came to this coast

26 yrs ago and since the year 1870 has been most actively engaged in steamboat enterprise between here and Puget Sound.

Jul 16, 1876 - steamer Isabel arrived yesterday morning from Port Townsend with the body of late Capt Starr on board, steamer Annie Stewart having conveyed it from Olympia. The deceased gentleman appears to have been taken very ill between Ludlow and Port Gamble and on arrival at Seattle was attended by Dr Spareing. The steamer shortly afterwards proceeded on her way to Olympia with the deceased in bed in his stateroom. Just before reaching Olympia he was discovered to be insensible, and although every effort was made to save his life both on the steamer and by the medical faculty of Olympia, he gradually sunk, death intervening on Friday afternoon. A large number of friends and acquaintances accompanied the body of late captain on board the Annie Stewart to Port Townsend, where it was carefully transferred to the Isabel in charge of Mr Winslow and Mr Hoar. On arrival here it was found that discoloration was commencing and the body was placed in a handsome coffin prepared by Messrs Hayward & Jenkinson. The funeral of deceased, whose death is regretted by all who knew him, will take place today from res/o his brother L Starr, Esq, James Bay.

Jul 18 - Funeral of Capt E A

Starr took place on Sun and was attended very numerously by friends and acquaintances. The body was taken from steamer Isabel to res/o L Starr, Esq, James Bay, whence the cortege proceeded to St John's Church, Douglas st, and thence to Ross Bay cemetery. November 11, 1876 - Double Funeral - Yesterday the funeral of late Mrs Trutch, mother of the ex-Lieut-Governor of BC, took place in joint ceremony with that of Mary Augusta, aged 7, daughter of Judge P O'Reilly and grand daughter of the venerable lady first named. The corteges formed respectively at residence of John Trutch, Esq, Fairfield, and that of P O'Reilly, Esq, Point Ellice, whence they proceeded to Christ Church Cathedral and there united. The impressive burial service was read by the Right Rev Bishop of Columbia assisted by Rev Mr Jenns of St John's Church, and the mournful procession then proceeded to Ross Bay cemetery where the remains of the venerable lady and those of the child, two generations removed, were lowered to the same resting place. The hearses were followed by a very large number of prominent citizens and the pallbearers for late Mrs Trutch were Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie, CJ, Mr Justice Gray, Messrs McCreight, H Rhodes, D Lenevue and T L Stahlschmidt. The pallbearers for the child were Messrs W Pinder, A Jones, C Brodie and James Raymur, Jr. At the Cathedral the musical portion of the service was very beautifully and solemnly rendered and the grand organ - Miss Wilson, organist - pealed forth in mournful strains the 'Dead March in Saul.' A peculiar fact in connection with this double funeral is that late Mrs Trutch was 77 years and the little daughter of Mr O'Reilly 7 years of age - a difference of three score years and ten. The funeral ceremonies were conducted by Messrs Hayward & Jenkinson, undertakers.

Dec 19, 1876 - Thomas King and Thomas James Brown were arraigned for committing a nuisance, to wit: That being engaged by Richard Turner to bury an Indian woman named Kitty who had died of smallpox, they stripped the body of the said woman of her clothes, took possession of the shawl, blankets, etc, that were wrapped around her, and pawned the same to one Aaron Oldenberg.

King pled not guilty; Brown pled guilty in part, stating that he had deposited the body where directed, but had not stripped it of any apparel.

Noah Shakespeare was chosen foreman of the Jury. Mr H S Mason stated the case for the prosecution, observing that the prosecution was for a common nuisance. There would be two indictments - the indictment charging the prisoners with disposing of the infected clothes, the other indictment with leaving the body unburied and exposed.

Richard Turner deposed - Remembered a klootchman named Kitty who died of smallpox. Dr Walkem, late Health Officer, came to my house and inquired if I had not money in my possession belonging to the deceased;

went with him to her house; I declined to undertake the burying of the body; the prisoner Brown entered into negotiation with me to bury it for $25, and agreed to do so in a decent and proper manner. Brown came next morning and said he had buried the body at Trial I. King on that occasion came with Brown to get part of the money as he had assisted Brown to bury the body; witness..... Mr T Argyle, lightkeeper of Race rock, arrived in town Feb 1, 1877, bringing with him in a canoe the dead body of an Indian woman, which, from marks upon it, leaves but little doubt that the woman was foully murdered. Mr Argyle says that he started from the rock to the shore to get his papers, when he observed, floating between the rock and the island shore, a canoe bottom up. He took the canoe in tow, and finding it pretty heavy, undertook to right it, when he found entangled in some ropes attached to the canoe the body of a cloutchman. The canoe and body were drawn ashore, when several wounds were discovered in the head.

Subsequently Mr Argyle found that his barn on the island shore had been broken into and on a pitchfork there were found stains of blood. An Indian was observed to pass Parker's farm on Mon evening coming toward Victoria. An inquest will be held today on the body of deceased, who is said to be the wife of a Frenchman named John Baptiste DeChamp. She was c 40; belonged to the Songish tribe, and was a s/o the old King Freezy. Dec 9, 1877 - A few days since a sick man arrived from Puget Sound and was taken to one of the hospitals for treatment. Shortly afterwards he died, and the body being prepared for burial was interred at the cemetery. When his friends came to examine deceased's effects they found that a sum of money, which he was known to have in his possession the day before death, was missing. Search and inquiry failed to discover the missing sum, and as a last resort it was decided to exhume the remains. This being done, and the coffin opened, the missing money (nearly all in silver) was found in the pockets of the pantaloons in which the corpse was dressed for the grave, the presence of the coin having been overlooked by those who laid out the body.

Sep 14, 1878 - The lot on the corner Johnson/Douglas streets, where excavations will shortly be made for the foundations of a brick store, was in the earliest days of the history of the Province the first plot of ground used as a graveyard within the radius of the land purchased here by the HBC from the Indians. In the course of time the land was required for other purposes and the bodies of pioneers that had reposed there for many years were exhumed and removed to the Quadra street cemetery where they are now interred. It will not be a matter of any great surprise if, during the excavations about to be made, the bones of human beings are unearthed, as it is quite possible that graves escaped the notice of those who were engaged in early days in removing the bodies to the spot now known as the 'old' cemetery. Sep 21 - Three coffins containing the skeletons of adults were exhumed in the pioneer graveyard yesterday and reburied. Nov 13 - Yesterday whilst workmen were making excavations on the lot at the corner Douglas/Johnson streets they came across two coffins containing the remains of human beings. Messrs Hayward & Jenkinson, contractors for the work, communicated with the Sanitary Comm of the City Council, who gave instructions for the removal of the coffins to Ross Bay

Cemetery. Their action in this respect is commendable; but it is a matter of regret that the persons entrusted with the transfer of the bodies from the lot - which was the first graveyard in the city - to Quadra street cemetery in 1861, did not more carefully perform their duty.

Sep 14, 1878 - The brick building which has stood on the corner Broad/Fort streets since the year 1863 was demolished yesterday to make room for a two-storey brick to be erected for James Fell. The building has a somewhat interesting history. In 1851 the entire block on the S side of Fort street between Broad/Douglas was enclosed for a public market place by A-G Cary, John Cochrane and others, and a brick wall ran along the Fort street side of it. Within this enclosure the first fair of any pretensions that took place at Victoria, BC was held. Subsequently, however, it was found that the public market, in a pecuniary sense, was a failure. It was subsequently abandoned, the wall alluded to was taken down and the bricks were used in the erection of the identical building that was yesterday demolished to give place to a structure of a more substantial and extensive character.

Oct 31, 1878 - Desecration of the Old Cemetery - It is a matter of deep regret as well as of surprise that in this community there are persons who can be guilty of desecrating the old cemetery situate on Quadra st. The most casual observer on visiting the burial ground will at once discern that many of the railings surrounding graves have been wantonly destroyed, upset or tossed away from their original locations. In most of these instances the graves are apparently of early date and having no headstones the names of the departed ones, whose bones have ere thus crumbled to dust, are comparatively unknown. It is sad also to observe that the ruthless hand of the desecrator has defiled the graves of many who have been more recently interred and whose names are more or less familiar. In one case a massive headstone has been thrown down which bears the following inscription: 'H T W, English, late paymaster of HMS Devastation, died 1864.' The headstone was erected as a mark of respect to the deceased by the officers and company of the ship. In another instance the railings which formerly surrounded the grave of "Michael Lane Cavert, who died May 17th, 1861, a n/o Charlton, Saratoga County, NY," have been torn up and scattered in all directions. In nearly every quarter of the cemetery ornamental trees have been chopped down, but are left on the ground as evidence of mischief or malice. In the section of the graveyard which appears to have been allotted to the Chinese numerous headboards have been displaced, the graves, with but few exceptions, remaining in their original state. In other countries the punishment for desecrating a burial ground is very severe and only recently we read of a lady being heavily fined for thoughtlessly plucking two or three flowers from a grave. The proper authorities here would do well to take steps to bring the guilty parties to justice and if possible prevent a recurrence of deed which no one with a sense of propriety or due respect for 'God's acre' could possibly commit. Died at Maplehurst, Victoria, BC, Nov 8, 1878, Henry Rhodes, n/o London, Eng, aged 54. Hon Henry Rhodes, Hawaiian Consul, President of the Chamber of Commerce and head of the well-known mercantile house of Henry Rhodes & Co, died after a painful illness of 8 months duration. The deceased gentleman came to Victoria in 1859, and embarked extensively in mercantile pursuits, in which he soon attained a commanding position. In 1865 Mr Rhodes (who always took a lively interest in public affairs) was called to the Legislative Council of the Colony of Vancouver Island, and occupied a seat therein until union with BC. Previous to coming to Victoria, Mr Rhodes was prominently identified with the commerce of the Sandwich Islands, where he arrived in 1845, when quite a young man. With every quality that contributes to make a valuable citizen Mr Rhodes was richly endowed, and his hospitality was proverbial. Mr Rhodes' dying moments were comforted by the presence of his sorrowing wife and children, who will receive the heartfelt sympathy of the public. We regret to announce the death of William George Reynolds, which took place Nov 22, 1878 at Victoria, BC. Deceased, who was n/o London, Eng, since 1870 held the position of chief clerk of the Post Office here and from his youth was an active member of the Fire Dept, being at the time of his death a delegate from the Hook and Ladder Co. He was also a member of IOOF Columbia Lodge. He passed away at the early age of 27, after several weeks of suffering from typhoid fever. In Sep last he had the misfortune to lose an ever kind and thoughtful mother; and from the date of his unremitting attention to her during her last illness he had been in gradually declining health. He leaves a wife and two children - the former to mourn the loss of a good husband, the latter, young as they are, to carry with them through life remembrances of a kind father. The funeral of the deceased will take place from Odd Fellows' Hall, Fort st, under the auspices of the Victoria Fire Dept. The flags of the Post Office and of the several engine houses in the city drooped at half-mast yesterday in respect to the memory of deceased, and the

The community was greatly shocked Dec 20, 1878 to hear of the death of Mr F J Roscoe, which occurred at his residence, Ross Bay, Victoria, BC, under painful circumstances between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock. Deceased has for some time past been suffering from mental depression; but his death was quite unexpected. Mr Roscoe came to this country in 1862, when he launched out into business as an iron and general hardware merchant and has ever since been actively engaged in mercantile pursuits. He was a grandson of Mr Roscoe, the celebrated author and biographer, who represented Liverpool for some time in the British House of Commons. The deceased himself was also exceedingly fond of literature, was highly educated and a man of refinement and culture. In 1873 he was elected to represent Victoria, BC in the Canadian House of Commons, but declined re-nomination at the last general election. For several years he has held the rank of Major in the Canadian Militia of this Province. He was a man of many sterling qualities, for which he was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. Had he lived till the 28th inst. he would have entered his 49th year. He leaves behind him a wife and a large family - five children - who have the deepest sympathy of the community in the hour of their very sad bereavement. An inquiry was held as to the cause of his death, particulars . Funeral - Dec 22 - The cortege, escorted by the Garrison Artillery and Militia Companies No. 1 and 2, formed at res/o the deceased, Ross Bay, and proceeded to St John's Church, Douglas st, where the Rev P Jenns read the impressive funeral service. The procession then reformed and marched to the cemetery, when the body having been lowered and the service finished, the funeral guard fired three volleys over the grave and returned to town. Prof Haynes' band was in attendance. The pallbearers were Messrs Drake, Jackson, M T Johnson, Capt Good and Dr Matthews. A large number of private carriages and several hundred persons on foot followed the hearse. The military turnout mustered about 70 rank and file. B 96 E 29

ChHx/Jan 5, 1879 - Many Victorians yesterday witnessed a most imposing Chinese ceremony - the funeral of Yip Jack, a partner in the firm of Wha Chung, restaurant keepers, Cormorant st. At noon about 1,000 Chinamen and a large number of white people collected opposite the store, when the coffin was brought out and placed on a bier with an umbrella to shade the head. The corpse was then surrounded with all kinds of eatables - roast pig, sheep, etc, after which the head men and friends appeared, and after going through certain ceremonies, the coffin was placed in a hearse and, headed by two men carrying flags and a number of others attired in yellow and white garments, proceeded to the cemetery, when Yip Jack was finally interred. The deceased was a member of a society here called by some Free Masons, but which is really an offshoot of the Tae Ping Company, who started the revolution in China in 1851, their professed object then being, not only to subvert the tyrannical foreign dynasty of the Mantchoos, but to overthrow national idolatry and establish Christianity throughout China. The society here has some 300 or 400 members. L 19 E 6

Dr Davie was sent for but was unable to render any assistance as the injured man died within 15 minutes after the Deans accident. The deceased was one of our oldest residents, having arrived here in Feb 1856, when he followed his trade as a carpenter, but shortly took to farming, at which he has been fairly successful. On Feb 10, 1879, Robert Ker, for many years auditor of BC, left his home on Victoria Arm in the midst of the blinding snowstorm to go to the Gorge Hotel for some groceries. Not having returned at a late hour in the evening a search was instituted, but no trace was discerned until daylight Feb 12, when his dead body was discovered lying half buried in a snowdrift in a field about halfway between his house and the hotel. His body was frozen stiff and he must have been dead many hrs. It is thought that the unfortunate gentleman, who had been in feeble health for some months, was unable to break through the snowdrift and that becoming exhausted, he lay down and perished in the snow. Mr Ker leaves a wife and several children. At the time of his death he was in the enjoyment of a pension from the Dominion government, and owned and worked a small farm on the Arm, two miles from town. He was aged about 54, and was n/o Sct.

Jun 1, 1879 - Assizes - John Tod, sheep stealing - Jun 6, 3; Jun 7, 3 - not guilty.

R Ingham, stealing from a graveyard/Jun 10, 1879, 3, defended by A R Robertson, pleaded 'not guilty,' and the following jury was empanelled: J Cameron (foreman), S Sea, W Muldoon, J McCandlish, A Rutherford, J Bennett, A Glendenning, J T McQuarrie, A Clyde, Alex Donaldson, J Baker Jr., Thomas Cavin. The A-G, in opening the case for the Crown, explained that the prisoner was indicted on the first count for stealing on the 10th Feb, 1879, four iron grave pillars, the property of John M Thain; the second count on the indictment was for feloniously receiving. The learned counsel then explained that Mr Thain had employed the prisoner to renovate a pedestal over the grave of one of his children buried at Ross Bay cemetery. To do this it was found necessary to remove the four iron pillars in question. Mrs Thain would testify that the prisoner was paid $11 for the work performed and that there was no arrangement made, as would probably be submitted by the learned counsel for the defence, as to the disposition of the pillars. The prisoner left the pillars lying in the graveyard from the month of Nov, 1878, to the month of Feb, 1879, when he laid claim to them and sold them to Mr Buler who placed them around the grave of his wife. These were in brief the circumstances connected with the case.

John M Thain, sworn, deposed that during his absence at Burrard Inlet his wife had a business transaction with the prisoner; witness bought four iron pillars from the captain of a ship and had them placed round the grave of his little boy in Ross Bay cemetery; recognized the pillar produced as one of the four; the pillars were taken out of the ground and laid alongside one of the graves; they remained there, but in February witness went out to the graveyard and found that they were taken away and set up around the grave of Mrs Buler; witness went to Mr Buler and he said he had bought them from prisoner; tried to find prisoner, but could not do so; laid information against him, charging him with stealing the pillars.

Cross-examined - The pillars originally had chains running through them; in the first place charged the prisoner with stealing both the pillars and chains; subsequently found that the chains running through the pillars when placed around Mrs Buler's grave were not the same chains; the pillars were about 30 or 40 yards from where my child was buried; asked several stonecutters in the city where the prisoner was before laying the information against him; have been annoyed like all persons who bury their dead in that cemetery by having things removed and stolen from the graves; asked Mr Buler where prisoner was and he said he did not know.

To the A-G - the tops of three of the pillars are brass and they were not painted black as the one produced is.

Mrs Mercy Thain, sworn - I have two children buried in Ross Bay cemetery; I employed the prisoner to renovate a tombstone taken from the old cemetery to Ross Bay cemetery; this was in the latter part of Nov, 1877; he sent in his bill a few days afterwards for $11. I thought it was an exorbitant charge witness and told him that he had not repaired the pedestal according to agreement; nothing whatever was said about the pillars which were standing around the grave; think I last saw the pillars a short distance from the grave about Feb 20th last; they were on our lot; on the Sun Mr Vinter was buried I was at the cemetery and noticed the pillars set up around Mrs Buler's grave; let the matter remain until Capt Thain returned from Burrard Inlet.

Cross-examined - The pillars were of no immediate use when the cement slab had been placed over the grave; am quite sure I never spoke to Ingham about taking the pillars as part payment; immediately identified the pillars when I saw them around Mrs Buler's grave; they are quite different from others in the cemetery; the pillars were left near the grave because we supposed they would be quite safe in the cemetery; first thought that Mr Buler had taken the pillars, but when I hear Ingham had sold them to him I felt sure he (Ingham) had stolen them.

Asbury Buler, a general dealer, deposed that he employed the prisoner to set up a headstone to his wife's gravestone; made a bargain for that; subsequently prisoner came to him and said that he had four nice iron pillars which would look well around the grave; he said they were rusty; witness bought some coal tar and had them lacquered over; witness also gave prisoner some money to buy the chains to them; saw them set up round his wife's grave on the same day as Mr Vinter was buried; subsequently Capt Thain made a claim on the pillars.

Cross-examined - I gave the prisoner $5 for the pillars; paid him on the 10th May last; the headstone cost me $30.

John Cox, RE, supt of Ross Bay cemetery, deposed - I recollect the iron pillars around the grave of Capt Thain's child; I pulled them down myself and laid them about 2 or 3 feet from the grave to allow the cement slab to be laid; they laid there until Jul 1878; saw the prisoner at work there early in 1878; the pillars lay near the grave until the fall of 1878; were removed by some person early in the month of Feb and put around Mrs Buler's grave; I took the chain and kept it for Capt Thain.

Cross-examined - I have no knowledge that prisoner ever bought the pillars; he may have done so; I know he had had in his possession several old headstones; he left them in my charge; he told me that he meant to try to buy the pillars; know he has purchased second-hand railings from various persons; saw him at work for some three days on the stone of Capt Thain's child's grave; he had to bring his tools, cement, etc, in a dray and took them away by the same means.

The A-G stated this closed the case for the Crown.

Mr Robertson, having briefly addressed the jury, proceeded to call evidence for the defence.

George Rudge, a stone-cutter, deposed that he had seen the work performed by Ingham on the gravestone and that he considered it well done and worth $15 or $16.

Hugh Wright deposed that to the best of his belief the prisoner was working at Nanaimo getting out stone about Feb. last.

George Stelly deposed that he had known the prisoner for three years or so and from his knowledge of him did not think he would be guilty of stealing.

John Gray, cement sidewalk layer, deposed that from his knowledge of prisoner it is highly improbable he would be guilty of stealing; witness knew nothing of his transactions with Mrs Thain.

Mr Robertson then addressed the jury on behalf of the prisoner and submitted that he had acted under a misapprehension as to facts in connection with the transaction with Mrs Thain. The learned counsel regretted that he was unable to place his client in the witness box. It was a great hardship against the prisoner that such was the case because he was entirely innocent of the offence with which he is charged. It would not be so hard against a guilty man, because he might, if placed in the witness box, possibly implicate himself. His client in this case, however, was not afraid to tell his story. The external indications of the case are that it highly improbable that the defendant would deliberately steal the pillars for the paltry value of $5 and erect them in the immediate vicinity of the grave to which it is alleged they belong. This would, in reality be courting inquiry. The learned counsel submitted that he had shown that the real value of the work performed was about $16 and the prosecution had adduced no evidence to show why the defendant should accept $11. But when it was taken into consideration that he in all probability took the pillars as part payment and gave a receipt for $11 cash the matter was easily accounted for. To sum up the whole case briefly the learned counsel asked the jury to consider whether the defendant took the pillars with felonious intent, knowing them to be the property of Capt Thain. He submitted that such was not in the least degree likely. His conduct in the transaction had been thoroughly open and aboveboard.

No doubt he had taken the pillars - that was not disputed - but he had taken them in broad daylight under the firm conviction that they were his properly acquired property. He had sold them to the witness Buler for the paltry sum of $5 on three months' credit and had gone about his ordinary business in the usual manner with the knowledge that he had done nothing wrong. The learned counsel in conclusion contended that the charge had been brought in the first place under an entire misapprehension and he would ask the jury to acquit his client without a stain upon his character.

The A-G having replied the Chief Justice proceeded to charge the jury. His Lordship was sorry to say that the case was utterly undefended - indeed a portion of the defence was of such a nature that the Court could not listen to it for a moment. The portion he alluded to was that where the learned counsel had pleaded that it was a hardship the prisoner could not be placed in the witness box to tell his own story. It was the pride of the English law that a prisoner could not be placed in the box, and submitted to the torture of a cross-examination at the hands of the prosecution. It had also been alleged that Capt Thain had been too hasty in taking steps against the prisoner, but whilst His Lordship would admit that the prosecutor had charged the defendant with taking more than he really did, still it would appear that the prosecutor had resorted to very natural measures. His Lordship alluded to the fact that the bill was made for only $11, whereas if the prisoner had a claim for $16 that would have been the amount of the bill. Mrs Thain, too, had sworn most positively that there had been no agreement made with the prisoner as to the pillars and it was not altogether satisfactory to say that Mrs Thain had made such an arrangement and had forgotten all about it. If, however, the jury had a reasonable doubt the prisoner was entitled to the benefit of it. The jury then retired and after an absence of 20 minutes the foreman announced a verdict of 'not guilty.' His Lordship, addressing the prisoner, told him that he had had a very narrow escape and admonished him as to his future conduct. This case exhausted the criminal calendar.

Died at Victoria, BC, Jul 26, 1879, William Bowden, 49, n/o Belfast, Ire. Ex-superintendent of Police, died at his residence on Cormorant st. Had been in failing health for some time past.

On Sun we briefly announced that Bowden expired at his residence on Cormorant street at a late hour from internal hemorrhage. Deceased, who was born at Belfast, Ire, in 1830, came to this Province in 1858 in company with a detachment of Sappers [Royal Engineers] and at that time belonged to the Royal Artillery. He was subsequently appointed Orderly to Governor Douglas, a position which he filled for several years, and in 1867 he joined the police force with the rank of Sergeant. The ability and assiduity he displayed in the execution of his duties in this office led to well merited promotion and in the course of time he was appointed Inspector of City Police. This position he also filled in a manner alike creditable to himself and his country and when, on the assumption of power by the Elliott government it was deemed prudent on the grounds of economy, to amalgamate the position with that of Superintendent of Provincial Police, Mr Bowden was appointed to act in the dual capacity. He held this important position for a considerable period, but almost immediately after a political revulsion, in which the present Government gained the ascendancy, he was suspended for alleged mismanagement of the city gaol and police barracks. A public investigation was awaited for several weeks and the attention of the Government was called to the matter in the columns of the leading journal of the Province. No investigation, however, of a public character was held and after the Government had permitted a cloud to hang over Bowden for an altogether unwarrantable period he was removed from office, and the present incumbent was appointed in his stead. From this time the deceased's health commenced to fail and although, with a sense of duty towards his family, he subsequently accepted a subordinate position in the police force it was apparent that he no longer had the vigorous constitution, fine physique and determination of action which were characteristic of him in former days. Having recovered from a severe illness in February last he enjoyed a brief period of comparative good health, but on Thurs last had an unexpected relapse. On Fri night at 10:30 he lost the power of speech and after lying in a comatose state for 24 hours passed quietly away surrounded by his wife and daughters. The funeral of the deceased took place yesterday under the auspices of the OddFellows, the remains being conveyed to the Presbyterian Church and thence to Ross Bay Cemetery. The hearse was followed by a very numerous cortege, comprising members of the IOOF, members of the Police Force, members of the Pioneer Society and a large number of friends and acquaintances. The coffin, which bore a simple inscription giving the name of deceased, his age, the time and place of death, was covered with beautiful flowers sent by Lady Douglas and friends of the deceased. Pallbearers: R Jeffrey, C Gowen, C Kent, W McNiff and Police Officers Quain and Dale. H 069 W 22

Found drowned in harbour - An inquest was held Aug 4, 1879 before Honourable A F Pemberton on the body of a man named William J Rice who arrived here from San Francisco by SS Alaska and was found drowned. The deceased was a man of average height, apparently c 50, with dark beard and hair. When found a silk hat was still on his head and he was wearing a long and somewhat heavy overcoat, a sealskin vest, plaid pants and new lace-up boots.

Samuel Clifford deposed that he was going aboard schooner Carolena when he saw the body floating in the water about halfway between HBC wharf and Capt Lewis' house. Witness fetched the body to the wharf.

Officer Quain deposed that he found the deceased lying on his back in the water. The body was conveyed to the station house and there searched. The sum of $18.76 and a number of letters were found on deceased's person. It was apparent from the papers that deceased's name was William J Rice and that he had been a commission and real estate merchant in San Francisco. A voting paper dated 1874 showed that he then belonged to Lincoln Place, Cork. He was apparently about 45. Amongst the effects of deceased at the Occidental Hotel, Wharf street, there were books and papers which would indicate that he had come to Victoria, BC as a book agent; a document also showed that he had been in partnership with a man named Montandon, of Oakland, CA. There was also a certificate for 5 shares ($500) in the Viola Gold and Silver Mining Co.

Edward Hector deposed that deceased was a fellow passenger with him on board SS Alaska which arrived from San Francisco at Esquimalt on Sun. On the voyage up deceased told witness a portion of his history and said that he was a graduate of Edinburgh University, and went to Aus in government employ; he made $250,000 in Australia and then went to Ire where he bought an estate and speculated in railway shares in which he lost a great deal of his money; he then came to Canada and Duluth and subsequently to San Francisco, where he was a professor in a Catholic school for three months; after this lost some $700 in speculations and then engaged in real estate business, but was unsuccessful. He said he was coming to Victoria on some agency, the nature of which he did not disclose. He said also that he had expectations from some relatives, but that he had been disappointed. Witness left him on board the steamer.

James Haslam deposed that the deceased arrived on board steamer Emma from the SS Alaska. He was very drunk and had to be packed from the mail steamship to Emma. A man who was with deceased handed witness a valise and witness took it to the Occidental Hotel. Deceased fell into a drunken sleep aboard Emma, but subsequently came ashore. Witness left him on Sun evening. He said he would not go to the Occidental Hotel and then proceeded up Yates st. Witness wanted him to go and lie down so that he could get sober. Deceased would not do so. Witness afterwards heard of him staggering about the streets and asking where he could get a night's lodgings.

His Honor remarked that he did not think it necessary to adduce further evidence, as there could be no reasonable doubt as to the actual cause of deceased's death.

The jury, after a very brief deliberation, returned a verdict of 'found drowned'. F 012 E 012

Died in Victoria, BC at St Joseph's Hospital, Sep 12, 1879, Charles Morehouse, 42.. Mr Morehouse immediately broke up his establishment at Yale and undertook the expensive journey to Eng with his family. On reaching that destination he found a cousin, another Charles Morehouse, in possession of the estate. Investigation showed that the Charles Morehouse of BC was not the person of the same name mentioned in the will. On Nov 18, 1879, there will be a solemn Requiem Mass at St Andrew's Cathedral over the body of James Burns, who died at Cassiar. A telegram from Mr Feigh to Mr T J Burnes states that late James Burns is onboard steamer California. It is supposed that the remains will be taken to CA for interment. Body conveyed to Thomas Storey, undertaker, who will prepare the remains for shipment to

CA. The body of the deceased was carried from the spot where the death occurred to Dease Creek where it was interred, but on it being ascertained that there was a possibility of conveying the remains to Fort Wrangel, John Feigh, who was engaged with the deceased in the liquor business on McDame Creek, had them exhumed after an interment of 24 hours. They were then placed in a coffin and by indefatigable efforts on Feigh's part taken to Fort Wrangel. Feigh's action is considered as noble in the extreme. The task of bringing out the body was an exceedingly difficult one, owing to the exposure of the season and the obstacles incident to the journey to be encountered. The remains will be accompanied to San Francisco by Mr & Mrs Dwyer, Mr Feigh, Mr P Brady and Mr W Larkin, all intimate friends of the deceased, who came to the country in 1858, and possessed the rare quality of drawing about him and retaining warm personal admirers.

May 6, 1880 - Telephone poles for this wonderful achievement of electrical science are being placed in position along the principal streets of Victoria. If some 18th century Rip Van Winkle were to wake up and pay us a visit his first impression upon viewing those numerous posts with projecting arms would be that this must be a glorious place for Jack Ketch where so many gallow-trees are needed. ChHx/Jun 1, 1880 - Mr M Humber has recently erected in the old and new cemeteries two large altars with capacious furnaces attached, where offerings to Joss on behalf of dead Chinamen will be burned. Heathen altars in a Christian burial ground form a strange spectacle in the 19th century.

Portions of the old cemetery are in a sad state of dilapidation. Railings and fences in many cases rotted and fallen down. The ornamental shrubbery choked with weeds and ivy, the latter overrunning the walks. Head and foot stones and monuments lying on their sides, or if standing so thickly coated with moss that the inscriptions are undistinguishable. The whole cemetery, where lie hundreds of men, women and children who once lived in our midst, bears an appearance of forgetfulness and neglect.

Jul 15, 1880 there died in a small house on Broad st a woman known as Ruby Edwards alias Edna White. The symptoms were those of narcotic poisoning. She was seized in the morning and Drs Trimble and Helmcken and Mr A B Cooke, druggist, were summoned. Every effort was made to save her life, but nature finally succumbed to the effects of the poison. The deceased belonged to the class known as 'unfortunate.' She was observed to be crying on Wed afternoon. When asked the reason she said that a lady was about to take her (deceased's) little boy away, and asked for a piece of paper and an envelope to write a letter. When last seen previous to the poisoning she was much depressed in spirits, and is supposed to have taken laudanum shortly afterwards. A bottle labelled 'Poison' was found in the room by Mr Cooke. The jury returned a verdict that deceased came to her death from the effects of an overdose of opium, and desired to call the attention of the coroner, Hon Mr Pemberton, to the fact that the law does not require the sale of laudanum in the presence of a witness. Deceased was aged 22 and n/o the Sunny South, having been born in New Orleans, US. F 10 E 12 ran into the house exclaiming 'There's something the matter with Jim.' The mother ran out and found her son lying on his back breathing heavily. A sad case of accidental drowning occurred at Mason's brickyard, Saanich rd, Jul 27, 1880. It appears that a little boy about 3 ½, s/o Mr A Sinclair, who resides in the yard, left the house with a younger sister to play. After an absence of an hour the little girl returned, but she was not accompanied by her brother, the mother went out to look for him. She failed to find him, but being under no apprehension as to his safety, resumed her domestic duties. At 1 o'clock, however, as the boy was still absent she became alarmed and again left the house to search for him. After a few minutes the child was found lying quite dead on the edge of a shallow pond a short distance from the house. His head was out of the water resting on the bank and from the position of the body it would seem that the poor little fellow had fallen into the pond, but although able to scramble up the bank had been choked to death by the water.

Funeral of late R H Crane took place Sep 8, 1880 from the Wesleyan church and was largely attended. Rev Mr Smith enjoined them to remember from the sudden death of this promising young man that their own death might be near. He prayed for the bereaved widow and child who, hastening from the other side of the continent to join a loving husband and father, would find only a mound in the churchyard; and he prayed for the far-distant friends of the deceased and invoked diving assistance in their hour of deep grief. It appears that a short time ago the deceased heard Mr Durny playing Chopin's Funeral March, and remarked, 'When I am buried I should like to have Chopin's March played over me.' His wish was gratified. The remains were borne to the grave by the following members of the Ivy Club: Messrs R Hall, W F Archibald, L McQuade, F Richards, jr., W Cameron, W Anderson. Although a comparative stranger the unfortunate young man had made many sincere friends by his winning manner and gentlemanly deportment. Sep 15 - Mrs Crane, wdw/o late R H Crane, did not arrive

Nov 2, 1880, an elderly shoemaker from Victoria, BC, committed suicide at Tacoma by shooting himself in the head and breast. When he came up the Sound he refused to give the purser his name. Consequently we are unable to obtain it.

Nov 5, 1880 - the name of the shoemaker who committed suicide a few days since was Morton Cox, an Englishman c 40, who used to keep a small boot and shoe repairing shop on the W side of Store nr Johnston st. Among the effects were a note to George Knowles, of Victoria, bequeathing all his property, dated Sep 17, an address to the citizens of Victoria, dated Sep 27, in which he gives his reasons for intending to put an end to his life, a draft on Wells Fargo &

Co, dated Sep 27, payable at Portland, for $150 and some coin. Previous to his departure from Victoria, BC the police had reason to believe that he was of unsound mind and took away from him a six-shooter fearing that he would do himself or neighbors some harm. Nov 11, 1880 - Lafayette McMullin - The telegraph announces the death by a railway accident of Lafayette McMullin who "a many years ago" was governor of the adjoining territory of Washington. His visits to Ft Victoria in the US government steamer Active (afterwards lost between San Francisco and Victoria) were frequent 22 yrs ago. For a time he was a welcome guest at Gov Douglas' mansion, and the guns in the Company's bastion, then standing on what is now the crnr Fort/Wharf sts, used to belch forth salutes when he arrived and departed. One day Active cast anchor in James Bay, the bastion guns barked a warm welcome and Gov McMullin waited on Gov Douglas and received the courtly welcome which ever distinguished late Sir James. After an hour's absence from Active McMullin hastily returned, and it was observed that the guns in the bastion were silent as Active weighed her anchor to leave port. Subsequently it was said that the Gov of WT had dined "not wisely but too well" before waiting on Gov Douglas. It was about the time the antics of the San Juan I "pig" had begun to attract the attention of the governments of Great Britain and US; and Gov McMullin in the course of conversation gave rein to his thoughts and questioned not only the right of the British to San Juan I but to Vancouver I as well. Gov Douglas replied that an attempt to enforce that claim would meet with resistance, and at this the visiting governor seized his hat and darting from the presence of Sir James, hurried off to Active. Gov McMullin never visited Victoria afterwards.

Died Dec, 1880, at Driard House, Victoria, BC, J Spencer Thompson, MP, for Cariboo district in House of Commons. Drs Powell and Matthews were obliged to inform the deceased gentleman that he had but a few hours to live and that it behooved him to lose no time in settling his temporal affairs. He seemed anxious to postpone those matters until yesterday morning, but when told that it might then be too late, he at once dictated his will and disposed of their business matters in a remarkably calm and self-possessed manner... Since his arrival in this province, now more than 22 years ago, he has been a constant adherent of the liberal conservative party of Canada. In the early days of Cariboo he took an active part in mining enterprises and at the time of his death held a number of interests in claims. By Thompson's demise the Masonic fraternity has lost an active and efficient member... deceased gentleman was an Irishman by birth c 55 . He came to the country in 1858.

ChHx/Dec 24, 1880 - All Victoria Chinadom is in the throes of a great excitement. They are discussing the strange proceedings of a countrywoman, who goes off into a trance when her body is said to be taken possession of by the Chinaman and Chinawoman who were cut to pieces with an ax on December 10, 1879, and the bodies burned with their dwelling. While the woman is in a state of insensibility the voices of the two dead persons proceed from her mouth and the murderers are indicated by name and other description. Last night about 150 jabbering Chinese surrounded the woman's dwelling, while the woman, or the spooks from within her, entertained a select few of the blood-curdling narration. The Chinese are believers in ghosts and are much interested in this latest development. Dec 28, 3 - An Evening With Chinese Spooks...

Died Dec 28, 1880 at Altona, Pennsylvania, on his way to Victoria, George Pappenberger, about 45, n/o Marktheidenfeld, Bezirk, Unterfranken, Bavaria, Germany. A gentle and kindhearted man has passed away. He left Victoria for Europe on Oct 20 last. Before taking his departure he was entertained at a banquet by many friends; and as he sailed away their warm wishes for a prosperous voyage and an early return followed him. Pappenberger reached Europe, saw and conversed with the friends of his youth, arranged matters with his principal in the fur business - Mr J Boscowitz - and sailed from London on his way home. He crossed the Atlantic and secured a ticket over the PA Railroad for the Pacific. The same day, while on the cars, he was seized with inflammation of the bowels and after informing his fellow passengers of his destination and residence died, expressing the wish, with his last breath, to be buried at 'dear old Victoria'. A telegram received by Mr Hartnell of Victoria, BC announces the melancholy fact and the remains having been coffined are on the way to Victoria for burial. Pappenberger was in charge of the important fur business of L & J Boscowitz in BC and was one of the most popular of Victoria's adopted citizens. He was a most liberal and charitable man and leaves 2 daughters in this city who are well provided for. At the time of his death Mr Pappenberger was a member of Victoria Fire department, Pioneer Society, and UOW. He came to this country in 1858. In 1862 in company with Mr W Lohse, he discovered the auriferous

Feb 22, 1881-In Death Not Divided - A highly respected and worthy family with numerous connections in this province are plunged in deep grief at the sudden death of two of its members within two days of each other. On Sat, about 7:45am, Captain John M Thain was found dead in his berth onboard barque Princess Royal, which vessel was loading with spars at Burrard Inlet. The body was placed onboard the little propeller Lenora and brought to Victoria on Sunday for interment. On Sat James N Thain, 59, a younger brother of the first-named deceased, was stricken with paralysis of the brain. He was conveyed to the hospital and died yesterday morning [Feb 21] about 11 o'clock.

Captain John M Thain was a n/o Saint John, NB, and formerly commanded seagoing vessels. He came to CA in 1850 and to Victoria in 1858. Here for many years he bore a prominent part in business affairs, and his active, burly figure was one of the most familiar features of Wharf street in the young days of this city.

James N Thain was a prominent business man of San Francisco in the pioneer days of that city, and in 1858 came to Victoria as agent for the great mercantile house of Sam Price & Co. He was foremost in the organization of the Victoria fire department, the Fraser River Navigation Co, which ran their boats through to Yale, and was a charter member of the first Masonic lodge instituted here. After 1862 he disappeared from the business circles, but emerged occasionally from his retirement to contribute articles on stirring topics for the press, and 'JNT' were familiar initials at the foot of many excellent communications.

The father and mother of the deceased gentlemen attained to a great age and are both buried in the cemetery here. The funerals will take place today at 2:30 o'clock as per advertisement. The demise of the brothers within two days of each other is a coincidence which, to say the least, is as remarkable as it is melancholy. Feb 23, 1881, 3 - Double funeral - Yesterday afternoon the remains of two of Victoria's pioneer residents - Captain John M and his brother, James N Thain, were conveyed to the place appointed for all living. The numerous funeral procession after leaving late residence of John M Thain, corner Blanchard & Fisgard streets, joined the other procession on Douglas near Fort street and thence both hearses proceeded to the Reformed Episcopal Church. Here the cortege was joined by another large concourse of people who filled the sacred edifice to its utmost capacity. Bishop Cridge read with much pathos that portion of the impressive burial service of the Church of England appointed to be read in churches. The choir sang the 174th hymn and, amid the solemn cadences of Chopin's Funeral March, which was played by the organist, Mr Durny, with great feeling, the pallbearers removed the coffins back again to the hearses. More than 20 carriages filled with relatives and friends of the deceased and a number of people on foot proceeded to Ross Bay cemetery, where the brothers were interred side by side. Bishop Cridge was several times overcome with emotion while reading the solemn burial service, and all were more or less affected by the scene. Captain Thain pallbearers: Fell, Waitt and McQuade, and Captains Walker, D Morrison, Warren. James N Thain pallbearers: D Adams, C Bunting, C McK Smith, S Robinson, R Austin, F

Yeaton. Mr C Hayward conducted both funerals.

Mar 24, 1881 - About 10 months ago an unfortunate woman took her own life on Broad st by swallowing poison. At the inquest it was stated that she was a n/o New Orleans, and the women of her class who mixed with her said that she gave evidence of good breeding and high education. It now appears that the wretched suicide was the d/o a prominent Louisiana banker whose family during the war were scattered. The daughter in question wandered from New Orleans to San Francisco, thence to Portland and finally to Victoria. Here she sank very low and finally died as stated. For several years efforts were made to find the erring one, but without success. At San Francisco all trace of her was lost until a few weeks ago, when, it is said, a legal firm of Victoria, BC obtained indisputable evidence to the effect that the wretched suicide of Broad st and the Louisiana banker's daughter were one and the same. Apr 1, 1881 - Odulia flies the first Spanish flag unfurled in Victoria harbor, since the explorations on this coast of the early Spanish voyagers.

Apr, 1881 - A Marine Monster A Spanish barque Odulia, which arrived last evening from Liverpool, and is now lying at Welch, Rithet & Co's wharf, has on board a tame walrus or sea lion. This animal was captured by Capt De Abortiz 13 yrs ago while cruising in Behrings Straits. It was then a 'pup' and was trained by him and has been his constant companion on all his voyages ever since. He is called 'Senor' and answers to his name or to a blast from a silver whistle blown by his master; but if blown by anyone else he pays not the slightest attention to the call. He eats bread and meat, enjoys tea and tobacco. He is as passionately fond of beer as an old toper and on many occasions has become genteelly 'tight' from imbibing too heavily. When caught he weighed only 19 pounds, but he turns the scale at 411 ½ pounds, has two enormous tusks, measures 6' 3" at the girth and is 8' 4" long. As the captain good-naturedly remarked as he showed the brute to a few visitors, he is becoming 'one big noosance.' In bright weather he sleeps in the sun on deck. During heavy blows he resorts to a kennel, but when the weather is calm he leaps overboard and sports about the ship for hours, catching and eating fish. When tired of swimming he is hauled on board in a great iron basket. On one occasion off the Cape of Good Hope a great shark tackled 'Senor,' laying hold of one of his paws and biting off two of his toes; but 'Senor' dove and coming up under his enemy's belly ripped him up with one thrust of his great tusks and devoured him with savage cries of delight and satisfaction. He is very fond of the captain and when the latter has been absent from the ship for a day or two he manifests his uneasiness by a thundering noise not unlike the sounds that might be emitted by 2 or 3 scores of dogs barking in chorus. 'Senor' is perfectly docile, allows himself to be patted on the head, and is very susceptible to kindness. Taken altogether 'Senor' is one of the most remarkable brutes ever brought here and would make a valuable acquisition for a menageries.

Apr 2, 1881- The Jokers' Own Day - Yesterday was a great day for practical fun makers. Old hats stuffed with bricks, envelopes filled with rubbish, parcels of straw tied up to represent valuable goods, bogus telegrams and letters, bottles of water palmed off for Scotch whiskey, deceiving the eye but not the palate of experienced imbibers, were amongst the many forms practical joking took. At a certain drug store a patent bottle for distributing perfume in a spray is kept on the glass case and exquisites on the road to visit their lady loves have been in the habit of making themselves 'smell sweet' by a resort of the bottle. Yesterday morning the proprietor of the store added a little asafoetida to the cologne and stood off to await results. Soon a dandy appeared in sight and observing the bottle as usual on the case with 'nobody nigh to hinder' drenched his coat, vest and hair with the spray before he discovered that he had made himself an object to be shunned for the rest of the day.

Two or three hundred people visited the barque Odulia to inspect the sea-horse reported to be kept onboard as a cabin pet by the captain. One gentleman, who is noted for his sketches of lion's heads, appeared on the wharf about 9 o'clock bearing a sketchbook and pencils and a pound of crackers - the latter to occupy the attention of the 'animal' while he was being transferred to paper. The artist was much disappointed when he ascertained that the sea-horse was the creation of a Colonist writer. When last seen the artist was making towards James Bay with the drawing materials and the pound of crackers secreted like a bustle beneath the tails of his coat.

Apr 24, 1881, 3 - A Ghastly Mystery - Remains of a murdered man found beneath the floor of a demolished building on Government st -

For several days past the work of demolishing Leadenhall Market, Omineca saloon and Vienna Market buildings, at crnr Johnson/Government sts, has gone briskly forward, and the structures on Friday evening were levelled with the ground and the debris mostly carried off. Yesterday morning workmen began to tear up the floors and about 9 o'clock reached the site of the back room of the Omineca Saloon. Before they had proceeded very far the foremost of the party raised a plank with a crowbar, and let it fall with an exclamation of horror. His fellow-workmen crowded about the spot as he again raised the plank, exposing to view a human skull with the upper jaw minus three teeth, and the lower jaw missing. The remainder of the planking was quickly torn up and more human remains were found - such as a leg bone in which the marrow was still visible; an ankle-joint; small bones as if of the feet or arms; a portion of the vertebrae; a kneecap, &c. The impression at first prevailed that the skeleton was that of an Indian and that the site was formerly used as a graveyard but that theory was soon exploded. The old graveyard was nearer the ravine. The remains were found lying on the top of the ground between two lengths of scantling which supported the floor - wedged in, as it were, between ground and floor; and by their side lay a rusty spade.

The remains could not have been there when the building was in course of erection 21 years ago or it would have been seen by the workmen and removed. Moreover, further search brought to light the lower jaw, split in two pieces, as if by a violent blow with a weapon of some kind, perhaps with the rust-eaten spade. These pieces of jaw, when put together and joined to the skull fitted exactly. Several front teeth of the upper jaw were gone as were several corresponding teeth of the lower jaw. Dr Trimble, who was shown the skull and jaws pronounces them to be that of a white person, and gives it as his opinion that the jaw had been split by violence. There is no room for doubt that the remains are those of some '62 miner who, with a full swag of dust staggered into the premises 18 or 19 yrs ago (perhaps later) and was there drugged, murdered and robbed. Long before passing into the hands of the proprietors of the Omineca Saloon the premises were known as the Pony Saloon. It was then a gambling all and kept by a gambler and a red-headed woman. It was the resort of the very worst characters. Old residents tell of horrible Bacchanalian orgies in which dissolute men and women joined. Many poor miners were robbed of their hard earnings there, and tumbled into the street penniless. If the walls of the back room could speak they would doubtless relate many tales of violence and robbery and throw a flood of light on this ghastly mystery. It is said that the gambler and the red-headed woman left suddenly in 1863, and it is not at all unlikely that, after having disposed of the body found yesterday and replaced the floor they fled from the scene of crime with their plunder. After the Pony Saloon was closed it was reopened as the Cariboo Saloon; and when the brightness of Cariboo began to pale the place passed into the respectable hands of John Stephens, who called it the Omineca.

The Police have taken the remains in charge and there may be an inquest. [No record of burial at Ross Bay cemetery]

Death of Frederick Victor Whittingham, eldest s/o late E.A. Whittingham, aged 5y, 8m. It will be remembered that this little boy had his thigh broken a short time since by a runaway horse. He had long been subject to epileptic fits and was in convulsions a long time previous to his death. The broken limb was examined after death and the bone was found to be well knitted. The little fellow was getting along very fairly so far as the broken limb was concerned, when death ensued. A 66 W 32

Douglas Memorial/May 8, 1881 - Mortimer & Reid have begun to shape the stone for the Douglas memorial column, which will be of granite. It is said to be the intention of the committee to erect the memorial at Beacon Hill, the Government having refused permission to erect it at the only suitable and fitting place, James Bay. They should do nothing of the kind. The time of the existing Government is growing mighty short. When the change comes full justice will be done to the memory of the good Sir James. Let the committee 'bide a wee'.

May 15, 1881 - New Westminster - Moses Ireland, one of Columbia's early pioneer miners, is embarking in an entirely new class of river mining. Boston Bar has been selected as the site of operations. That bar was very rich and big pay was obtained down as far into the river bed as the lowest stage of water would admit of the 'pay dirt' being followed. Mr Ireland proposes, by means of a cassion, to mine under water portions of the bar inaccessible by ordinary methods. Should the experiment succeed, other bars equally rich, will doubtless be similarly operated upon.

Died at Angel Hotel, Victoria, BC, Thomas Spence, Jun 5, 1881. Fell down a flight of stairs, found by a daughter of Mr Carne, proprietor. Spence, a man whose name has been prominently identified with many important public works in the province since the days of the first gold rush in 1858. The body was taken in charge by the Pioneer and St Andrew's and Caledonian Societies. 'Tom' Spence, as he was familiarly known throughout the length and breadth of BC, was a n/o Dundee, Sct, aged c 60. He went to CA about 30 years ago and was engaged there in extensive mining and ditch enterprises. At one time he amassed considerable wealth. In 1858 he came to BC and spent much time and money in bringing water upon a flat on Fraser river above Lytton for mining purposes. In 1862 or '63 he secured a bridge franchise and constructed what is known as Spence's Bridge across Thompson river. Afterwards for many years he was division superintendent on the Cariboo wagon road. In 1873 he removed one of the Sister Rocks above Hope, and for past 6 years has been engaged in removing Beaver rock in this harbour. Spence was an amiable, kind-hearted man and as true as steel to the interests of a friend. He had an active mind and constantly conceived great schemes and projects to a public nature; but in their execution in this country he was scarcely ever successful in a pecuniary sense. Benjamin Pitt Griffin, since 1858 proprietor of the Boomerang Inn in Victoria, BC died Aug 7, 1881, after a painful illness of four months. Mr Griffin was possessed of many good qualities and was one of the best-informed and most intellectual men in the province. Born at London, Eng, in 1809, in his young days he received a liberal education, and afterwards learned the trade of goldbeating. In 1832, having meanwhile attracted the attention of some capitalists, he was engaged to proceed to Australia and enter the service of the Commercial Bank there. He remained many years, and in 1849, upon the discovery of gold in CA, crossed to this coast. In 1851 or '52 he opened the Boomerang Inn in San Francisco, and in 1858 came to Victoria and opened the Boomerang Inn here. He continued, with the exception of a short interval which was passed in Government employ, to conduct that popular place of resort until the day of his death. Griffin was a man of benevolent and kindly disposition. He was never known to turn a man hungry from his door, and he was often imposed upon by undeserving persons who could relate a pitiful tale of woe with dramatic effect. The deceased gentleman never saw a railway. He went to Australia before Stephenson invented the railway. he left Australia for CA before railways reached the Antipodes. He left CA before the railroad invaded the state; and he frequently predicted that he would leave Victoria before a track had been laid on the Island. His prediction has been fulfilled. A loving daughter and kind friends watched beside the dying man through his long illness and closed his eyes on Sunday. It is understood that by the will of deceased all the property goes to his daughter, Mrs George Grant of San Francisco, who is now in this city. Funeral - A mournful cortege of about 20 carriages, with a large number of people on foot, accompanied the hearse from the deceased's late residence to the Reformed Episcopal church. Oct 11, 1881 - For some time a diminutive monkey has been kept on a chain at the Park Hotel. On Sat evening he slipped his chain and ran off.

In his wanderings about 9:00 he came to the house of Mr Wolfenden, James Bay, and entering at a window found several children in the house,
the parents being temporarily
absent. The monkey immediately got into bed with the children, scaring them half to death. They struggled with the horrid thing thinking for a while that it was a cat; and after some time their screams

drew the attention of Mr J Nicholles, who happened to be near. He ran over and secured the animal after considerable risk. Two of the children fought with the monkey and were bitten - one of the face and nose severely. Another of the boys acted with much intrepidity and stamped upon the monkey, but his little legs were badly bitten and scratched, and the monkey not hurt in the least. The brute
was taken home and secured.
About an hour before Mr Wolfenden's house was invaded a gentleman who was taking an airing near Beacon Hill was startled when a strange something darted from the side of the road and fastened its teeth in his leg.
He put down his hand and feeling the hairy body dealt it several hard whacks with his walking stick when the brute dropped off and bounded away. [Oct 12 Colonist

Rodgers, for several years past
a mem/o the Victoria and Nanaimo pilot boards.
weeks ago with Mrs Rodgers intending to try the effect of a southern climate on his health.

Mr Rodgers was a pioneer of this province, having arrived here by barque Alice Thorndyke early in 1862. He, with pilot Ramsay and others, entered good service when that vessel was laid nearly on her beam ends near Race Rocks. Shortly after arriving here he went up to Lillooet and had charge of the ferry across the Fraser for about a year. When Comox was first settled in the fall of '62 a section was taken up for him between that of Capt Musters and late Mr Fitzgerald, upon which he lived for 9 or 10 years from '63, and then sold out to Capt Musters. After this he proceeded to Cassiar and there had a sharp attack of snow blindness. Returning from this mining region, he was employed steamboating as mate of Sir James Douglas and other steamers till his appointment as pilot in these waters a few years ago. Mr Rodgers was a genial, kindhearted, sturdy Scotchman, only c 50 and a sailor by profession. His new residence on Church hill was only completed a short time since. His death, by heart disease. After planting several well-directed blows on the face of her opponent, he struck her a heavy blow on the mouth, knocking out some of her teeth. About this time Supt O'Connor came along, and taking the woman into custody he started off in pursuit of her antagonist in a carriage, and soon overhauled him. Both belligerents were taken to gaol; but were soon liberated on their own recognisances of $50 each to appear at the police court tomorrow. The woman handed out a $20 piece from her purse, and diving down into her stocking foot produced the balance of the cash. The casus belli was an old account which the female combatant alleged was long overdue, payment of which had been refused. Work/Died Jul 1, 1882 John Hutchinson, whose arm was crushed on board Dredger tender, at the Royal Hospital, Victoria, BC, from shock sustained by his system. Deceased was a man of great strength and Herculean size and was a n/o Saint John, NB, aged 55. His friends, some of whom had known him from childhood, complain that upon calling at the hospital and learning that he was dying they were denied access to him and that he was buried on Sun at public expense when they had arranged to give him a proper funeral. The grave of the poor young man Hutchinson, who was buried on Sun was found to be too narrow and that in lowering the coffin it hung at the sides and now rests with only 2' of earth over it. There should be an inquiry instituted by the civic authorities, so that it might be ascertained whether the gravedigger or the undertaker is to blame. Such barbarous treatment of the dead cannot be tolerated for a moment. Letter to Editor, signed Gilbert Robinson, Steward, Royal Hospital - Jul 6, 3; Letter to Editor, signed H M Wright, Jul 12, 2; Jul 18 - body of late John Hutchinson was exhumed Sun by four men specially engaged by the corporation and reinterred in 6' of ground in the Methodist block. It was found that the coffin was originally placed 23" below the surface, and the friends of the deceased who were present in large numbers, were loud in their condemnation of the civic authorities for permitting this outrage to occur. It is hoped that in future the cemetery committee will issue orders to the gravedigger to dig graves at least 6' deep. Jul 18, 1882 - Some months ago a monkey entered a private residence at James Bay and bit several children. He was banished by his owner and has recently found a home - of all places in the world - at Government buildings under the protecting care of the premier! Within the last few days the brute has bitten 3 children, one very severely, in the leg. Why the premier should harbor a monkey, of all things in the world, we cannot possibly imagine, unless there be some political chicanery enveloped beneath the monkey's skin. In any case the animal should be destroyed, even if its death should encompass the downfall of the government. Jul 20, 3 - Mr Beaven's predilection for an 'organ' is notorious; and now that he has got a monkey, the public may expect soon to hear of his making the tour of the province on foot.

Marine/Aug 01, 1882 - One of Victoria's most active and enterprising citizens was cut down by the grim Reaper Jul 31, 1882. Capt James Arnold Raymur, who for some 3 months had lain on a bed of sickness, died. His last hours were painless, and he expired surrounded by his wife and children and other relatives, scarcely conscious of their presence. Capt Raymur was born at Halifax, NS, in 1823 and was in his 60th year. For some years he commanded vessels in the West Indian trade and subsequently entered the service of the well-known firm of Anderson, Anderson, of Liverpool. He took command of one of their tea-clippers and made several quick passages between Hongkong and London. The first cargo of tea landed in Halifax from Hongkong was brought by a vessel which the deceased commanded. Capt Raymur came to the Island in 1864, while still in the employ of Anderson Anderson, who had heavy lumbering interests at Alberni Canal. When that firm returned Capt Raymur became manager of the Hastings Mills on Burrard

Inlet, in succession to late Capt Stamp, and has since retained that position, discharging the important duties with credit to himself and fidelity and profit to the company that employed him. The fatal illness began with a severe cold, and terminated in heart disease and dropsy. With Capt Raymur a well known figure has disappeared from our midst. It will be a long time before the vacancy in business circles his departure has caused will be filled. He has been taken away in the fullness of a useful career. Those who knew him well appreciated his private virtues, his unostentatious charity and his great business capacity. All enterprises tending to the development of local industries found in Capt Raymur a warm friend and a generous promoter. Mrs Raymur and two sons - Messrs James and George Raymur - and two sisters survive the deceased. Funeral will leave Pt Pleasant, James Bay. The body was enclosed in a handsome black walnut casket... Marine/Died at Royal Hospital, Victoria, BC, Aug 22, 1882, of paralysis, Captain Jimmy Jones, 58. One of BC's most noted characters, whose celebrity extended down to lower CA, Mexico and even South America, ended a turbulent life. Jimmy Jones has for nearly 30 years figured very conspicuously in the coasting annals of the province having arrived here in 1854. A Welshman by birth he left his native mountains in early life in search of his father whom he found in the coal mines of Pennsylvania. His innate love of adventure led him overland to Salt Lake with a detachment of Mormons, and from thence the '49 excitement in CA took him over the Sierras to that Eldorado. Four or five years of mining life contented him with gold digging and he next found himself at work in the Bellingham Bay coal mine. Here, for the first time in his life he made money, and with it built or bought a schooner called Emily Parker in which during the first Fraser river excitement of 1858 he embarked in the carrying trade between the Sound and this port. This schooner ran aground and was burned at Ross Bay, after which he built the schooner Carolena and sailed her chiefly in the coal trade between Nanaimo and this port. Another schooner was purchased by Jimmy on the Sound and called Jenny Jones. In this craft he made a few trips to the Columbia, and about 1863 or 1864 he got engines put into her in this city, but on again going to the Sound being heavily in debt the sheriff seized her. Jimmy, however, ran away from Olympia with the sherriff's officer, landed him somewhere on the Sound and came over here where another attachment awaited the vessel. This time the sheriff was taken off and landed between here and Nanaimo, and at the latter place Jones got a hint as to where he could smuggle some refuse coal on board. This was done between two days and the vessel was headed for Johnstone Strait and the northern part of the Island. When fairly out into the broad Pacific he made sail for the south and ran all the way down to Mexico, where a good sale was effected; but unfortunately in the then unsettled condition of that country he was cheated out of the purchase money and was glad to escape with his life. After a while Jimmy got a situation as a watchman onboard steamer California, and the first trip to this port, by a well executed manoeuvre, he got his wife from where she was staying in the country on board of the ship and away to CA. In the course of a few years his debts here were forgotten or condoned and the irrepressible Jimmy returned. He sailed schooner Discovery for Englehardt & Bales and afterwards made occasional trips for coal. On one occasion while lying at the wharf in this city, by some means or other the schooner sank with a load of coal on board. The Dominion government raised the vessel and when put up at auction Jimmy bought her for a mere trifle. Poor Jimmy's active and adventurous career was now drawing to a close. The hard life he had been leading and the severe privations which he had endured were undermining a naturally hardy and strong constitution, until at last he was entirely disabled by repeated attacks of paralysis and died at the age of about 52. He married here early in the 1860s, and leaves two sons, one of whom is engaged at the Skidegate oil fishery. His widow is an inmate of the lunatic asylum. A 035 E 30 *

Marine/Died at Victoria, BC, Sep 29, 1882, after a painful illness, Robert Laing, shipbuilder, aged 66, n/o St Andrew's, Sct. Born the year after Waterloo, he was early in life apprenticed to the ship carpentering business, and while yet young married and became the father of 5 children, 3 boys and 2 girls. About the year '49 or '50 he shipped as carpenter on board a vessel bound for Aus; and after staying awhile at Melbourne, then a young city, proceeded to San Francisco in '51 with his old captain, named Rooney. The following year Capt Rooney fitted out a schooner called Susan Sturgess for a trading and prospecting voyage to Queen Charlotte Island. The first trip was a successful one so far as trading for halibut was concerned, and Capt

Laing and two or three others were left on the island while the schooner went back to San Francisco and returned with another stock of goods for trading purposes. The whole party were again on board and while nr Masset, close in shore and becalmed, the cupidity of a powerful band of Hydah Indians being aroused, and a large northern war canoe was manned and the Indians, 60 or 70 in number, stealthily paddled alongside the schooner. As the gunwale of their canoe was almost on a level with the deck of the schooner the savages swarmed over the sides, seized and bound the men on deck and captured those that were below as they came up the companion ladder, thus securing the whole party, some 13 in number. They threw a fair-sized cannon which the schooner carried overboard, took ashore a large lot of plunder, and broke open an iron safe and secured $1,500 in American gold coin. After landing prisoners and booty and stripping the vessel they set her on fire, the captain and crew witnessing the destruction of their stout little craft. The ill-fated voyagers were not otherwise ill-treated, and after about 6 weeks' captivity some half dozen of the men, among whom were the deceased Andrew Laing and Capt Rooney, were taken over to Ft Simpson; then in charge of late Capt McNeill with John Wark as chief clerk. Here they were ransomed, the HBC paying 10 blankets and a gun, equivalent to 140 marten skins for each man. The Indians wanted a higher ransom for the rest and they were only released after some difficulty. About Christmas, '52, the whole crew were sent down to Fort Victoria in steamer Beaver, then commanded by late Capt Dodd. With the exception of the deceased they all went back to San Francisco, and Capt Rooney was afterwards twice taken prisoner by the Kaffirs on the coast of Africa. HMS Virago, Capt, afterwards, Admiral Prevost, was then on the coast and he proceeded to Masset to chastize the Hydahs for their daring and successful capture; but the Siwashes having had timely warning of the warship's approach, fled to hiding places in the interior with their booty and left only women and children in their rancheries. The policy of the HBC being one of conciliation no further punishment was inflicted upon them. Mr Laing engaged with the HBC and had charge of their sawmill at Albert Head till it was burned down in '54. He afterwards came back to the Fort and built the old house yet standing near the Driard on the crnr View/Broad sts. He then sent for his wife and family and occupied that house till '59 where the shipyard was established when for 23 yrs he has been carrying on business. Mr Laing has for the past 9 years been a widower. His eldest son went to Aus and died in Queensland in '56. Died at Victoria, BC, Jan 19, 1883, Anthony J McDonnell, n/o Essex, Eng, aged 76. Funeral from French Hospital. Was not altogether a commonplace man. His father, an Irish dragoon of the O'Malley type, left the family nearly destitute and Anthony had to contribute to their support before he had received more than the mere rudiments of an education. He took to the needle, as his mother said they could never invent a machine to sew. In '49 he left London for CA and had his share of the rapid alternations of good and bad luck of those early days. In 1860 he came to BC, where he has since resided. In disposition he was highly sensitive, a quick observer and shrewd judge of character. Though thoroughly independent in spirit, he retained much of the deference to position usual with Old Country people. His mode of life was penurious, almost squalid, yet he supported a sister in comfort in Eng, and never refused to contribute to any charitable object. G 050 W 18

Died at Victoria, BC, Feb 11, 1883, William Sandford, 48, of Cache Creek, n/o Nova Scotia. Funeral from St Joseph's Hospital. Mr Sandford will be much missed in the Cache Creek section of BC where he has resided for about 20 years. Deceased was familiarly known by the name of 'Boston' for many years after he commenced farming, stock raising and hotel keeping in and near the Bonaparte river. He came from CA to Fraser river during the excitement of 1858 when quite a young man and was afterward employed on the international boundary line. He subsequently took up one of the finest ranches about Cache Creek, which he has occupied ever since. Sandford's energy and enterprise were proverbial. After making considerable money, during the first 10 or 12 years of his residence on the Bonaparte he undertook to bring water to an extensive flat between Ashcroft and Cache Creek from the Bonaparte river some 11 or 12 miles upstream. This work necessitated a great deal of fluming, but it was eventually found that the fall was not sufficient and the work was finally abandoned after nearly $15,000 had been expended. Notwithstanding this heavy loss, which would have utterly discouraged many men, the deceased kept bravely at his work and had so far recovered his position that his family is left in comparatively good circumstances. Yale district has lost two of its most valuable and respected residents within 6 months, namely, Preston Bennett and W H Sandford - men that the district and province can ill afford to do without. ChHx/Apr 3, 1883, 2 - Letter to Editor - I hear some of Wang Foong's friends are trying to get him a new trial. He was sentenced to 14 years for manslaughtering my brother. I ask most respectfully that the public will not hear of such a thing as a new trial for this man. His guilt was established to the satisfaction of the judge and jury. There was no doubt in any one's mind that he killed my poor brother. But Wang Foong he has got money and rich friends. If they can find a little hole or flaw in the indictment they will make it big enough for Wang Foong to crawl through it out of prison. His conviction has given the Chinamen a high idea of British law. Every man he now knows if he has an injury he can go to law and have the man who hurt him sent to prison. If Wang Foong gets out again this feeling of security will vanish.

I hope, Mr Editor, that Wang Foong, the guilty man, will not escape from a punishment he so richly merits. On Ching, Victoria.

Mr Muir came to the country in 1849 to develop certain coal measures at Ft Rupert. After working there awhile a discovery of coal was made at Nanaimo, and Mr Muir, proceeding to that place, opened the first coal mine, thus laying the foundation of one of the chief sources of BC's importance and wealth. Subsequently Mr Muir retired to Sooke in 1851, where he bought the beautiful tract of land which has since been successfully farmed by himself and sons. In 1854 Mr Muir was appointed to the first assembly, representing Sooke. Previous to that he was appointed by HM a magistrate of the (then) colony of VI, and held the Queen's commission till the day of his death, being in fact, the last survivor of the old list of magistrates who held their appointments from HM. For many years Mr Muir has lived in retirement, surrounded by his family. Although in his 84th year the deceased enjoyed excellent health until two days before his death, when, having contracted a severe cold, he quickly succumbed.

BkHx/Bldg/May 2, 1883 - Two old bldgs on Yates st opposite Langley were sold by auction yesterday to Mr Hayward. They will be torn down and removed immediately. These buildings have a history. They were erected in 1858 when lumber was $100M, other materials dear in proposition and carpenter's wages $10 a day. The cost to put up in the roughest and cheapest style $3,500. They brought $5 yesterday. In the larger of the two was located Ringo's restaurant. Ringo was a gigantic colored man, deeply pockmarked, with a very pretty, ladylike wife. Ringo himself had been a slave. He nursed his master thorough an attack of smallpox, contracted the disease himself and upon recovering was given his freedom. He was famed far and wide for his cuisine. The famous John Scranton, who then held the mail contract on Puget Sound always made his headquarters while in Victoria at Ringo's. Champagne was accustomed to flow like water during his stay - 'just for grandeur,' according to John's favorite expression. Every notable who came to Victoria in those days was escorted at once to Ringo's to get a square meal. This was considered the highest mark of hospitality that could be shown him. On one occasion in 1861, when bad blood first began to show itself between N and S, two Americans fell to wrangling one day in Ringo's. Blows were exchanged and pistols drawn. Ringo, in the kitchen, heard the row and running out threw his great long arms about both men, and gathered them to his greasy breast. He held them there as in a vice until they consented to put up their pistols and shake hands. The early Victorian abominated tall hats and the appearance of a man wearing one was sure to excite unfavorable comment. One evening a stranger wearing a shiny plug deposited it on Ringo's counter and proceeded to discuss a substantial dinner. When he came to replace the hat on his head his horror may be imagined to find the juice of half-a-dozen eggs and the oil from a pound of soft butter trickling down his face. Some mean wag had broken the eggs and placed them and the butter in the hat while the guest unconsciously enjoyed his dinner. Ringo was a kind, good man - very charitable and attentive to the sick. The poor old chap, his wife and many of his former guests have long since been gathered to their fathers; and today the old building which was the scene of his greatest epicurean achievements will follow them to the land of shadows. Sic transit!

Bldg/Victoria's First Hotel - Jun 14, 1883 - The Thistle corner building, known to all old residents as Bayley's Hotel, was sold to Mr Architect Trounce yesterday for $20, and the work of tearing down began immediately. In a day or two nothing will be left to mark the spot where stood the pioneer hotel of Victoria. The building was erected by Charles A Bayley about 1854 for hotel purposes. When the 'rush' came in 1858 the upper flat, a mere loft, was furnished with cots and straw mattresses, and there the early goldseekers were wont to stretch their weary limbs at $2 per head and gasp for breath in a fetid and overcharged atmosphere until the morning light forced its way into the apartment through the tiny windows on the Yates street side. In 1858 J C Keenan leased the barroom until lately occupied by Mr Thistle, and dispensed cocktails at two bits a glass. At that period water was very scarce - the supply being obtained from a spring at Spring Ridge and drawn about town in carts and delivered at people's doors. Consequently a 'bit' a glass for water was the tariff at all the town bars. Yates and other streets were then mere lanes although a city had been laid out and mapped some years before. It is said that Bayley accidentally built his hotel on the street line, and that rather than disturb what was then the finest building in Victoria, the surveyors shifted the pegs and produced the disagreeable and unsightly 'jog' from Government to Broad street. Other and better hotels soon arose, and Bayley's then closed its doors. It was next converted into a meat market and continued as such until Mr Thistle leased it for saloon purposes. About 1864 a tragic event took place upstairs. A butcher named Gray was supposed to have conceived a passion for poisoning dogs with strychnine. He would call a passing canine and present him with a bone plentifully sprinkled with the deadly white grains. In a few minutes the poor brute would heel over and die. Everyone decried Gray for his apparent cruelty; but as it turned out he was experimenting in the interest of science - to ascertain the power of strychnine. When he had found out just how long it took to kill a dog he took a dose himself and died in a short time. The old building will be replaced by a handsome three-storey hotel.

ChHx/Murder/Sep 4, 1883, 3 - Assizes...

Peter Cranoelli was observed to remain closed Sep 3, 1883 and as the owner was known to be a punctual man of business it was remarked upon as strange, especially when taking into account the fact that he had not been observed since the previous Sat night, when he was observed putting up the shutters. Word was sent to the Supt of police who forced an entrance into the store, and passed through to the bedroom, where he found Cranoelli dead on the bed. Cranoelli before settling in BC had been employed in running a fruit schooner on the CA coast. For yrs past he had conducted a very profitable grocery, clothing and liquor business, principally among the Indians, who on hearing the news of his death flocked round the entrance to the store and anxiously enquired as to their chances of obtaining various sums of money which they had been in the habit of banking with Mr Cranoelli, who was 65. He was quite wealthy and leaves a nephew in Victoria. Sep 7; Is believed to have died the possessor of a large amount of cash; but only $310 has been unearthed. Sep 8...he had a large stock, drove a thriving trade and paid cash down for all that he bought. He was believed to be worth some $60,000 in hard cash. Since his sudden death his establishment has been partly overhauled and only the sum of $310 was found stowed away in a very unlikely place to select for the deposit of valuable. Yesterday it was reported that $17,000 had been dug up in the dead man's back yard. The report was unfounded, but a strict search will be instituted. His friends say that the old man was in the habit of walking to Beacon Hill every Sun and disappearing in a small thicket. He always went alone. It is thought now that he had a secret hiding place in the neighborhood of the hill, and the chances are now decidedly against the treasure being found. In the future age some excavator may stumble upon Peter Cranoelli's wealth, and wonder at the queer shaped coins and strange looking bank notes people in the present day used in commerce. Sep 9...a few days before his death Cranoelli was seen to go into the bush at Beacon Hill park. Those who observed him have since jumped to the conclusion that he could only have gone there for one purpose, and that was, to hide his money. Nearly everyone who could buy or borrow a shovel has prospected in the vicinity, which now bears the appearance of a potato patch with the crop cleared off. Sep 13...only $580 in all has been found. Sep 16, yesterday the indefatigable searchers for the hidden wealth were rewarded by discovering monies amounting to $1,045, in two sums, one consisting of $400 in BNA notes and the other

$645 in gold. Both amounts were stumbled upon in the most unlooked for places. The hearth, generally a very likely place, was searched without avail. In another obscure hole, which had been used for depositing money, the sum of 50 cents was found. The quest will not be relinquished until all the goods have been removed and every conceivable place ransacked. N/o Dalmatia, Austria, age 65. C 003 W 26

Died at Victoria, BC, Sep 4, 1883, John Russell Jackson, 20. Funeral from res/o Mrs Work, Hillside Farm. Two men were engaged on Broad st in harnessing a pair of spirited young horses to the Transfer Co's omnibus, just round the corner, on Johnson st, John Russell Jackson, s/o late E H Jackson of Hillside, was preparing one of the company's landaus for the st. The men on Broad st had secured the horses to the omnibus, when a hapless boy, mounted on a tricycle, came thundering along the walk. The horses grew restive. The men called to the boy to go back, but apparently he did not understand what they said as he continued to advance. The horses plunged and broke away from the men. They ran diagonally across Broad st and turning the corner sharply into Johnson galloped along the walk on the N side towards Government st. In their mad career, with the reins trailing, they were seen by Jackson. He left the landau and seizing the reins as the horses passed checked them for an instant and turned their heads towards the street. A bystander saw one of the infuriated animals kick him on the breast twice. Jackson fell backwards and under the wheels of the omnibus, which passed over the left side from the shoulder to the hips, crushing in his ribs, breaking his spine and inflicting other terrible and fatal injuries. He was picked up bleeding, broken and senseless. Dr Jackson, who was quickly summoned, pronounced the hurt fatal. An express wagon was hailed and the poor young man taken to the Royal Hospital, where he breathed his last. Just before he died his sister reached his bedside. He pronounced her name and then expired. The horses after leaving the sidewalk crossed the street, where the wheels of the omnibus locked with a verandah post in front of Goodacre & Dooley's. One of the horses fell at this place and both were secured. The brave act of young Jackson in steering, at the sacrifice of his life, the runaways into the street, probably saved several lives. He was aged c 20, was n/o Victoria Dist, and leaves a sorrowing mother, brothers, sisters and other relatives. Inquest - Sep 5, 3. N/o Victoria Dist. B 82 W 31

Sep 5, 1883 - An Indian burial took place yesterday, but it was conducted in a manner peculiar to the Siwash. Several of the mourners - all of whom were in a large canoe - had improvised a seat out of the large travelling trunk into which the corpse had been doubled up and stuffed. Roars of laughter proceeded from the occupants of the canoe, apparently provoked by the witticisms of their companions, and the event seemed to be a matter for general congratulation. The arrival on the scene of a near relative of the deceased, for whom the canoe had been detained, was a signal for renewed sounds of jollity; and as they paddled away a stranger, judging only from the fun and merriment, would have mistaken them for a picnic party bound for the Gorge.

Died at Victoria, BC, Sep 6, 1883, Philip Cadell, 73, late of Auchending paper mill, near Edinburgh, Sct. Funeral from his late residence, View street. An old and eccentric gentleman who has resided in Victoria since 1859. He was n/o Sct, and spent some time in CA and Mexico before coming to BC, where he arrived in 1859, and has been in the employ of the HBC for a number of years past. He was a quiet, unassuming man with some eccentricities of character, and made few friends. His great hobby through life appears to have been machinery in connection with gold mining, and at one time he devoted himself almost exclusively to this subject. He got out a model of a machine for gold washing, which he claimed was peculiarly applicable for poor claims, and gave some lectures on it, and finally patented it in Canada and US. Like many other inventors he seemed to think that fortune would some day favour him in regard to this invention, and so she did, though not in exactly in the way he anticipated, for he must have spent many pleasant hours, which otherwise might have been solitary in perfecting his favorite hobby. News/Education/Died at Victoria, BC, Sep 9, 1883, Charles W Rigg, n/o Leeds, Eng, aged 57. Body found floating and removed to the police barracks where it was identified. In a room in the St Nicholas Hotel, occupied by deceased, were found 3 photographs of children of Mr Rigg, who reside in Dunedin, NZ, where the family occupy a respectable position in society. He went to Tasmania nearly 40

yrs ago in the interest of an English dry goods house. Afterwards he entered the ministry of the Methodist church and married. Seven or 8 yrs ago he went to Portland, OR and thence came to Victoria where he has since resided. He filled the pulpit of the Methodist church in Victoria for a few months, and showed great force and ability as an exhorter. Afterwards he became a minister at Wellington, and later a school teacher. Latterly he has reported for several city papers and corresponded with others abroad. He was well educated and read, amiable and kindly in disposition. In his misfortunes he found a few friends who kept him from actual want. His only fault was too little opinion of himself and too light an appreciation of the great talents with which a kind providence had endowed him. Funeral: The solemn sound of the falling clods of earth seemed to recall with increased intensity the fact that the coffin contained one who had died away from home or family, in a far and distant land. Died at Victoria, BC, Sep 10, 1883, Albert Edmund, only s/o J W/ M A Williams, aged 11y, 2m. A sad accident, the deceased went out riding with a companion, Harry Shakespeare, the latter on a job horse, and 'Bertie' on a grey belonging to him. The lads had just passed the gates of the Ross Bay cemetery, on their way from town, both going at a sharp pace when the horse ridden by young Williams - who was in advance of his friend - shied at a plank in the bridge close by, and in doing so, fell, throwing his rider. It happened so quickly that Shakespeare, who was close behind, was unable to stop his horse, which fell over the grey and across the body of the prostrate lad, who was picked up lifeless. He was carried into the sexton's house close by and assistance telephoned for. The horses meantime had galloped away in different directions, but were caught before going far. Beyond a few bruises Shakespeare was unhurt. Dr Davie, who was summoned, examined the body of little Williams and pronounced life extinct. A carriage containing Mr Williams soon arrived on the spot and conveyed the body of the poor little lad to his home. On the same horse his brother had met with an accident, from the effects of which he afterwards died, and the afflicted father gave orders last night for the disposal of the animal, saying he never wished to see it again. Bertie was an amiable and intelligent disposition and a general favorite with all who knew him and even those who are acquainted with the parents by little more than name, have expressed their deep sympathy for them under this heavy blow. Died at Victoria, Sep 15, 1883, Otto Adolphe Hartnagel, n/o Karlsruhe, Baden, Germany, aged 50. Funeral from the Driard House. One of the proprietors of the Driard

He left his home when 21 and went to London and Paris, where he mastered the art of cookery. He came to BC in 1864 with the intention of farming; but seeing no favorable opening returned to his old profession, and was quickly recognized as a first-class artiste, and it is owing to his skill that the fame of the Driard House as the best hotel on the Pacific coast, has become so world wide. A kind father, an amiable and affectionate husband, he spared no pains of expense in the education of his children, who with their widowed mother sincerely mourn their irreparable loss. About 3 am Nov 1, 1883, Officer Hough was notified at the police station by a woman named Lou Dolberry, residing on Broad st nr the London Hotel, that there was a man named John Anderson lying dead at her house. She also stated that she had called upon one doctor, but that he refused to attend. She further stated that she had been driving round with Anderson that night, and that they had been upset several times, and she supposed the deceased must have got hurt then. The man's watch was on the mantle piece and about 30 cents were found upon him. The woman was detained in custody. It appears that the parties were seen driving round that night in a light spring cart in the neighborhood of the Catholic Cathedral, and that by some 3 parties were seen in the cart, and by others two and one walking behind. The 3rd party is the one wanted. Inquest on the body of John Anderson, farmer at the head of the arm. Jury proceeded to the house on Broad st, nr the London Hotel, where the deceased was found lying on his back on the floor, partially clothed but with no marks of violence on his person. Dr Jackson expressed opinion deceased had come to his death by bruises or contusions he had received on the head, which it was possible he might have received by falling from a buggy. The examination of Martha Dolberry gave the facts that she and deceased had driven round that night in a two wheeled spring cart that capsized the last time near Beacon Hill, when deceased was apparently much hurt and carried to her house. Dr Trimble was summoned but did not come. She then called on one of the nightwatchmen, who arrested her. A sailor stated that he and his shipmate found the buggy upset on Humboldt st and the deceased lying on the ground. Death through a fall from a buggy. Funeral - Odd Fellows. A 049 E 28.

The inhabitants in the vicinity of Millstream, Parson's Bridge, were startled to hear that a young man named Weir, had, while out shooting, come upon the dead body of a man lying behind a log on the mud left by the receding tide in the Millstream, a little above the brickyard. The body was only attired in pants and boots and appeared to be that of a man c 30 to 35...; Feb 6, 1884 - When the body was brought to Haywards, and the cover of the shell removed, it was instantly recognized by Mr Maynard, the expressman, also by Mr Morley, blacksmith, and several of the city police, as that of Henry Winnecot, a gardener, who worked round Victoria, and has a wife living in the city. The body was further recognized by an indent worn in the teeth on the left side of the mouth caused by the clay pipe which was constantly smoked by the deceased. So far the affair is shrouded in mystery...; Feb 7 - The body was today identified as that of Paul Higgley [Hagle in RBC records], a Swede, who was employed at the Rock Bay Tannery, who has been missing from there since the first week in Jan. Henry Wanacot, a gardener, is ascertained working at the Four-Mile House, alive and well. G 037 E 12

Work/Died at Esquimalt, BC, May 8, 1884, Daniel McGlade, n/o NY and late of San Francisco, CA, aged 41. SS Umatilla, is lying at the bottom of Esquimalt harbour in about 40 fathoms of water. Diver Daniel McGlade descended in submarine armor. He was an experienced diver, having been employed by Capt Whitelaw for the purpose of assisting at the special work on hand. The men in attendance on the scow above received a signal from McGlade to haul up. They immediately proceeded to comply when to their horror it was found that the line had fouled. As quickly as possible another diver, who was at work under water in another part of the wreck, was raised and went down to the relief of his comrade. With some difficulty he freed the line, the men on the scow hauled away and McGlade, armor-clad, was soon lying on the scow. The visor was thrown back when the unfortunate man was discovered in the agonies of death, his features being black and distorted. He seemed to breathe once or twice and then the little life that was left in him went out. One of the glasses in the headpiece was found to be smashed, but only a gallon of water was found inside the suit, showing that death could hardly have resulted from drowning. Deceased had a wife and children residing on East st, San Francisco. Pallbearers:

Messrs Thomas Harmon, A White, W Martin, J Wallace, submarine divers engaged on the wreck, and Messrs W Whitman, Hanson and Gilmore, divers assistants, with Mr Keeler of Esquimalt. The funeral was taken charge of by Capt Whitelaw and it is intended to take up a subscription for the wife and family of the deceased, whom, it may be stated, was a n/o Dumbarton, Sct, although he had resided from his boyhood in NY. Died at Victoria, BC, May 9, 1884, Alexander Caulfield Anderson, 71. One of the most intellectual and valued pioneer citizens of BC. Born in Calcutta, India, Mar 10, 1814. He received a liberal education in England, and very early in life entered the service of the HBC. Nearly 50 years ago he crossed the continent via Yellowhead Pass from York Factory on Hudson Bay to Port Simpson, then one of the HBC's principal posts on the Pacific coast, and for many years was regarded as one of the company's most intelligent, energetic and successful officers. In 1838 Mr Anderson married the eldest d/o James Birnie of Oregon. In 1858 he retired from the company and occupied the position of the first collector of customs of BC and postmaster of Victoria. Many years afterwards he was appointed a commissioner for the settlement of the Indian land question and at the time of his death was fishery commissioner for the province. His last important public services were the collection and forwarding of specimens of edible fish to the International Fisheries Exhibition in London, England, and the selection of a site for a salmon hatchery on a small tributary of the Fraser river... Mrs Anderson died some 10 years ago and was laid away to rest at South Saanich. Her husband will be laid by her side. Mr Anderson's mother, aged 92, is still alive and well at Georgian Bay, ON. The deceased leaves a numerous family of children and grandchildren. His sons are James R, Harry, Alexander, Walter, Allen, Arthur. His daughters: Mrs Beattie (resident in NZ), Mrs Gaudin and Miss Anderson, residents of Victoria. May 11, 1884 - Two ladies who have sons buried in the S portion of Ross Bay cemetery and who have been in the habit of keeping the graves supplied with flowers, have observed for some months that they were desecrated and the flowers carried away. No clue appeared until yesterday afternoon, when the ladies visited the cemetery. While there they observed a man at the graves whom they first thought was one they knew and called out to him. On going up to him, however, they found he had been removing the flowers, and they at once accused him of the theft. The man denied the act. One of the graves was enclosed by a fence, which the man had to jump in leaving it.

Jun 8, 1884: A letter from Mr D E Laing, dated Seymour Narrows, Jun 2, states that 3 men were drowned about the 1st, in Seymour Narrows by the upsetting of a canoe. One of the men was named King, late of Burrard Inlet, and well known in Victoria. The bodies had not been found at the time of writing, and Mr Laing thinks they will not be, owing to the swift undertow in the narrows. An Indian who was with the unfortunate men escaped to the shore. Jun 11 - The report published in this paper, on the authority of a letter from Seymour Narrows, that a man named King and two others had been drowned proves to have been untrue. LogHx/Jun 8, 1884 - Moses Ireland, who has recently been timber prospecting in company with Capt Sturt and Mr Merrill, the representative of a large lumbering firm in Michigan, in the vicinity of Cape Mudge, Desolation Sound, and round to Texada I, reports that great growth prevails everywhere, and the only thing that is not dried up is the potato, which still stands the siege. There are many prospecting parties in the woods, and they are very careful so as not to start any fires, of which there is great danger this dry weather. Miller's logging camp, Drew harbor, Valdes I, has got in 400,000' for Mr Sayward's mill, Victoria. Mr Marshall, from Michigan, seemed generally pleased with the country, and if he finds suitable timber lands enough, both on this side and on the sound, may possibly establish one or more sawmills.

Died at his residence, Pembroke st, Victoria, BC, Sep 16, 1884, William Slater, n/o Gravesend, Eng, age 33, from blood poisoning. Deceased, who has been in the employ of Mr J Weiler for some time as varnisher, received a scratch on one of his fingers about a week ago while working; but did not think much of it until last Thurs, when not only the finger but his arm began to swell. A doctor was called in, but found that the case was hopeless as mortification had set in. This is indeed a very sad death, as he leaves a widow and 2 children who were dependent upon what he earned, and now that he is gone they are almost destitute. A subscription was taken up among the employees in Mr Weiler's establishment, and a few outside people, which amounted to $125. This will go to the widow. The deceased, who was n/o London, Eng, was a member of the order of Free Masons, and also of the Knights of Pythias, who will bury him. It is to be hoped the charitably disposed will help his sorrowing widow and children in their hour of need.

ChHx/Died Oct 7, 1884, Victoria, BC, Dr Wang Cheng, aged 73, probably the oldest Chinaman in Victoria, died at his rooms over Tai Soong's, Cormorant st. The old doctor was very much esteemed among the Chinese as a man of learning and generosity. He was reported to have attained considerable wealth, and though often importuned by his children to return to China, he had an affection for this place and would not go. The doctor did not belong to any of the Chinese secret societies.

The funeral rites took place yesterday afternoon in front of his late residence, where an awning had been erected for the purpose. The tables were loaded with choice Celestial dishes, two roast pigs, and numerous candles and burning incense. This was to show the spirit of the departed who might be hovering near, that he was not forgotten. After the rites had been gone through the coffin was placed in a magnificent hearse and with Chinese music a long procession followed the remains to Mr Hayward's rooms from whence they will be forwarded next week in a metal casket to China.

Feb 4, 1885, 3 - Unrequited Love - A Young Victorian Duped - Tale of A Truant Wife - San Francisco Chronicle - An arrest took place yesterday growing out of the attempted abduction of a woman whom the principal in the affair claims as his wife, while she, strange to say, denies the relation and asserts that she is a woman of loose life, her relations with her so-called husband being only of a meretricious nature. The principal parties to the affair are John McDonald, Eva Wilson, or McDonald, and Walter Emerson, a bootblack and assistant in the essayed abduction.

John McDonald's story is that he is the s/o worthy parents and res/o Victoria, BC. About two years ago they purchased for their son the controlling interest in a sawmill at that place, and all went well with him till about 6 months ago, when he met and married Eva Wilson in this city. He took his bride to a luxurious home in Victoria, but soon learned she betrayed a strong inclination for the society of gentlemen, which culminated in her flight to Victoria, BC with a male companion. McDonald followed them, and, by the aid of detectives, discovered his runaway wife. He implored her to return with him, promising her forgiveness; but she refused to listen to her injured spouse, and even denied that she had been married to him. This conduct so infuriated the husband that he determined to use physical force to compel her return. In order to escape him she removed to a room in the Magnolia House, at 1030 Market st. Again he had recourse to the assistance of private detectives and again located her. Last Mon night he met her walking along Kearney st in company with another woman, and thereupon accosted her. She did not deign to notice him, but, not daunted, he continued to follow her, when, on account of his threatening attitude, the two women sought protection in the city prison. He followed her into the Capt's office and there related his tale of woe to Sg. Hotaling. When he concluded he appealed to the officers present to lock his wife up, saying that she had defaulted with $24,000 of his money. The officers paid no attention to him and the women made their exit from the prison unseen by the irate husband.

McDonald did not see anything more of his wife, although he employed detectives to watch her room until last Sat night. He was standing on the crnr Eddy/Market sts. When he perceived his wife coming towards him. He immediately accosted Walter Emerson, a bootblack, who had been left in charge of a cab standing near the curbstone, and told him to jump upon the box. When his wife was within a few feet of him he sprang towards her, and pinioning her arms to her side, endeavored to force her into the cab, at the same time telling the driver that the woman was his wife and that he desired to take her home because she was intoxicated. Emerson then went to his assistance, but the woman fought so desperately that they found it impossible to confine her in the cab. A large crowd soon congregated in the vicinity, and after numerous efforts the men were obliged to desist. Yesterday the woman visited the police courts and caused warrants to be issued for the arrest of both of her abductors on charges of battery. Emerson was arrested in the afternoon and lodged in the southern station, but was soon after released. A search was then made for McDonald, but he could not be found.

A Chronicle reporter visited Mrs McDonald, or Eva Wilson, as she prefers to be called, in her room, at the Magnolia House, last evening. The truant wife was found to be a very beautiful blond about 22 years of age. She has a slight German accent, and was attired in a long sealskin, which she was in the act of removing when the reporter entered. In reply to a query she stated that she was never married to McDonald, but had lived with him for several months as his wife, both in Victoria and at the Lick House in this city. He had frequently requested that they should be married, and she had informed him that she would become his bride on receipt of $10,000; that she did not love him, but would be faithful to him if he would accede to her business proposition. About six weeks ago she accompanied him to this city, and while dining at the Lick House he acted so brutally towards her that she was obliged to leave him. She also stated that she first met him in a Victoria bagnio, where she had lived for two years. The attempted abduction on Sat night she characterized as a brutal outrage, and vowed to have her assailants punished.

USHx/Mar 18, 1885 - Death of Tom Stratton - a dispatch from Port Angeles announces the sudden death there of Capt Tom Stratton, who in early days was one of the best known and most popular men on the northern coast, and an especial favorite in Victoria. He was a pioneer of CA, and afterwards came to Puget Sound and BC. He was one of the E T Coleman party, who first scaled Mt Baker, and whose exploits were recorded in Harper's Magazine some 15 yrs ago. In 1862 Victoria was a hot bed of secessionists, many of whom had been driven from the US on account of their disunion sentiments. A secessionist named Shapard opened a saloon on Langley st and erected a flagstaff in front, from which he kept floating, night and day, a confederate flag. Stratton, who was a Unionist, had frequent wordy wars with Shapard, and one fine night in 1863 the pair met in the dining hall of what is now known as the Angel Hotel, but was then called Ringo's. Which of the two mortal enemies struck first we do not now recall, but they were soon locked in each others embrace and rolling over the floor, amid a wreck of crockery, chairs and tables. First Tom and then Shapard would be on top, the men all the while raining fierce blows on each others bodies, faces and heads. They were true grit. Both were of powerful physique and fired with enthusiasm for the cause which they respectively advocated. The fight lasted for at least 15 minutes, at the end of which time Shapard capitulated and was carried home by his friends. Tom was victor, but at terrible cost, not the least of the items of which was a beautiful black beard, nearly 2' in length. This had been torn out by the roots. The combatants were ill for a long time, and some persons think that Stratton was never the same man afterwards. Soon after the confederate flag was lowered at night by some persons and was not seen again. Stratton was a genial, whole-souled fellow and a perfect genius. He could write poetry and prose and tell stories admirably, sail a ship and drive a four-in-hand; he was an expert fisherman, taxidermist, carpenter and miner, and, above and beyond all, a good husband and kind father. May the mould that covers his brave heart be ever green is the wish of one who knew poor Tom, who is now 'a' cold,' in his best days.

Died at Victoria, BC, Mar 18, 1885, William Joseph Jeffree, age 54y, 4m, n/o Cornwall, Eng. We are pained to announce the death of one of Victoria's most useful pioneer citizens. The sad event was entirely unexpected, deceased having been only taken ill from the effects of a cold contracted while working in his garden. Mr Jeffree, who leaves a widow, two daughters, one son, was n/o Camborne and was aged 50. He came to the country in 1862 and after a brief stay in the Cariboo mines embarked in the clothing business in this city, which he successfully conducted until his death. In addition to his proprietorship in the Golden Rule clothing store he was largely interested in Pendray & Co's soap factory. At one time he was a member of the city council and took a warm interest in public matters. Had he lived he would have gone to Eng next month. Victoria can ill afford to lose a man like Jeffree. Only 3 mos ago he insured his life for $5,000. He had paid but 1 premium and his family will immediately receive the full amount. G 57/58 W 11

Music/Died at Victoria, BC, Mar 29, 1885, Katie, beloved wife of Forbes George Vernon. Funeral from res/o the family on Church Hill. The death of this lady took place quite unexpectedly, although ailing for a long time no immediate danger was anticipated by her friends. Mrs Vernon, who came to Victoria, BC when quite a child, has since resided here continuously. She was a most accomplished amateur vocalist, and her services were always freely rendered in aid of good objects. Pallbearers: Sir M B Begbie, E Marvin, sr, T S Dobbin, James Boscowitz, A W Vowell, A W Jones, E C

Neufelder. The grave has closed over all that is mortal of late Mrs Forbes Vernon; but the recollection of her bright and kindly disposition, her intellectual attainments and her good deeds will linger long with those who knew her best and loved her most. She lived in Victoria from early childhood, and had drawn about her - as bright and happy natures always do - a large circle of devoted friends. Possessed of rare accomplishments as a vocalist her services were always generously rendered in the cause of charity. None among the many who listened to her beautiful voice at the last amateur concert in Victoria, could have imagined that within a few days that voice would be stilled forever and the bright and joyous wife and mother conveyed to the narrow house which awaits us all. Numerous instances are related of the unostentatious ministrations of the deceased lady to those in distress, and many poor persons who have partaken of her bounty will miss their friend and benefactor....N/o CA, age 30. Bldg/May 9, 1885 - A Reminiscence - Two old
houses and four or five cabins,
situated on Humboldt st, next the Belmont Hotel, were being torn down yesterday, to make room for the erection of 3½ storey dwelling houses for Loewen & Erb, who lately bought the property. The houses and cabins were erected in 1859, the larger building having been used for years as a squaw dance-house,
kept by a Norwegian named Marten. Here nightly the mazy dance was kept up in rude fashion by the mining population, then flush with the golden harvest of the mines,
assisted by the dusky maidens
of the forest in rather primitive attire. Marten grew rich from the proceeds, but met with a hard fate a few years after,
becoming of unsound mind.
For several years he wandered over the mainland in an almost naked condition, existing upon the game he killed and upon berries, and sleeping in the sheltered forest. Occasionally
he would be seen by the Indians, but after one very severe winter he was never met with again, and the presumption was that he perished from the exposure.
The familiar landmarks are slowly being removed, but happily to be replaced by evidences of prosperity that would make even the former frequenters of the old haunts pleased with the change.

Sep 4, 1885 - A Scorned Woman - A few days ago an exciting scene occurred at a popular place of resort a few miles from Victoria. A young man, who was accompanied by a young woman, drove to the inn and ordered lunch for two. In a few moments they were followed by two young women in a carriage. Dismounting, one of the females entered the dining room, where the first arrivals were in the midst of their lunch, and made a savage assault on both. In a few moments the young man's coat and shirt, torn to ribbons, lay on the floor along with a lock of his companion's hair and part of her dress. Attracted by the noise the other guests rushed into the room just in time to see the angry woman dancing a wild, hilarious jig on the young woman's hat, which had been reduced beneath her generous-sized pedals to the consistency of a pancake. The combatants were then separated in a sadly battered condition. Jealousy is said to have been the cause of the attack.

News/Sep 29, 1885, 3 - Last evening a young man connected with the Times office was met at the crnr Yates/Vancouver sts by a well-known young lady of Victoria, BC and given a fearful horse-whipping in the presence of a crowd of spectators. The lash was laid on with a vim about the head and shoulders until the young man called for mercy, and, at last breaking through the crowd, he ran as quickly as his legs would carry him from the angry lady. It is charged that the young man has been generally circulating reports reflecting upon the young lady's character, and she in this severe way has expressed her anger at the insult. Both parties are well known in town, and, though deprecating the public exhibition of her anger, there is a general feeling of sympathy with the young lady. But a more ladylike method of punishment might have been devised. She should have treated the stories of the author with contemptuous indifference. The resort to violence was a grave error.

Nov 6, 1885 - A Wandering Minstrel - Yesterday morning, about 4 o'clock, Mr W Denny was aroused from a gentle slumber by the sound of some person moving about the house. He got up to look for his pistol previous to looking for the man, but could not at once find the weapon. Finally, descending the stairs he found no one there; but the front door was open, and passing on to the verandah he started - even as Robinson Crusoe when he saw the footprint - to observe a man's hat, which he duly captured and deposited with the police at the barracks. To these headquarters later in the day came a gentleman giving the name of A Wall, connected with a variety entertainment in this city, who tearfully stated he had been held up the night before and robbed of $1.50 and his hat. Shown the hat he declared that it belonged not to him, and departed. A curious constable (even constables are curious at times) happening to reinspect the hat turned down the leather lining and revealed - alas! for he who had been robbed of $1.50 - a card bearing the fatal inscription: 'A Wall, teacher of vocal and instrumental music.' A policeman immediately departed to again interview Augustus Wall, who looked, as walls sometimes do, rather blank when informed of the coincidence, and upon again examining the hat admitted it was his, and accordingly the teach of vocal and instrumental music was locked up. the theory that he was probably serenading on the occasion in question is deemed a scarcely satisfactory one. Mr Denny did not press charges, as he had heard from the prisoner's friends that he had entered the dwelling in mistake for another. The police were also of the opinion that the man's actions were due to his having been on a 'spree', and the magistrate discharged the prisoner, who a few seconds later could be seen earnestly assuring Mr Denny of the extremely bona fide nature of the mistake.

Bldg/Died at San Francisco, CA, Nov 13, 1885, Ex-Senator William Sharon. He was c 67 and worth $10,000,000. He opened a shop on Yates street, and supplied sashes, doors and blinds to many of the earlier builders. Being then a very poor man his going and coming were not chronicled by the press of the day.

Thomas Corris of Niagara st, James Bay, Victoria, BC, expired at his residence, Nov 25, 1885. With his death passed away a recollection extending over a century for he had attained the age of 102. He was n/o Manchester where he passed the first 9 yrs of his life; at which time his parents removed to the Isle of Man. Here he spent the main portion of the long life that was granted to him; though he visited at times different parts of Eng, and previous to his coming here to reside 2 yrs ago had paid this province, Eastern Canada and the States a visit - there being in the last named country 4 of 6 surviving children out of a family of 8. In 1883 deceased and his wife left the Isle of Man for Victoria, BC believing the climate of this province to be superior. During the whole course of his life he enjoyed exceptionally good health and could dilate with undimmed memory upon events since whose occurrence but little short of 100 yrs have passed away. About 6 wks ago dropsy developed itself in the right leg and passed on to the side. He said nothing for several days before he died but was conscious up to the afternoon of the day of his demise, understanding all that was said. His end was peaceful in the extreme, and came upon him when surrounded by members of his family. He leaves in Victoria, BC a widow, two children - the latter Mrs Clarke, of Yates st, and Mrs Compton, of James Bay. B 96 W 29

Med/Died at Victoria, BC, Dec 4, 1885, Hugh Lloyd Jones, n/o Ruthin, N Wls, aged 56. Funeral from the Masonic Hall, Douglas st. Jones died after an illness of some months, deeply regretted by his many friends. Mr Jones came to this country in 1862, and visited Cariboo. Returning to Victoria, BC in 1864, he entered the employ of Mr Searby, one of the pioneer druggists of Victoria. Shortly afterwards he returned to Cariboo and opened a drug store at Barkerville. Disposing of his business some yrs later, Mr Jones became a partner in the well-known drug house of Langley & Co, where he remained until a few months ago, when, through declining health, he disposed of his interest in that establishment. Death resulted from heart disease. Mr Jones was an enthusiast in the practice of his profession, in which he had few equals, and devoted all his spare time to the study of pharmacy and chemistry. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and the Pioneer society, by whom he will be followed to the grave on Sun. Pallbearers: Messrs A J Langley, J R Hett, George R Fardon, Dr Chipp, E C Baker, Thomas Humphreys. Chief mourner was Mr W Jones, deceased's only relative in the province. A 55 E 32

Jan 28, 1886 - Hugh Stuart,
the young man who was found dead on the Cowichan rd, was interred in Ross Bay cemetery.
From facts that were developed at the inquest, it seems that the young man's partner in camp was ill, and Stewart had gone to Cowichan
for the purpose of procuring a bottle of whiskey. This he procured with a number of other little articles and started to return to camp. The snow was 16" deep, and from marks

around him when found it is supposed that a branch had fallen and stunned him, and he died from exposure. The liquor was not touched. The circumstances connected with the case are very sad, the deceased having only arrived
from Toronto a short time ago, and had only been in that city a couple of weeks from Co Down, Ire. He was a strong, healthy young man, aged 18,
and had he not met with some accident would certainly have reached camp all right. The funeral was attended by several friends who came down with the remains from Cowichan. H

Died at Victoria, BC, Mar 2, 1886, of cerebral haemorrhage, Leonard Falshaw Metcalf, aged 29, n/o Wensleydale, Yorkshire, Eng. Deceased, who was manager of the butcher shop of Messrs Beak & Co, crnr Waddington alley/Johnson st, was suddenly seized with an attack of apoplexy, and at once conveyed to his home on North Park st, where he shortly after was taken with another fit, and breathed his last. He was a b/o Edward Metcalfe of this city, and came out with his wife to this province from Eng a little over a yr ago. His death comes with a greater shock to his relatives from the utter absence of any immediate prospects of such a sad event. He was greatly liked and respected by all who knew him for his frank disposition and strict probity, and the greatest sympathy is felt for his bereaved relatives. Thomas Owens, a Welshman by birth, an old miner and for many years a stevedore at Victoria, BC, was found in the yard at the rear of his cabin, on Government st, Mar 2, 1886, with his throat cut from ear to ear. A razor lying near disclosed the means that had been employed to end his life. Circumstances point to suicide, the deceased having been despondent for several days past owing, it is supposed, to his knowledge that a contract he had taken to discharge a vessel's cargo would not pay him. Deceased came to this country Jan 1863, in Robert E Lowe, from Carmarthen, Wls, and immediately went to the Cariboo mines, where he was successful as a miner, the Tom & Jerry claim on Mosquito ck being named after deceased and Jerry Griffiths, at present wharfinger on the HBC wharf. He was taken ill in the fall of 1869, and was sent to Victoria by his brother miners. He mined in Cassiar in 1874-75, and his last mining operations were at Lorne ck, where like many others he was unsuccessful. For years he had been stevedore for R Brodrick and was acting in that capacity lately. It is understood that a few wks ago he received bad news from home, which made him very despondent. Several days ago he procured a sleeping draught from T Shotbolt, as he complained of being unable to sleep. Inquest, fit of temporary insanity. F 24 E 17

Apr 1, 1886 - Brilliant Torpedo Practice Today - At 9 this morning the naval torpedo boats Swift and Sure will enter this harbor for the purpose of engaging in torpedo practice. They will steam in at the rate of nearly 20 mph and on reaching Hospital Point each will discharge two Whitehead torpedoes against the rocks there. Turning quickly they will run toward James Bay bridge and when within 6' of the structure will back and turn again with marvellous rapidity. At 9:30 precisely the boats will be brought alongside of Dredger Rock, for the removal of which Mr Hayward has a contract. A column of water 100' in height will be thrown up and will blow up the rock. The operations will be visible from the waterfront. After performing this task the boats will be taken back to Esquimalt and hauled out. April 2, 1886 - The Torpedo Explosion - A Wet and 'Cold' Day for those Who Didn't See It - In answer to The Colonist's announcement of torpedo practice in the harbor, a goodly number of citizens and strangers wended their way to the waterfront yesterday morning. It was pouring rain, but the excitement of the occasion kept them to their posts until the fact dawned upon them that a first of April shower was chilling their bones and sowing the seeds of rheumatism. There were stampede made for saloons, and those who were taken in set 'em up all around. Amusing incidents are told of the eagerness of some of the parties who visited Wharf st. A number of Germans standing in front of the Teutonia saloon were urged on by one of their number: 'Come on, you fools, or else you'll be too late.' They all went. About 15 strangers from the east - not the land where wise men hailed from - were toasting their shins about the stove in the Occidental hotel when the genial host, who is ever as alert for the comfort as the pleasure of his guests, handed them the paper, and after having passed it round for perusal, the sitting room was quickly cleared and all were soon standing nr the HBC wharf in the rain. It is said that one of the best-natured dealers in spring lamb in town was heard to use a big, big D... as he returned from the waterfront. A crowd of boys who had played truant from school to see the sight, had a free fight in the CPN's wharf for the vantage ground of a seat on top of a pile. A knot of Frenchmen and Italians got into a dispute about the respective merits of naval vessels, and the discussion came nearly ending in the only explosion of the day.

All who assembled on the wharf had forgotten that it was the first of April - the natal day of all fools - a cold day.

May 1, 1886 - Houses of Ill Fame - Nettie Holt is before the police court on a charge of keeping a house of ill fame on the classic thoroughfare known as Broad st. The house has become notorious of late since the occurrence of a robbery in its close vicinity and the finding of a part of the plunder in a water closet attached to the premises. It is rumored that other summonses are in course of preparation and that it is the intention of the police, as fast as circumstances will admit or proof can be obtained, to compel the criminal and vagrant classes to leave the heart of the city for localities where their presence will be less obnoxious. The police meet with many obstructions in the prosecution of their duty. A few days ago the Brockleman woman was driven from a small house on Yates st, the establishment closed and the owner notified that should he let his property to similar persons again he would be prosecuted. In spite of this warning the immoral hole is again open and a new set of Cyprians are now disporting themselves therein. Proceedings against the owner will be taken forthwith. Police Court - Nettie Holt will appear tomorrow to answer to the charge of keeping a house of ill-fame. May 2, 1886 - disorderly houses - fine of $50 inflicted on the woman Holt, should serve as a warning to others engaged in the same illegal calling and induce them to set their houses in order..It is expected that the grand jury will take steps to indict the owners as well as the keepers of brothels that they must no longer be suffered to remain in the heart of the city... May 11, 1886 - Old British Columbians experienced a genuine and agreeable surprise yesterday when the once familiar form of the noted John A Cameron appeared on the streets. Mr Cameron was one of the early lucky miners of Cariboo. In 1863-63 he acquired a fortune, which has been estimated at from $200,000 to $300,000 in the Cameron claim on William ck - in about 1 ½ years. He took his wealth back with him to Canada in 1863, and until yesterday had not since set foot on Columbia soil. Mr Cameron is the gentleman who, assisted by Robert Stevenson, now of Chilliwack, made a sled and dragged the body of his first wife (who died at Barkerville) over the snow to New Westminster. From the Royal City the remains were brought to Victoria and not interred until the following yr, when Mr Cameron took them with him to Cornwall [ON] and had them interred beneath a handsome monument. Mr Cameron, who looks as young as he did 23 yrs ago, is accompanied by Mrs Cameron and his niece, Miss Macpherson, who will remain at Victoria while he proceeds to the Big Bend country.

Jun 8, 1886 - Mr R Lawson, of the Customs Dept, identifies himself with the person of the same name advertised for in yesterday's Colonist. Since leaving his home in Sct in 1869 Mr Lawson has never communicated with his old country friends, though he received at various periods letters from them, containing the information that a legacy had been left to him. Strangely different to the course that most people, similarly situated, would have adopted, Mr Lawson never took steps to obtain possession of the money, and his relatives doubtless concluding from his long silence, that he had 'joined the majority'...

Jun 23, 1886 - It is reported that the death of Mrs Czarke in Lower CA, lately, was found to have been caused by poison, and suspicious circumstances pointing to the husband, he has been arrested on the charge of her murder. It will be remembered that H A Czarke and his wife used to keep the Royal Exchange saloon on the crnr Douglas/View sts, Victoria, BC. He was known as a man of very violent disposition; and it was not altogether an unusual sight to see his wife in sleeping attire parading the verandah over the sidewalk in the middle of the night, and appealing for help against her husband's violence. It is now charged that he has effected in cold blood what he failed to accomplish in the heat of passion.

Jul 21, 1886 - A Crash - The earth shook in the vicinity of Metchosin on Mon evening. Mayor Fell, who tips the scale at 300; the jr member for Esquimalt, who weighs about 220, and a lady of no light proportions were discussing buns, sandwiches, tea, Fell's coffee, and small talk at one of the tables when the seat suddenly gave way. All were precipitated violently to the ground. The mayor was the first to recover his feet, and in spite of the violence of the shock emerged from the wreck unharmed. The lady was assisted to her feet uninjured, and the junior member was extricated from beneath the table with a smashed hat and a ruined appetite. It was stated that where the mayor struck he made a 'dent' in the ground large enough for his worship to crawl in and hide. Had the Mayor fallen on the member the latter would have been flattened out more effectually than the opposition at the recent elections.

Died at Victoria, BC, Aug 20, 1886, George Robinson Fardon, 80, n/o Staffordshire, England. Funeral from his rooms, Langley street. Another pioneer, ripe in years and rich in the confidence and esteem of his fellow men, is dead. He left his native home early in life and engaged in business in NY City. Early in 1849 he landed at San Francisco and engaged in the business of daguerreotyping. At that time photography was unknown; but, shortly after, that important invention was made public. Fardon introduced it into CA, being the first to adopt the system, which speedily supplanted the daguerrean method of taking pictures. In 1858 Mr Fardon came to Victoria, where he made important investments and where he resided until his death. Throughout his long and busy life Mr Fardon was a thoroughly honourable and highly esteemed gentleman. He was a half brother of Mr A J Langley, JP, and James Langley of this city. Died at his residence, the Royal Oak Hotel, Lake Dist, Victoria, BC, Mr James Camp, Aug 22, 1886. He lived to the hale old age of 76 and died from sheer general decay. He and a comrade loaded a wheelbarrow with 400 pounds of 'truck', fastened a pair of shafts to the vehicle, and each alternately hauled and pushed. After passing through many vicissitudes of mining life, Mr Camp settled permanently in Vancouver Island, and passed the latter portion of his life in Lake district where his memory will be revered as that of a kind, honest and strictly upright man.

WmHx/Aug 28, 1886 - The many advocates of woman suffrage will learn with interest that Victoria can now boast of a female barber. The shop which is the scene of her operations is on Government st, and was instantly besieged by 'the boys' upon hearing the joyful tidings. One popular young man, whose name at present is rather prominently connected with 'burnt cork,' went in the shop yesterday, and after having patiently awaited his turn, was duly shaven by the fair barber. A few hours later he called in again, seated himself in her chair, and softly said: 'A shave, please, Miss.' The lady passed her hand over his chin - he blissfully closed his eyes in willing submission, when he was suddenly aroused by the lady exclaiming: 'Why, I shaved you this morning.' The young man blushed up to his forehead, stammered 'Oh-er-ah, I believe you did; -er-good morning,' and he got out as quickly as he could to avoid being chaffed by his chums. But he means to go back there all the same, and believes that hitherto he has not been shaved as often as a cleanly appearance demands.

Sep 8, 1886 - Letter to Editor - Will you allow me to call your attention to the indecent manner in which paupers are disposed of? I was working at the cemetery today when my attention was directed to an express wagon, driven by a boy, entering. The wagon contained a coffin partly covered with a dirty cloth. The boy saw the caretaker and found out where he had to go, which was in the Chinese portion. The boy stopped at the grave. The caretaker helped the boy, and together they dropped the coffin into the ground, and it was soon covered up. On the return of the caretaker I asked him if it was a Chinaman he had buried and he replied, 'No; Chinamen always had someone to come out with them. This is only a poor devil from the hospital. He had no money, and consequently no soul, I suppose. At least, he was treated as such.' The deceased was a Mr Thomas McMann, well known in the city - a Scotchman, I was told, by birth - and I feel sure had his death been known to his friends his remains would have been interred with more respect than if he were a dog. I hope you will see with me the necessity of a change. Observer. [Age 42, n/o Glasgow, Sct, died at Royal Hosp.] F 10 W 14

woman, his Honor said that he

that anything he might say to

A Character - Jan 16, 1887 - John Linton, the man who was arrested and locked up in the goal, charged with vagrancy, is in many ways a noted character. Attention was first drawn to him, owing to his having taken the old schooner Experiment, which lay waterlogged in the harbor for many yrs and fixing her up, endeavoring to make trips with her. Failing in this scheme, he started a carpenter shop on Fort st, but soon grew tired and went into the shoe business. He never made a success at that, but was not disheartened by his repeated failures. His last venture was the leasing of the skating rink. He has been a great nuisance about the street ogling the ladies as they passed along.

Feb 9, 1887, 4 - Victoria in '41. Some idea of how the world wagged about Victoria 45 years ago may be obtained from Hubert Howe Bancroft's 'History of British Columbia,' lately published. Among other things it contains we find the following:

Life at Fort Camosun (the name by which Victoria was then known) was very monotonous, the buying of furs from the Indians being almost the sole duty and occupation of Douglas and the 100 or so white men under his command - though they had a sort of circulating library of books, obtained in London, which were passed along from fort to fort throughout the NW. The natives, as a rule, were well treated, strict justice being shown them in all things...

USV/Feb 12, 1887 - Mr E O Corson, manager at W Heathorn's boot and shoe factory, gave a reception at the Grand Pacific Hotel on the occasion of his 50th birthday. Mr Corson has had an eventful life, and was one of the coast pioneers of '47. He is n/o Maine, born Feb 10, 1836, son of H A Corson of Bridgeton, an eminent lawyer, who served for many years as chief justice of the state. Corson had 7 brothers, 6 of whom served in the war of 1860, and fought to sustain the federal flag. The subject of this sketch doubled Cape Horn in 1847, consuming 16 months in the trip. When he arrived in San Francisco gold had not yet been discovered, and San Francisco consisted practically of 2 streets. Where the old What Cheer house, so well known to many of The Colonist readers, now stands, the good ship What Cheer had been anchored and sunk. Five years after, Mr Corson returned east but came back to this coast in 1858, returning east again in 1860 to take part in the battles of the rebellion. He took command of the Stoneham Light Infantry, attached to the 6th Mass, who fought their way through Baltimore at the time Ellsworth was martyred. At the close of his term of enlistment he reenlisted in the 8th Mass under Colonel B F Beach. His next enlistment was in the 2nd NJ, under General Penon, in the 6th Army Corps, so ably commanded by Gen Phil Sheridan. Six months after this enlistment his regiment was consolidated with the 15th... PC

Marine/Charles B Sweeney, an oldtimer on the Fraser rv, died at Seattle, WT, Jun 23, 1887. Mr Sweeney was in early days one of the most prominent steamboat engns on the coast, and acted in that capacity on some of the boats which have long since disappeared from our waters.

He was for several yrs engr of Wilson G Hunt, when she ran between Victoria and New Westminster, and will always be remembered, especially by the younger people, as 'good-hearted Charley.' His wife, 2 sons, one of the latter a successful engr in CA, and 2 daughters survive him.

Frederick J Maltby, aged 11, s/o Mr Maltby, n/o Highland District, owner of the lime kilns at Pike Lake, and Thomas Deighton, 18, of New Westminster, n/o Eng, were drowned Jun 24, 1887 at the lake. It appears that the boys left Mr Maltby's house in the forenoon in a boat and were gone for so long a time that Mrs Maltby, becoming nervous, went down to the bank to call them. She saw the boat and 2 straw hats, but the boys were nowhere to be seen. The now distracted mother ran about frantically calling for her boy, who was then, no doubt, lying cold in death beneath the placid waters. At last accounts the bodies had not been recovered. Young Deacon was on a visit to the Maltby's and only arrived from New Westminster a few days before. The sad news was telegraphed to his friends last evening. Jun 26 - The bodies of the two boys were secured yesterday by a party sent with grappling hooks. They were found locked in each other's arms. The probability is that one fell in, and in attempting to save his companion the other was drowned. Inquest. F 025 W 18

Murder/Jun 25, 1887, 4: James McNerhaney, of the Campbell rv, about 40 miles N of Comox, reports to the Vancouver News that a schooner manned by George Powil, Henry Moore and another man left his post for the north to trade with the Indians, and nothing has been heard of them since. A short time ago an Indian told him he had seen on the coast the bodies of 3 white men who had been murdered with an axe and that their schooner had been burned by Indians. It was attacked, captured and the men murdered after a desperate fight. The schooner was plundered and burned. Tom, an Indian, whose brother was hanged at Nanaimo has been heard to say he would get even and is suspected of the murder. McNerhaney is confident the men have been killed and, as the schooner has not been absent over a few months, believes the story to be true; Jun 26, 4...; Jun 28, 2 - Schooner Seabird; Aug 4, 4 - Supt Roycraft left for Quamichan and Skidegate for the NW coast, where he will investigate Sea Bird mystery and arrest several Indian murderers. Jul 6, 1887 - An old man, known by the name of 'Old Sam', was taken to St Joseph's Hosp, there to pass the remainder of his days. It is thought the end is not far off as the poor old fellow is pretty weak, only being able to get around with the aid of sticks. His real name is Sam Clifford, and his career is an eventful one. He was in CA in the early days of '49, and is said to have possessed an enormous fortune, but like many of the miners of that day he lost it all in daring and wild speculations. After that, he lost also all ambition, and coming to Victoria, kept a boathouse for many yrs. Disease, contracted through want and neglect, took possession of the old man and his present condition is sorrowful in the extreme. A lady, whose aim in life is to care for the indigent and needy, has of late been interesting herself in his behalf, and with the assistance of others has succeeded in giving Sam a comfortable home under the care of the Sisters of Charity. RN/Work/Jul 29, 1887 - Capt Devereaux received intimation that Brotchie ledge buoy was settling. Sir James Douglas proceeded to the place, a boat was lowered from the steamer which contained the mate and 4 men including Thomas Streeton and Douglas Booth. On reaching the buoy a rope was attached and those on the steamer endeavored to right the buoy. When they righted it to a certain point a hole was discovered and before they could do anything, the air contained in the upper portion was expelled and filling with water the huge buoy plunged into the depths of the sea carrying the boat with it and the two men Streeton and Booth. They were seen to rise once and as their heads appeared heartrending shouts were heard, but only for a moment as they sank beneath the waves and were seen no more 19

Streeton was well known in Victoria, having come here from his native place, Canterbury, Eng, about 6 yrs ago as a sailor on ship Duke of Abercorn. He was aged c 26, was sober and industrious and a married man.

Booth had only recently been discharged from HMS Cormorant, having served honorably his 10 yrs, n/o Peckham, Surrey. On Thurs night he joined the Foresters Order, and although but a short time in the city was well and favorably known. The hole in the buoy was caused by the Yosemite striking it a few evenings ago. No attempt will be made to recover the bodies, as the tide current runs about 3 mph at that point, and it is possible they will be cast on the beach by the tide. Murder/Aug 10, 1887 - Our Own Lavin - Some yrs have

He was the/o a rich woman of ill-repute known as Bridget Gallagher who owned some property on Pandora st next to Temperance hall. After his acquittal Lavin went to Portland, OR with his wife. When he tired of her he had her put in a lunatic asylum and proceeded to squander her property. Bridget was liberated on a writ of habeas corpus and declared sane. Then she retaliated by proving that her husband was a deserter from the American army, and Lavin was sent to the government fort at San Quentin to work out a term of 5 yrs with a chain and ball attached to one of his big legs. Bridget next distinguished herself in an attack with a drawn revolver on a reporter of the San Francisco Chronicle. She was arrested, adjudged crazy, and committed to the Stockton asylum as a pauper lunatic, all her wealth having by this time taken wings. The other day Lavin was discharged from arrest his confinement having been declared illegal.

Bldg/JwHx/Aug 13, 1887, 4 - A Tragic Accident - Connected with the Copperman Bldg - A Strange Story - Among the old bldgs that are about to give way before the march of the iron horse is the old Copperman store. It is a one-storey structure, fronts on Store street, and stands right at the foot of Cormorant street. Built in 1861, it was considered a fine structure in that day of canvas tents and brush cabins. Copperman, its owner and builder, was a sharp, shrewd Israelite, gifted with the proverbial characteristics of his race for money-getting, and one of the most skillful fur traders of his time. He was a short man of lathe-like proportions. His wife was short, too, but she was fat - very fat, so that when she waddled along she resembled an animated barrel more than a human being. In a few years Copperman waxed very rich and retired to Germany, after presenting his wife, who decided to remain and continue the business, with $20,000 in coin. This money she kept concealed on the premises and one dark, stormy night in the winter of 1864 two noted burglars scented the gold and decided to rob the old woman. At the side of the building there ran a small alley which led to the Copperman sleeping room. The alley gate at night was bolted from the inside. The robbers scaled the fence and unbolting the gate left it ajar so as to secure a means of retreat in case of an alarm. The wind blew the gate wide open. A private watchman in passing observing the gate open entered the alley to reconnoiter. He was set upon by the robbers who felled him to the ground with their clubbed revolvers and fled. The watchman rose to his feet and blew his whistle. The regular policeman on that beat was a fine young Irishman named John Curry. He entered the alley and was shot dead by the watchman, who in his half-dazed condition supposed that the man who was hurrying to his aid was one of his assailants. Mrs Copperman's money was untouched; but she afterwards died penniless.

Died by drowning, Aug 14, 1887, Thomas Williams, aged 15, whose parents live at N Saanich, BC. It appears that he went to the beach nr the house with his two sisters to bathe, and, leaving the girls, went to a spot around a point, where he mounted a log, and before he was aware of the danger, was carried beyond his depth. Being unable to swim, he called to his sisters, who ran to tell their father, who came down to the beach. The boy had, in the meantime, fallen off the log and was clinging to it, crying out to the distracted father, who was also unable to swim. Hitting upon a plan, he ran back to the house and, getting a horse, attempted to make him swim to the log. Unfortunately, the horse refused to take to the water, and with an encouraging word, Mr Williams left for Mr McTavish's farm, about 3 miles distant, to get that gentleman's boat. Considerable time was thus occupied, and the distance being so long, half an hour had elapsed before the boat arrived on the scene, and by that time the boy had disappeared beneath the waters. All the afternoon fruitless attempts were made to find the body, and when darkness set in the grief-stricken parent and his friends were forced to give up. Yesterday further attempts were made, but with the same result, and it is thought the body was carried out with the tide. The lad was well known and like, being a promising fellow and the pride of his parents, upon whom the blow has fallen with crushing effect. Aug 19 - The body of Thomas Williams was found in the weeds near the spot where he was seen to sink, by Messrs Miller and Edwards. Inquest

Sep 14, 1887 - A sad case is reported from steamer R P Rithet on Sun morning. While on her way to New Westminster, a lady who was sitting in the saloon talking to Mr Collinson, postmaster at Plumper Pass, casually took up The Colonist of that day and in it saw an Alberni item. She read the first part, but on coming to the latter her face suddenly assumed a blanched appearance, and before her companion could say a word, with a heartrending cry she fell to the floor in a faint. She had read the account of the drowning of her 14-month old child. Capt White was advised of the fact that a woman had fainted and, hurrying to the scene, succeeded in bringing the woman to. It was then learned that she was Mrs Armand, wife of the farmer whose canoe was upset on the Somas rv on the 5th inst. And whose little boy was drowned. Capt White endeavored to comfort the distracted mother, who said she was on her way to Lulu I, where she was to stay for a short period, and that the account in the paper was the first intimation that she had received of her boy's death. She would not be comforted, and fearing that she had not enough means to carry her through, the kind-hearted Capt offered her $20, which amount the passengers wanted to double, but the broken-hearted woman would not take the money. She left the steamer at her point of destination, but again boarded her on the down trip. Upon arrival at Victoria, BC she went to the Occidental hotel, where Mr/Mrs Jensen did all in their power to comfort her. The above facts were learned from one of the passengers, and a reporter visited the hotel yesterday afternoon where he learned that Mrs Armand had left for Nanaimo on the train and intended to walk to Alberni if she could procure no means of transportation. Mr Jensen started a subscription for her yesterday. It is hoped that his call will be liberally responded to as the Armand's are deserving people, and at the time the woman received the news she was on the way to procure work for the maintenance of her family.

Died at St Joseph's Hosp, Victoria, BC, Oct, 1887, Jacob Nagel. Mr Nagel always averred that he was going to make his employer, Mr J Johnson, of the Bay tannery, his heir. Nagel lived very parsimoniously, and invested in property at Whatcom, WT, where he has one farm of 20 acres and another of 40, the deeds for which are in the possession of Mr Johnson. Nagel had frequently stated that he had made a will and that it was in favor of Mr Johnson, but the lawyer who framed it has gone East and the man who witnessed it is dead, and up to date it has not been found. The Whatcom Reveille states that Nagel was worth about $200,000, but this is discredited by Mr Johnson, for whom Nagel worked for 17 yrs. He now lies at Ross Bay cemetery, his grave unmarked. A search is being made for his will. [no RBC plot shown]

Died at Victoria, BC, Nov 19, 1887, Lizzie Annie, beloved wife of H J Cook, n/o Bristol, Eng, aged 32. Funeral from St Joseph's church. The awful accident which befell Mrs Cook resulted fatally, when the poor woman expired after suffering agonies which few living have ever experienced. At time, just previous to her death, she was able to converse rationally, but could not tell how her clothing caught fire. The last she remembered before the catastrophe was that she dozed off and was only awakened by horrible pains, before described. She started up intending to go to her husband's room, but in her confusion mistook the door and ran into the yard. The wind fanned the flames and before she reached the room she was completely enveloped. A 40 W 30

Nov 23, 1887 - Jennie Arnot, one of the victims of the villainous Seneca Augustus Swalm, is a well-known Victoria actress. She was 16 when she first came to Victoria and had just come from Aus. Soon after she came to Victoria she married a man named Tom Fowlis, who was a sober, steady fellow, and with whom his young wife lived very happily. Her sister Louise, also an actress, visited her one day and sowed the seed of discontent by relating to Jennie the glories to be attained by a pretty actress in NY city. Jennie could not bear her retired life, and secretly, without bidding her affectionate husband farewell, left Victoria and went to NY with her sister. There she met Swalm, and falling a victim to the villain's caprice, she forgot her duty as a wife and dishonored herself by becoming Swalm's mistress. Jennie gave birth to a daughter, and 6 yrs after Swalm, being tired of the poor woman, left her to look out for herself. Jennie placed her daughter in a convent and again took to the stage...After travelling around for some years she again found herself in NY where she is now the wife of Davenport Beebe, by whom she has had another child...

there by an accident which had happened to a Corp horse and waggon. He had a double-barrelled shotgun in his hand, the stock of which was resting on the boards, with the muzzle against his left side just above the hip. William Luney, the contractor, was with him, and Harwood was talking about certain matters when in a most unaccountable manner the charge in the gun suddenly exploded and with a cry of 'Oh! Bill, I'm done for,' he fell, but was caught by Mr Luney, who carried him to a hack which was standing on the bridge. The wounded man was taken to hospital where Drs J S and J D Helmcken examined his wounds, which were found to be of a fatal nature. Harrod was n/o Leamington, Eng, but came to Victoria, BC only a short time ago from London, ON, where he leaves a wife and 2 children to mourn his loss. His age, it is said, was 53.. The remains of late Joseph Harrod were removed from St Joseph's hosp yesterday to Storey's undertaking rooms, where the inquest will be held. It is said the name of late Joseph Harrod is really Harwood. Undertaker Storey has his marriage certificate, which shows that he was married at Leamington Priors, Warwick Co., Eng. A 48 E 27

Bldg/Mar 16, 1888 - In The Early Sixties - Following sketch of E J Buckley, who has lately made such a favorable impression in San Francisco theatrical circles, will be read with interest by many people who remember Ned Buckley's boyhood in Victoria; - Buckley was born in San Francisco and brought to Victoria by his parents at the outbreak of the Fraser River gold excitement in 1858. Ned's father started an hotel during the winter of 1861, on the SW corner of Yates & Quadra streets, a large frame building in the rear being known as 'Buckley's Hall,' this same building being now used by the Athletic club, and the hotel converted into a dwelling house. This hotel was much used by the Fraser river and Cariboo miners, who had showers of coin and a long winter to spend it in. Ned was a bright, nice-looking lad, considered 'cute' and was made much of by his father's guests, who supplied him liberally with coin - too liberally in fact. These miners were a jolly, devil-may-care set of fellows, and Victoria being a dull place, they were left pretty much to their own resources for amusement, and horse-racing became the most favored pastime. Nothing would do but little Ned Buckley must have a mount, and being apt to learn and fond of horses, he soon became the Archer of Victoria, and was really a good jockey. In 1861-62, when Antler and William's Creeks were turning out fabulous amounts of dust and nuggets, every man bringing down his pile had to have an interest in a race horse, or he didn't amount to 'beans.' Ned rode every horse on the list, from 'Three Leg'd Pete' to 'Silver Tail,' for the miners who frequented his father's house. Then the officers of the RN at Esquimalt thought they would take a hand, as the miners were having too much fun. From this time the zest in the sport began to fail, and the races became 'crooked.' To vary the monotony, the miners must put up jobs on the 'tars,' and the jobs they did put up were terrors, but funny - for the miners. Capt Edgerton, brother to the Earl of Ellesmere, was very enthusiastic and ran an old plug he had against a half-breed kiyuse owned by Frank Fulford, a miner. Ned rode for Frank, and rode so 'crooked' that the Victoria jockey club blackballed him. Everybody blamed the miners, Ned being their tool and only a lad. A couple of years after Ned turned up on William's creek, Cariboo, as a full-fledged sport, and was dealing faro - the 'bank' belonging to him and Jake Marks, brother of Joe Marks, then a jeweler in Victoria. It was said Joe provided the 'chips' and was to have a share in the booty, but the miners put up jobs on them and the bank burst. Bill English, a Caribooite, was believed to have had something to do in 'busting' that bank and several other similar institutions. He never went much on faro, except for the fun, but when he did have a hand in sending a bank 'up the flume' you could hear his laugh from Barkerville clear through the canyon to Richfield. At that period Ned Buckley's only experience with the stage was in connection with the performance given by the amateurs of Victoria. Ned was great on spouting, and in Cariboo gave several recitations in public. His first appearance in drama was in Tom Atchinson's theatre (barn) - behind the saloon - and one of his supporters was late Joshua Thompson, member for Cariboo. The performance was considered a treat by the miners, who prophesied a brilliant future for Ned. This prophecy has been fulfilled, for when Ned returned to CA he adopted the stage as a profession; his rise was rapid, and today he has few superiors in his especial line.

Bldg/Mar 28, 1888 - One of our most prominent business men is about to retire... Mr A Gilmore, after a successful career of nearly 30 years in Victoria, has decided to dispose of his tailoring business now carried on at Johnson street. Mr Gilmore came to San Francisco in Apr, 1852, where he was in business from 1853 - 1858 and in the latter year came to Victoria in the rush caused by the gold excitement. For about a year Mr Gilmore was trading and mining on the Fraser river and returned to Victoria in 1859, starting the business which he has carried on ever since and which has grown with the lapse of years to be one of the largest and most prosperous concerns of its kind in the province. The business premises in 1859 were on Yates street, above Waddington alley, but later on they were moved to a building which then occupied the present site of Steifz Bros' restaurant. Still later, Mr Gilmore moved to Government street, to the store now occupied by Mr G W A Lange and then to the premises which are at present the Dominion Express Co's offices. About 10 years ago, the property on Johnson street was purchased, and in 1880 Mr Gilmore opened a branch store in Nanaimo which he subsequently moved to Yale, where he was burnt out in the great fire which destroyed that town during the construction of the CPR... Died at Royal Hosp, Victoria, BC, Jul 15, 1888, William Bruce, n/o Eng, aged 49. Deceased came to Victoria about 12 months ago, and was employed as a barber by Mr W Whittaker. Remains embalmed and will be forwarded to San Francisco, where wife of the deceased resides. It seems that late Mr Bruce was at one time a painter by trade, his father, who is still living, being the proprietor of a Brooklyn, NY journal. He came to CA some yrs ago and there acquired a large fortune. Being of an ambitious and enterprising spirit, he ventured into mining schemes and at an evil moment put every dollar he possessed into a mine, a sudden fall in stocks swept all his fortune away and left him a ruined man. He departed and went to Virginia City, NV, engaging in barbering, but in the end coming out with very little money. His next move was to come here, and after becoming settled he sent for his wife. Adversity seemed, however, to follow him, for she was taken ill and what he had earned all went in providing for her. About a month ago the wife returned to San Francisco, never to see her husband again. Mr Whittaker came forward and paid all the expenses of the funeral arrangements, even going so far as to purchase a lot in Ross Bay cemetery wherein now rests Mr Bruce. Deceased's brother, who is editor and proprietor of a San Francisco paper has been communicated with. G 33 W

V/John Gilbert, better known as 'White Pine,' and a miner in most of the principal camps in the early days, died Aug 15, 1888 in his cabin near the crnr Government/Humboldt sts, Victoria, BC. Deceased came to the US from his birthplace in Lincolnshire, Eng, and worked in the mines in AZ, CO, NV and CA. He is said to have made a large fortune, but like many others he failed to keep it and died with scarcely anything. In appearance he was a broken down old man, but was not over 48. Inquest - natural causes. The only property found on deceased was a nickel watch and $5.80 in silver. Aug 17 - A correspondent writes that late John 'Jack' Gilbert, was accorded a burial not fit for a dog; that the remains of one who took part in the famous charge of the Six Hundred at Balaclava were hastily dumped into a rude coffin, the body was not even washed, nor the shoes removed from the feet. A newspaper was his only shroud, and four men who had known deceased constituted the funeral procession. It is further alleged that no grave had been dug for the reception of poor 'Jack's' body, and a grave which had been dug for someone else had to be utilized, it being necessary, however, to enlarge it somewhat to admit of John Gilbert's coffin. Such was the burial of a Crimean veteran, the funeral expenses amounting to the munificent sum of $13. F 12 E 18

Aug 19, 1888 - A letter from San Francisco, CA announced the death of the relict of late John C Calhoun, 64, Aug 8, 1888. The early pioneers of this province still remaining, will remember the deceased lady as being among the first women to arrive in the colony, she having reached here from Ayrshire, Sct, with her husband, in the year 1858. Before arriving at Panama the mail steamer on which they had taken passage was wrecked on a coral reef, but all hands were saved. Deceased visited the Cariboo mines with her husband in its earliest days, and the latter as civil engineer located and superintended the construction of portions of the famous highway to Barkerville. On their return to Victoria some years later, late Mr Calhoun had charge during the regime of late Sir James Douglas of the first dredging work in Victoria harbour. There were 4 children born to them in this country, 2 of whom are now living, a son and daughter, and it was at the residence of the latter, that the deceased fell quietly asleep. In 1870 the family moved to San Francisco, where late Mr Calhoun died in 1876. Since then the deceased lady has been residing with her married daughter.

In fact, ever since England had a standing army or a navy, a member of the Elwyn family have been represented in their ranks. In the year 1859, the deceased, then a young man of 22, arrived in Victoria, and, like the majority then in the colony, proceeded to the gold mines.

He was one of the earliest miners on Williams Creek, and was ½ partner with Charlie Hankin in the Barker claim, from which the present town of Barkerville derives its name. In the fall of 1851 he was appointed by late Sir James Douglas as gold commissioner, and his associates yet remaining speak of the fair and impartial decisions Judge Elwyn gave while in that office... He continued as gold commissioner until the end of 1862, and in 1863 had charge of the gold escort, which accompanied the large amount of treasure then being sent out of the mines.

In 1864 the Lillooet Indian uprising took place and the deceased was appointed 2nd in command of the company which left New Westminster under Judge Brew to quell the revolt. This was successfully accomplished, and for a few years the deceased remained on the lower Fraser farming with several others. In 1869 the Western Union telegraph exploratory survey started from Quesnelmouth, and Mr Elwyn accompanied the party as stipendiary magistrate... Sep 16, 1888 - Mr T A Collin, for many years a resident of North Saanich, leaves for Australia... a thorough gentleman and intelligent farmer, and a pioneer who came here in the early 1860s. Many years ago he was an active, enterprising miner at Omineca, and subsequently at Cassiar, at both camps he was very successful and amassed an ample fortune. Mr Collin visited his home in England in 1868, and on his return was one of the unfortunate garrison which was shut up in Fort Garry, during the Riel rebellion. On May 8, 1870, Mr Collin left Fort Garry to cross the prairies and the Rockies on foot, and is the only man who performed the journey alone. Some idea of what such a trip meant in those days may be gleaned from the fact that it took nearly 6 months to cover the distance, the hardy pioneer reaching Quesnelle in the latter part of Oct, 1870. Of adventures on the way Mr Collin relates many and some of a character which are thrilling in the extreme, and vividly depict the hardships undergone in the times of the 'yellow fever,' by the gold hunters of BC. At Jasper House, which is situated on the Eastern slope of the Rockies, Mr Collin had to wait 1 month for the return of the Indians, who were away on a hunt, to show him the pass through the mountains to Tete Jeune Cache. Having lost his gun and being unable to kill any game, in order to save himself our voyageur was compelled to kill his pack horse and live off the flesh until help arrived. The first part of the route travelled by Mr Collin was the same as that followed by Lord Milton and Dr Cheadle shortly after in their well-known trip overland. Notwithstanding the hardships which he has gone through, Mr Collin is today as hale and as hearty as ever...

Died at Barkerville, BC, Nov 7, 1888, John A 'Cariboo' Cameron. No history of the 'days of old, the days of gold' will be complete if the name and exploits of the deceased are omitted from its pages. Mr Cameron was born at Lancaster, Ontario, of Scottish parentage about 60 years ago. Early in the 1850s he mined in CA and subsequently in Australia, with indifferent success. In 1861 he came to Victoria with his first wife, who, in the spring of 1862, accompanied him to Cariboo, then a newly discovered gold field. In the summer of the same year the company of which Mr Cameron was the leading spirit took up claims on Humbug (now William) Creek. Mrs Cameron, enfeebled by the toil and privation of the trip and the hardships incidental to life in the new mining camp, died about that time. She was the first white woman buried at Cariboo and the population for many miles around flocked to the little village of Barkerville to attend the funeral of the heroic woman who had lost her life in the discharge of her wifely duties. When dying Mrs Cameron exacted from her husband a pledge that, should he be successful in his mining ventures he would convey her body to the town of Cornwall, Ontario and there bury it by the side of her father. In the fall of 1862 the Cameron claims proved to be very rich, and Mr Cameron, assisted by Robert Stevenson, now of Chilliwack, built a sled on which they placed the body of the dead woman and dragged it over snow and ice, 400 miles, to the town of Yale. There they shipped it by canoe to New Westminster and thence by steamer it reached Victoria. Here the body was again interred. Mr Cameron returned to Cariboo, where in an incredibly short time he amassed a large fortune from the product of his claims, and was regarded as the richest man in BC. In 1865 he returned to his native place on the St Lawrence with his wealth and the body of his deceased partner. Her dying request was complied with, the remains being interred in the family plot. This act of devotion on the part of Mr Cameron was widely commented on in the press and some envious spirits started a scandalous story that the body he had brought home was not that of his wife, but that of a squaw. The grave and coffin were opened. The body being in a perfect state of preservation was easily recognized by her friends. Mr Cameron bought the farm on which he was born and which had passed into strange hands, and erected thereon a beautiful mansion. He married an estimable lady and surrounded himself with the comforts and even the luxuries of life. He dispensed his favours with a lavish hand. He sought out needy relatives and either bought them farms or set them up in business. Possessing a restless, speculative nature, Mr Cameron engaged in many enterprises, all of which proved failures. When the bulk of his money had disappeared he endeavoured to repair his fortunes by investing in Nova Scotia gold mines. That venture completed his ruin and he returned to this province some 2 ½ years ago, broken in health and pocket, but with the fire of his enterprising spirit unquenched... Remains will be interred at Barkerville, and it is thought that Mrs Cameron will return to her friends in the East.

Daily Colonist, Victoria, BC
Compiled by: Leona Taylor,
2001

Jan 1, 1889 - On the 5th day of May, 1862, followed by the good wishes for a speedy voyage of friends who had assembled to see her leave the dock, the good ship Cyclone,
Victoria, VI. There were on board 135 passengers, all bound for the far off Pacific colony, the fame of whose gold fields was then at its height, fabulous stories being told of the suddenly-acquired wealth in the mines of Cariboo. The minds of all onboard were filled with visions of the wealth to be obtained in a few short months
at the mines, which rumor said
was in store for everyone, and Cyclone at that period was but one of the many ships sailing out of London with people bound for the newly discovered gold fields.

Among those on board
Cyclone eager to test the truth
of the reports of the richness
of Cariboo were George Beckingham, John J Russell,
Dr & Mrs Nicholles (now deceased), and their son John Nicholles, George Pierson, W
G Lawson, T J Styles

Died at San Francisco, CA, Apr 9, 1889, Honourable Andrew Charles Elliott, from 1876 to 1878 Premier of BC, and for long periods prior and subsequent to those years the holder of important and responsible public positions. Mr Elliott had been ill for some time. He suffered acutely from neuralgia of the eyes and other disorders of a painful nature; and went to CA about 12 months ago in the hope of obtaining relief, but he gradually grew worse, and expired in the arms of his daughter, Mrs Douglas. The body will be brought to Victoria for interment by the side of his wife, who preceded him to the tomb several years ago, and whose remains lie in Ross Bay cemetery. Deceased gentleman was born in Ireland, and studied law under the renowned Chilty. He was admitted to the bar at Lincoln's Inn, London, England, in 1854. In 1859 he was attracted to BC by the reports of the gold 'find' on Fraser river. The following year Sir James Douglas made Mr Elliott a county judge, with jurisdiction at Yale. The district at that time was unusually turbulent owing to the presence there of large bodies of CA miners, but Mr Elliott administered justice with a fearless hand, and soon held the discordant elements well in check. He was afterwards gold commissioner and stipendiary magistrate at Lillooet, and in 1867 was appointed high sheriff of the then colony of BC. In 1874 he was appointed police magistrate at Victoria. In 1875 he was returned to the local House, and in 1876, on the defeat of the Walkem government, he became premier and attorney-general. His last public duty was magistrate at Metlakahla, which he held until failing health caused his retirement. Mr Elliott was a genial, whole-souled gentleman of generous impulses, and possessed the highest kind of honor. He was brave to a fault. Some 8 years ago he entered a village of hostile Indians at Skeena Forks and captured, almost single-handed, the murderer of a Canadian named Yeomans. He was a kind husband and father, and a good citizen in every sense of the word. Funeral from the Pioneer Hall, Government street. Jul 14, 1889 - Major Downie, who has lately been prospecting on the islands contiguous to Texada, has at last made up his mind that wealth does not lie in that direction for him, and he left yesterday for CA. Major Downie has prospected in CA and BC for the last 40 years and after having made 2 or 3 moderate fortunes has arrived at the respectable age of 70 very little the better for his exertions. His advice to youthful prospectors is, get $20 together and start a cigar and peanut stand in preference to hunting gold in the hills. Major Downie is one of the best known men on the Pacific coast and has given his name to creeks and mining camps, but does not seem to have benefitted by it much. During the last few winters he has spent his time as a book agent and many an old gold mining friend has tendered him a hearty welcome during his peregrinations.

since 1862 have stood at the crnr Broad st/Trounce alley. The old shanties which are now being swept out of the way to make room for a new brick block, are among the oldest buildings in the city. There was nothing picturesque or attractive in their old age. The fast vanishing old building was erected in 1862 for occupation as a city hall and police court - the first Victoria ever had. In 1865, the corp offices were removed to Broughton st, and with the loss of its dignity the degeneration of the old 'City Hall' commenced.

Aug 1, 1889 - As Sat draws nearer the marriage to be celebrated at the Foresters' Fete in Caledonian Park is becoming a subject of deep interest, especially to the fair sex. The right Rev Bishop Cridge will tie the nuptial knot, and as the names of the high contracting parties are kept a profound secret, many will satisfy a natural curiosity by attending and finding out for themselves who the couple are. Many ladies and gentlemen have most generously come forward with offers of various presents to the happy couple, one being a beautiful wedding cake, which will be on view in H L Salmon's show window this evening. [This seems to have been some sort of lottery set up by IOOF, due to missing microfilm issues I couldn't find the whole story. LT, see May 30, 1890, 5]

Aug 2, 1889 - The marriage to take place tomorrow afternoon at the Foresters' celebration will to all appearances prove the main feature of the whole show. Although the officers of the Foresters are keeping the names of the contracting parties a secret it will not be far wrong to state that the intending bridegroom left the city this morning for Vancouver to welcome his affianced, who comes all the way from WI, whom he has never seen, and who will tomorrow stand before the officiating Minister and resign herself with a faithful trust to her unknown lover's keeping. The advertising columns of matrimonial newspapers have much to be responsible for. It is to be hoped in the present instance that they have been the means of producing that wonderful natural phenomenon :

‘Two souls with but a single thought;

Two hearts that beat as one.

Aug 4, 1889 - At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the chairman of the committee, Mr Strachan, announced that the public marriage had been unavoidably postponed to 6pm. The truth of the matter was that the committee had been disappointed by the couple chosen by them, and at the last moment had to make arrangements for the marriage of a local couple. Percy Danby Harcourt and Grace May Trackster, both of this city, and the former a member of the AOF, presented themselves as willing to fill the breach, and at 6pm Bishop Cridge was sent for and a license procured and made out. The crowd could not have numbered less than 6,000 as the carriage containing the bride and groom drove through the gates to the ring.

They were escorted by the committee to the canopy erected for the celebration, and were met by the Bishop under the Union Jack. The ceremony was performed with all due solemnity, and the bride bore herself well throughout her rather trying ordeal. When the secretary called for three cheers for the newly made bride and bridegroom after the ceremony, the outburst of applause could have been heard miles away. The bride, thanks to the courtesy of several ladies who supported her, was not at all nervous. Large numbers of small children scattered flowers over the path down which the couple walked to their hack. They drove away followed by loud applause, everybody being well satisfied that a marriage had been celebrated as promised. [This marriage is shown at BCARS, but for some reason it was not filmed]

Aug 6, 1889 - The following is one of the letters received by Mr H L Salmon, in which the writer applied for the position of bridegroom at the marriage which was celebrated at the Foresters' picnic. The name is suppressed by request: My dear Mr Salmon: I herd that you wer going to giv me a furniture sett if i got marrid at yur picnic, if you will wate till it gets Dark lucy sez she wont Kare Butt if we have to do it in day time I don't think we will get marrid for a whil as Lucy sez she ainte goin to mail a phule of her sellf for no furniture sett - butt i would just as sune git marrid any time but I ainte got all the say. ChHx/Died at Victoria, BC, Aug 13, 1889 Wong Foo and Lee Fook. The former was 58, the latter 64. They came to Victoria together in 1868, and entered into a partnership in the manufacture of Joss candles, working up a large custom, and living with the utmost frugality. By this means in 1881 they were looked upon as rich men, but speculation seized upon them. They went to San Francisco, and the power that had enabled them to save their earnings for 13 yrs was swept away by boodlers at the Golden Gate, where they lost everything they possessed - an amount just over $3,000.

After great difficulty they succeeded in getting back to Victoria, BC in 1882, and on their arrival re-entered the candlemaking business. They were almost forgotten, however. They subsisted on the proceeds of what they sold at festival times, and in this way lived till yesterday, when Wong Foo was taken ill suddenly and expired in a few hrs. His friend, who watched him die, immediately swallowed a poisonous Chinese drug, and died in the same room ½ hour afterwards. Their bones will some day reach their native land and be buried under China's tropical sun in the marshy district of Hoy Peng.

Sep 11, 1889 - Hon Edgar Dewdney banqueted - He first came to BC, many yrs ago by the Isthmus of Panama and CA. He was brought to these shores in 1859 in an old scow, which had been used to ship the miners in 1849, and those were hard, rough times indeed. Those who now come overland by railroad trains and parlor cars could neither correctly estimate the dangers of the former mode of transit, nor fully appreciate the benefits bestowed upon them by the great trans-continental lines. He recollected well first landing here, when the countryside was fringed with cedars and pines, and firs, when a steamer was unknown here and a factory or a railway unthought of. Hon Mr Dewdney was born in Devonshire, Eng, and came here in the spring of 1859. Afterward he went to Cariboo where for several yrs he worked in the mines, side by side with several of the old Cariboo pioneers now living in Victoria.

Oct 17, 1889 - The skeleton found in the Johnson st sewer [works] yesterday has been presented to the Provincial museum.

While Peter McGeachie, a laborer, was at work on the Johnson street sewer he uncovered at about 1' below the surface, an old pine coffin, rotten with age, and with the lid broken in with the weight of the earth above. It contained the crumbling skeleton of a white man, who in life must have been over 6' in height. The skull and teeth alone were well preserved, the latter being in wonderfully good condition. When found the coffin was lying parallel with the street, in the direct line of the sewer. It is presumed that the body was one of the many interred in the old cemetery that was located on this spot in the 'fifties.' The majority of the bodies were removed to the old grave yard on Quadra st, now closed. The skeleton was viewed by very many during the day, and before evening vandals with sticks and canes in hand had picked apart the decomposing bones, and possessed themselves of the smaller ones as curios.

Oct 26, 1889 - John Garnett, who died at Seattle last week, was well-known in BC. About 30 years ago he deserted from an English man-of-war lying at the Royal Roads, Victoria. He went to Port Discovery when quite a young man and worked in a sawmill at that place. During the gold excitement on the Fraser river he went there and made a small fortune. Returning to Victoria he engaged in the drug business for about 5 years. Fortune frowned on him and he lost all. He afterwards went to the Cassiar mines, with varied success, wintering every season in Victoria. Fifteen years ago he returned to Puget Sound. Five years ago, while loading a vessel with lumber at Port Blakely, a large timber fell on his leg and foot, and he fell on hard times after that. Garnett was never known to tell anyone where his relatives lived, and it is now 23 years since he wrote to them. Garnett told a friend he intended going this winter to Apple Island, between Vancouver Island and the mainland, where $160,000 of treasure was buried. He said it was located on the west side of the island, where the western horizon opens between two other islands, and was under a large rock that was now covered by a landslide from the bluff. He gleaned the information from a dying man in the Cascade mountains...

Their construction will be commenced at once. This is a new departure in the logging business, and will greatly facilitate the work of moving from one site to another. The large scow will be used as a stable and place of storage, while the small one will furnish living and sleeping accommodation for the men. The two scows will be worth about $2,000.

Died May 31, 1890 at Victoria, BC, Joseph S Matthews, 51, well known along the Pacific Coast as 'Cariboo Joe.' In his early days, though not one of the original Argonauts, was prominent as a CA gold seeker, and achieved considerable success, not unfrequently striking it rich, but in the intervals contriving in one way or another to scatter considerable quantities of what he had found by his persistence and toil. About 1862 he went to Cariboo, traversing the entire district as a prospector and miner, sometimes on grubstake and at others on his own hook. Among other places from which he got out 'his pile' was Williams Creek, and there, as elsewhere, there was no one more willing to assist an unfortunate 'down on his luck,' or a tenderfoot, who was altogether out of his element. He was born at Cornwall, England, and though at 1st inclined to be bluff with strangers was, when known, discovered to be hearty and whole-souled. His days of prospecting are now over, and he has gone to investigate that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller ever returns. If there be anything in the doctrine of compensation, surely his many good qualities will make up for the few weaknesses which he, in common with us all, possessed, for it can be said of him that his very failings leaned to virtue's side. After leaving the mines, which was necessitated by the condition of his health, he became an employee of CPR and CPN, subsequent to which he was an attache of one of the hotels, his death having been caused by blood-poisoning, consequent on a fall.
